SILK KNEE BREECHES SHUNNED BY DAWES AT ROYAL COURT

8 AMERICANS PRESENTED

OXFORD DEGREE FOR envoy

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—Ambassador Dawes was the only man at the season's third royal court at Buckingham Palace tonight who wore long trousers instead of the traditional silk knee breeches. His plain, evening clothes were in such striking contrast with the medieval splendor of the uniforms and costumes of other diplomats and dignitaries that it caused him to be singled out for attention.

Queen Mary, in a gown of green and gold, again was a central figure at the scene of splendor. For the third time this season she stood in front of a single golden throne in the great ballroom of Buckingham Palace while débutantes from many lands curtsied before her. Around her were grouped members of her family, with the Prince of Wales in the scarlet uniform of a Colonel of the Grenadier Guards, Prince George in a naval uniform and with them Princess Ingrid of Sweden, a youthful figure in a dress of a soft pastel shade.

Owing to the accession to power of the Labor Ministry the diplomatic presentations were made by Mrs. Arthur Henderson, wife of the Foreign Secretary. One of her first duties was to present Mrs. Dawes, who wore a gown of white crêpe beauté, heavily embroidered with diamanté, and a silver tissue train.

Accompanied by Counselor.

Ambassador and Mrs. Dawes were accompanied in the diplomatic circle by Ray Atherton, counselor of the American Embassy, and Mrs. F. Lamotte Belin.

The following American women were presented by Mrs. Dawes in the general circle: Misses Frances M. Barclay of Virginia, Rosemary Baur of Chicago, Dorothy Chase of Waterbury, Conn.; Natalie Coe of New York, Pauline Fenno of Boston, Lilian Sanger of New York and Mrs. Edward F. Hutton and Mrs. Aymar Johnson of New York.

At the fourth court tomorrow Ambassador and Mrs. Dawes will be accompanied by Colonel John R. Thomas Jr., the military attaché of the American Embassy, and Mrs. Thomas. Ambassador Dawes will present in diplomatic circles Miss Hughbert Thomas, Vice Admiral and Mrs. John H. Dayton and Lieut. Commander and Mrs. John O. Huse.

Mrs. Dawes will present in the general circle Mrs. Ernest Dorrits of Pennsylvania, Mrs. Walter Mangum of South Carolina, Mrs. Francis Neilson of Chicago, Miss Annie E. Nourse of Boston, Miss Mary E. Riddle of Tennessee, Mrs. John B. Seymour of Georgia, Miss Elizabeth Stuart of Massachusetts and Mrs. Andrew Wheeler of Pennsylvania.

Another "Record" Seen.

Considerable comment is made in the press on Ambassador Dawes's garb at court. The Daily Chronicle will say tomorrow:

"This is another record the General has achieved. Only a few days ago it was announced that while General Dawes was in residence the Embassy would go dry. His preference for long trousers is another point on which the new Ambassador has shown insistence.

"In the United States it has always been a matter for discussion that when their Ambassador goes to see royalty here he should have to attire himself in a pair of knee breeches. As General Dawes was leaving New York some one asked him whether he had put breeches in his grip. He replied, 'That is my business.' No bags were opened and it appears that the General had only an evening dress suit in them."

General Dawes is reported as having said that he had no intention of establishing a precedent by his dress at the Palace.

"It was his first court and he wore black trousers, while the other members of the United States Embassy staff wore knee breeches, as heretofore," says the newspaper.

There was nearly an international "incident" seven years ago. The Express remarks, "when Colonel George Harvey stirred up a section of the American press because he

Dawes Dispatches Candid, More Than Talk, Says Stimson

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Years hence, when the archives of the State Department dealing with events now in the making are thrown open to research, historians will find delight in perusing the official dispatches of Charles G. Dawes, Ambassador to Great Britain.

When asked today if the Ambassador was as candid in his correspondence with the department as in his speeches, Secretary Stimson said that he was more so.

The public, the Secretary of State added, has a restraining influence on the Ambassador which he himself did not seem to have.

CUT IN LIVING COST AIM OF NEW CENSUS

Lamont Says It Will Gather Data Needed to Reduce Business Expenses.

TERMS IT FIRST OF KIND

Secretary Tells Merchants of City That Middlemen Are Not to Blame for High Prices.

The meaning of the distribution census as "an entirely new kind of census, never before taken in any country," was explained here yesterday by Secretary Robert P. Lamont of the Department of Commerce, for the first time since it was included in the Federal census bill which President Hoover signed last week.

The explanation was given by Secretary Lamont at a luncheon in the Hotel Astor before about 1,000 members of the Merchants' Association of New York, broadcast over WJZ and throughout the country over the Blue network of the National Broadcasting Company.

The distribution census was presented as a project which Secretary Lamont had inherited from Mr. Hoover with the Department of Commerce. He said it was a consequence of investigations undertaken by the department to determine why the cost of commodities increased so much in moving from the producer to the consumer. "These investigations revealed," he said, "facts in many cases unexpected even to the business men concerned. Radical changes in business methods are indicated by some of them. Much faulty reasoning based on guesses or on the propaganda of interested parties has strewn the field of distribution."

Designed to Cut Selling Costs.

The purpose of the new distribution census, according to Secretary Lamont, is to bring about a nation-wide reduction in "the selling price of almost all the things which the head of the family has to buy."

He said its importance passed unnoticed among the accumulated fields of inquiry which have been incorporated in the decennial census, such as the original purpose of determining population for reapportionment of Congressional representation and the later purposes of gathering statistics on agriculture, manufactures, mines, quarries, births, deaths, marriages, divorces, wealth, indebtedness, taxation, municipal and State finances, current business and other industrial and social matters.

"We have never before gathered facts and figures to help trace the story and cost of moving commodities from producer to consumer," said Secretary Lamont, presenting the findings of the preliminary investigations of distribution which led the Department of Commerce to urge this census on Congress.

"For some years past," he said, "American business has given a great deal of attention to and has spent enormous amounts of money in reducing cost of production. Amazing progress has been made. The increased use of power and the

$70,000,000 AIR DEAL COMBINES KEYSTONE, WRIGHT AND CURTISS

DIRECTORS APPROVE PLAN

C. M. Keys to Be President and R. F. Hoyt Chairman of the New Corporation.

SHARES TO BE EXCHANGED

Wide Economies Are Expected and Research Work Will Be Expanded.

Formation of the largest aviation holding company in America, with assets of more than $70,000,000, through the amalgamation of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation, the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Company and the Keystone Aircraft Company, was announced yesterday. At least seven companies affiliated with the Curtiss Company, and at least two companies closely identified with the Wright organization also are in the merger.

The new company, which will be known as the Curtiss-Wright Corporation, will embrace two separate groups of manufacturing companies, the Curtiss group, headed by C. M. Keys, and the Wright group, headed by Richard F. Hoyt, vice president of Hayden, Stone & Co., and chairman of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation. Mr. Hoyt will be chairman of the board of the new company, and Mr. Keys will be president.

Directors of the Wright and Keystone approved the plan of the merger yesterday, while directors of the Curtiss Aeorplane approved the plan several days ago. The merger had been discussed for several years, according to Chester W. Cuthell, general counsel of the Curtiss group of companies.

The new company will have an authorized capitalization of 12,000,000 shares of no par value stock, of which 2,000,000 shares will be Class A stock entitled to a preferential payment of $2 a share annually, and which will be convertible share for share into common stock and callable by the company at $40 a share. The remaining 10,000,000 shares will be common stock.

Exchange of Stock.

The stockholders of the following companies will receive an opportunity to exchange stocks now held by them for the stock of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation at the following rates of exchange:

	No. Shares New Holding Company Stock for Each Share Old Company Stock. A Common shares. shares.
Wright Aero. Corp.	1 2½
Curtiss Airports Corp.	5-12
Curtiss Flying Service, Inc.	5-8
Curtiss Aero. Export Corp.	1
Curtiss Caproni Corp.	5-12
Keystone Aircraft Corp.	½ 1
N. Y. & Suburban Air Lines	5-8

The holders of Wright Aeronautical stock will receive additional inducements in the form of warrants entitling them to the right to purchase one share of the new holding company stock for each two shares of Wright Aeronautical at $30 a share at any time within three years after the plan is declared in effect.

In consideration of the proven earning ability over a period of years of the Wright, Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor and Keystone companies, stockholders of these units will be the only ones who will receive in exchange for their stock Class A preference stock of the new company.

Announcement of the merger was made after a meeting of the directors of the Wright company which lasted all afternoon at the offices of

ROOSEVELT FIELD, L. I., June 26.—With his wife in the cabin beside him, ready to take her turn at the controls, Martin Jensen, winner of second place in the Dole flight to Hawaii in 1927, took off from Roosevelt Field No. 1 at 7:33 o'clock this evening with the object of breaking the present refueling endurance record of 172¼ hours. This record was set by Reginald L. Robbins and James Kelly at Fort Worth, Texas, on May 27.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Marguerite Jensen, the chief pilot was accompanied by William Ulbrich, a veteran transport flyer. Mrs. Jensen, an auburn-haired young woman of 26, holds a private pilot's license. She was smiling with eagerness for the adventure as, attired in a black sport skirt, white waist and white shoes, without stockings, she stepped into the plane.

The plane itself is the Bellanca monoplane, Three Musketeers, in which Jensen tried twice, a little more than a month ago, to break the refueling record but failed because the catapult device used for refueling damaged the plane. The Three Musketeers is powered with a Wright whirlwind engine. It has been equipped with special oil lines and will use a special oil which will be pumped by hand to the valve mechanisms while the plane is in flight.

A catwalk also has been constructed, running from the cabin door to the motor, on which Jensen can make his way forward to change sparkplugs and make minor adjustments and repairs. The plane carries a short wave radio set.

A refueling plane will be used instead of the catapult. This plane, a Fokker monoplane named the Exclamation Mark, belonging to the Acosta Aircraft Corporation, will be piloted by Emil Burgin and E. B. Clarke.

The Three Musketeers stopped with 165 gallons of gasoline, enough to carry the ship all night. The first refueling is expected to take place at 6 A. M. tomorrow. There are to be two refuelings a day. The course of the plane will be over Roosevelt and Mitchel Fields for the most part, but Jensen planned tonight to fly over Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and drop a note for Claude Herrick, his friend, who has just opened an airport there.

Liner's Crew Battles Dry Squad Here; Rescues Sailor Seized for Having Liquor

Members of the crew of the Lloyd-Sabaudo liner Conte Grande set upon a customs searching squad in the engine room yesterday while the ship was docked at her pier at Fifty-seventh Street and the North River and wrested away a fellow-member of the crew who had been taken prisoner while carrying a bag containing bottles of champagne.

The man had not been rearrested last night, despite a threat made by Federal officials to the line that the vessel's clearance papers would be held up if the man were not produced. The Conte Grande is due to sail tomorrow night with 1,200 passengers.

Several cases of liquor were found by the customs men in one of the bilges. No attempt was made to arrest any other member of the crew, and yesterday afternoon the customs authorities were inclined to belittle the fracas on board. It was said that no effort would be made to arrest or prosecute any of the crew who participated in the fight.

Captain Antonio Lena, in command of the ship, assured the customs authorities that every effort would be made to produce the man.

Solicitor of Customs George W. Brewer explained that he intended to prosecute the man under the Jones law as an example. Hereafter it will be the policy of his office, he said, to deal with violations of the prohibition law by sailors on foreign ships just as if the offenders were Americans and the offense committed on land.

Excitement on the ship lasted most of the day yesterday, starting before dawn, when a member of the crew was stopped by a customs guard as he was leaving the pier with a pint of liquor. He protested that it was unjust to molest him when "bootleggers were all over the ship."

The guard went toward the ship to investigate and saw a man coming down the vessel's side. The man fled, dropping eighteen bottles of liquor. The guard then notified the Customs House and six men under Inspector Samuel Pollak were sent to make a search of the ship.

The searching party had just entered the engine room when they saw a man carrying a bag. The bag contained bottles of liquor and they arrested him. Thereupon about fifty of the crew approached the customs men.

The latter, it was declared afterward, made no attempt to draw their guns. They defended themselves as best they could without weapons, but found it impossible to keep their prisoner. Mr. Brewer said the disorder was "not really a fight" but consisted rather of jostling. Anyhow, when it was over the prisoner was gone.

The searching party later found 200 bottles of liquor in one of the bilges.

FIVE WITNESSES ARRESTED

The identity of two men who rode with Frank Marlow from the brilliancy of Broadway to the darkness of a secluded spot in Queens, and there tossed his bullet-riddled form to a hedge, is known to the police. The men are being sought here and in Boston.

Wearily, Police Commissioner Whalen made known these facts last night as he rested against his mahogany desk in Headquarters and reviewed the day's developments in the slaying of the former night club owner, gambler and reputed racketeer. The commissioner had had less than four hours' sleep.

Marlow was called to ride to his death by a friend, the commissioner said. As he sat at a table with five friends in a midtown Italian restaurant the telephone rang, Marlow answered it. When the party broke up Marlow turned to one of the men at the table and gave him the key to his room in the Victoria Hotel.

"I'll see you in the room in two hours," Marlow said. "I've got a date."

Drove Off With Two Men.

As the members of the group emerged to the sidewalk, two men, who had evidently been waiting, came up to Marlow. After exchanging a few words he got into a sedan with them.

Forty-five minutes later he died in a Flushing police booth to which he had been carried. What happened during this three-quarters of an hour the police have not yet learned.

The dinner guests of the slain man, four men and a girl dancer, after hours of questioning, were ordered arrested as material witnesses. They were held in $50,000 bail each and, by direction of the commissioner, were lodged in separate cells. They told the police little, although the commissioner said he was confident they knew a great deal of the story of Marlow's end.

A blue sedan, similar in appearance to the one Marlow entered at the Broadway corner was found abandoned in Brooklyn. The machine had been stolen. Two bullets had punctured the glass window at the rear. The same number of bullets had passed through Marlow's head, a third making no exit. The upholstery of the rear seat had been torn, suggesting a struggle.

While this possible clue was being examined and six fingerprints taken from the steering wheel and the broken window were being developed, five detectives were in Boston, where Marlow had been "operating" of late. He came to this city on Saturday and the police were confident last night that the motive for the murder would be found in the Massachusetts city.

Broadway Round-up Ordered.

A round-up of known characters in the submerged life of Broadway, dwellers in or on the fringe of the underworld, was in progress last night. The detectives planned to pick up any one known to have been even a chance acquaintance of the dead man. Two night club promoters and a retired bantamweight prizefighter were questioned at headquarters during the day. They were unable to aid the police.

A "John Doe" warrant was sworn out in Queens during the day and several detectives hurried out briefly when it was issued. Commissioner Whalen explained, however, that he

EDUCATION CAMPAIGN BY DRY UNIT HELD UP

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The Prohibition Bureau's "campaign of education," designed to discourage the use of intoxicants and urging support for the dry law, has been temporarily abandoned and all literature prepared to further it is now under the scrutiny of high officials of the government.

Well-laid plans of certain bureau authorities to interject prohibition propaganda into the "three R's" of every school room in the country have been dropped, at least for the time being, and the affair has caused a row among treasury officials.

Doran Holds Up Pamphlets.

Dr. James M. Doran, Commissioner of Prohibition, admitted today that he had issued orders withholding from the public a series of pamphlets depicting the evils of intemperance and discussing the subject from economic angles, this material having been assembled by subordinates of Dr. Doran with a view to having it made a part of the course of study in public schools throughout the country.

Miss Anna B. Sutter, chief of the Prohibition Bureau's division of statistics, who planned to appear before the National Education Association at its convention in Atlanta this week to explain the purposes of the bureau in preparing the controverted pamphlets, was informed that on her visit to Atlanta she was at liberty to offer any information on the subject that might be sought by school teachers. She was cautioned, however, against taking any course that would put the bureau in the position of requesting or advising that a study of prohibition be made a part of school curricula.

The prohibition "high command" of the treasury, made up of Secretary Mellon, Under-Secretary Mills and Assistant Secretary Lowman, is very much exercised over the publicity which met the announcement yesterday that the Prohibition Bureau planned to "sell" the Eighteenth Amendment to future voters by teaching the evil effects of alcohol in public schools. This is evidenced by a number of conferences held during the last few days. Assistant Secretary Lowman, in immediate charge of prohibition enforcement, today went directly to the office of Commissioner Doran to take up the matter with him.

After this interview it was announced that no more of the propaganda pamphlets would be given out for the present.

Under-Secretary Mills is understood to have been directly responsible for the order, directing that the pamphlets be suppressed for the time, and that no step be taken that would appear to commit the treasury to any plan looking to the introduction of prohibition studies into the public schools. There were suggestions that some one "higher up" had intervened, but this could not be verified.

Dr. Doran stated that he could give no help to those desiring copies of the pamphlets.

"No more of these pamphlets will be given out at the present time," Dr. Doran said. "It is my intention to go over all of them carefully before they are sent to the printers."

Pamphlet Contains Dry Ideas.

Analysis of one of the documents disclosed that it was filled with ideas designed to make it possible for sympathetic teachers to implant dry

J. M. PHILLIPS'S SON IS BURNED TO DEATH IN AIRPLANE CRASH

STRAPS IMPRISON FLIER

LOW BANK CAUSED PLUNGE

Special to The New York Times.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, L. I., June 26.—Francis Phillips, 21-year-old son of the late John M. Phillips, who died while under indictment in the Queens sewer scandal, was burned to death here this afternoon when the tiny Moth biplane he was piloting crashed to earth and burst into flames near the gully where René Fronck's proposed transatlantic flight ended disastrously three years ago.

Henry Goldsmith, a parachute salesman with flying aspirations, was in the plane with Phillips, but was thrown clear of the burning wreckage by the impact of the crash. His clothing had become ignited, however, and he died of burns at 9 o'clock tonight in Nassau Hospital, Mineola.

It was a little after 2 P. M. when Phillips, who was lame as a result of a childhood attack of infantile paralysis, arrived at the airport, which formerly was Curtiss Field. His own ship, a Steaman biplane in which he had had about 200 hours of flying, was being overhauled.

Borrows Plane for Trip.

Phillips entered one of the hangars and told George Wies, an agent for De Havilland planes, that he wanted to borrow one of his Moths for a hop to Valley Stream where the new Curtiss Field is located.

Wies remembered that Phillips had been reprimanded by officials of the field for violating regulations, but he knew the youthful flier had not been grounded and since Phillips had made several short hops in the Moth before, he consented to his using it. The silver-winged craft was wheeled out on the field. As Phillips stepped into the cockpit, he turned to Goldsmith and asked him if he'd like to come along.

"Sure," said Goldsmith, catching the parachute that was tossed to him as Phillips made last the straps on his own and began tinkering with the instruments.

A minute or two later Phillips raced the little plane across the field and rose over the hangars. Scarcely 100 feet above their rooftops he banked, with his right wing down and the wind on the tail. It was a fatal mistake. The 60-horsepower engine was not strong enough to hold altitude on the turn and the Moth nosed earthward with her right wing still hanging down.

Crash Breaks Gas Tank.

In that position the fragile little ship crashed a split second later. The impact cracked the gas tank in the wing over the pilot's head. There had not been time to cut the ignition switch, and even if there had been it probably would have made no difference, for pilots said the heat of the engine would have ignited it anyway.

The dust, bestirred by the airplane's headlong landing, had not settled when the crowd of 200 or more startled visitors saw the burst of flame which spelled disaster for the occupants of the plane. Help was near at hand, for laborers were grading the uneven bit of land between the old and new Roosevelt Fields, where the crash occurred. They rushed to the burning plane

FIVE NAVAL POWERS ENTER PRELIMINARY LONDON TALK ON REDUCTION IN ARMAMENT

FRANCE, ITALY AND JAPAN

PROCEDURE TO BE DECIDED

Conferees Also Take Up Scope, Whether to Include All Warship Classes.

WORK IS PROCEEDING FAST

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The conversations now taking place in London with a view to arranging for further naval armament limitation are leading to a separate conference of the five naval powers. All the indications are that the conference will take place in London and in the near future.

In the present informal London exchanges the French and Japanese Ambassadors and the Italian Chargé d'Affaires are participating with Ramsay MacDonald, Prime Minister of Great Britain, and other British officials and Ambassadors Dawes and Gibson, representing the United States. The participation of French, Italian and Japanese diplomatic representatives has not hitherto been disclosed.

Two Major Points Discussed.

Two major points for preliminary settlement are now under discussion in London between the representatives of the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan. They are:

1. Shall there first be a meeting of civilian political negotiators to determine the scope and character of the conference or shall the naval experts of the several powers meet prior to the meeting of the civilians to discuss the so-called yardstick for measuring naval values?

2. Shall the scope of the conference be limited to cruisers or battleships and cruisers or be unlimited, so that the conference would deal with reducing all classes of combatant vessels—capital ships (battleships and airplane carriers), cruisers, destroyers and submarines?

When a definite basis for holding the formal disarmament conference has been reached, Prime Minister MacDonald will make his projected visit to the United States to discuss the naval armament question with President Hoover. As the preliminary exchanges now in progress in London are moving forward rapidly, Mr. MacDonald's visit may be expedited.

It is expected in official circles here that the conference will take place within seven months, but there is a strong likelihood that it may begin in October.

Prime Minister MacDonald has taken the initiative in the situation, much to the satisfaction of the Washington government. He seems to have entered wholeheartedly into President Hoover's desire for an armament conference.

Action by Five Powers Sought.

The entrance of the French, Italian and Japanese diplomatic representatives in London into the exchanges between Prime Minister MacDonald and Ambassadors Dawes and Gibson is in accord with the desire of the American and British Governments that the proposed armament reduction should be undertaken by all the five naval powers.

In the current exchanges there has been a suggestion that the naval conference should include all nations represented in the preparatory commission for a disarmament conference, which is expected to resume its sessions in Geneva in September, but it now appears to be agreed that any naval armament conference will be confined in its participants to the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan.

It is not intended to work entirely separately from the preparatory commission if there is a marked desire to have the five-power naval armament conference keep in touch with the preparatory commission, but all the current exchanges are designed to bring about a definite separate agreement for naval armament reduction.

The preparatory commission was organized by the League of Nations to prepare for a general conference on all phases of armaments, and has no authority to make definite agreements for actual limitation or reduc-

REPUBLICANS ADOPT ANTI-SMITH TICKET

RICHMOND, Va., June 26.—After hearing Henry W. Anderson in the keynote address denounce what he called the Democratic "oligarchy" in Virginia, members of the State Republican Convention here tonight nominated Dr. William M. Brown of Lexington for Governor, R. Walter Dickenson of Russell County for Lieutenant Governor and Charles Carter Berkeley of Newport News for Attorney General.

Immediately after he had been placed in nomination by C. Bascom Slemp, Dr. Brown, who is a professor of psychology at Washington and Lee University, was introduced to the convention and was enthusiastically applauded after he had spoken briefly. Dr. Brown is 35 years old. He called himself an Independent in politics.

Dr. Brown and Mr. Berkeley were nominated also by the recent anti-Smith convention in Roanoke and their nomination here tonight was part of the coalition agreement worked out by leaders in both groups.

Says He Is Politically Dry.

Mr. Dickenson has been a life-long Republican and was his party's candidate for Lieutenant Governor on the ticket with the late J. Hampton Hore. He is a member of the State Board of Agriculture and a former State Senator. He said he was politically dry.

Asked to comment on his selection, Mr. Dickenson said:

"The thing came as a complete surprise. I hadn't expected to be considered. As a matter of fact, I was drafted for the place."

In a keynote address of 18,000 words, Mr. Anderson denounced the Democratic party, asserting that since 1902 it had used the State as a party agency by means of unfair election machinery and that it had

Club That Ousted MacDonald Wants Him Back; He Was Dropped Because of His War Criticisms

LONDON, June 26.—Just ten years after the signing of the Treaty of Versailles members of the Moray Golf Club, within a stone's throw of Premier MacDonald's home at Lossiemouth, Scotland, are moving to erase from their records traces of the war-time conflict which resulted in the expulsion of the present British Prime Minister from among them.

The members are now anxious to rescind the resolution, passed in 1918 by seventy-three votes to twenty-four, which found that "James Ramsay MacDonald's public utterances regarding the great war have led to resignations from the club and to grave dissatisfaction among its members and that his conduct is such as to endanger the character and interests of the club."

Following this resolution, he was deprived of membership.

The chief complaint against Mr. MacDonald was that he had written articles blaming Sir Edward Grey, then Foreign Minister, for the outbreak of the war. The articles were reprinted in the German press and used against Great Britain.

At the time of that resolution one of Premier MacDonald's sons, who was also a member of the Moray Golf Club, was with an ambulance corps in France, although he was only eighteen.

The question of inviting Mr. MacDonald to rejoin the club was raised in 1923 when he first became Prime Minister, but no decision was reached. Now the members wish to forgive and forget all about the war.

ABERDEEN, Scotland, June 26 (AP).—The managing committee of the Moray Golf Club today decided to meet on July 11 to consider the following motion:

"That the resolution of Sept. 1, 1918, whereby the Right Honorable James Ramsay MacDonald was deprived of his membership in the Moray Golf Club be now rescinded."

27,000 City Workers Slated To Get Pay Increases Today

Twenty-seven thousand city employes, comprising a large part of what is commonly known as "the white collar brigade," whose salaries are not now in excess of $3,000 a year, will receive increases of from $100 to $200 each when the Board of Estimate formally approves today action that was virtually determined late yesterday afternoon in an executive session.

Many members of the clerical forces of the municipal departments who are now regarded as underpaid are included. Members of the Police and Fire departments are not included, nor are those city employes whose compensation is increased automatically with their tenure of service.

The proposal for this sweeping wage increase, which is expected to conciliate many clamorous demands, is attributed to Budget Director Charles L. Kohler, who expressed his satisfaction with the board's attitude yesterday.

It is estimated that the aggregate cost to the city of these wage increases will amount to between $3,500,000 and $4,000,000 a year.

tion of armaments. It appears to be clear that the London exchanges are to lead to the organization of a separate conference empowered to take definite action on the naval armament problem and not merely to propose a program for consideration by an armament conference of all governments to be called some time in the distant future by the League of Nations.

One proposal considered in London was to have the preparatory commission authorize the treatment of the naval armament question through representatives of the five naval powers acting as a subcommittee of the commission, but this is seen as purely a negative course, as the preparatory commission could not invest the subcommittee with authority to make a definite agreement for the reduction of armaments.

Hoover Wants Quick Action.

The Hoover administration favors a special conference of the five naval powers. This method furnishes greater assurance of quick action, and that is something at which the administration is aiming. The London exchanges have taken a slant indicative of the calling of a separate conference.

It is expected that the preliminaries now being conducted in London will advance so rapidly that a definite announcement of their outcome will be made in a few days. In his speech last night Prime Minister MacDonald intimated that he might be in a position in a few days to announce the meeting place of a disarmament conference and its objects. That information accords with what has been received here. The whole situation as revealed in information reaching Washington is propitious for a special naval conference in the near future.

While the American naval experts have not completed a formula for measuring the relative strength of navies that is entirely satisfactory to them, their efforts have progressed to the point where they are able to discuss the yardstick problem with the naval technicians of the four other naval powers. Should the conversations in London lead to a decision that the naval technicians shall have a meeting prior to the assembling of political representatives of the various governments, the American technicians will be able to explain the methods for obtaining relative naval values which they have in mind and on which they have been working by direction of President Hoover.

It is understood that considerable progress toward manufacturing a yardstick has been made by the technicians of other naval powers so that if the technicians are to meet first all of them will be in a position to discuss the yardstick problem intelligently.

If the proposed special naval armament conference takes place in London, as now seems probable, the matter of its success would be put up squarely to the British Government as the host of this important international gathering. To hold it in Washington would not be pleasing to some of the League of Nations members. Some time will be necessary to prepare for the conference. With reference to Japan's participation there is the time element of travel for representatives sent by that government to Europe.

Envoys Expected to Lead Way.

It is probable that the preliminary political conference which is expected to eventuate from the current exchanges in London will be participated in by the diplomatic representatives of the United States, France, Italy and Japan now there and officials of the British Government. They will make the arrangements for the disarmament conference.

Officials of this government feel that the greatest assurance of the success of the disarmament movement is in preliminary understandings such as those now in progress.

Many messages from London and other capitals concerning the conversations which are being conducted in the British capital were received at the State Department today. They led to conferences between State Department officials. Late in the afternoon Secretary Stimson and Under-Secretary of State Cotton held a long conference with President Hoover in the executive offices.

JAPANESE COUNCIL APPROVES PACT

Asks Emperor to Ratify Kellogg Treaty, Removing the Last Obstacle to Enforcement.

ENVOY WHO SIGNED RESIGNS

Opposes Interpretative Statement on Disputed Phrase—Sanction Gratifies Washington.

By HUGH BYAS.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, June 26.—After a long, earnest and in part surprising debate today, the Privy Council in plenary session approved by a sweeping majority the Kellogg anti-war pact with the proposed interpretative declaration regarding the words "in the name of their respective peoples" and submitted the treaty to the Emperor with the recommendation that it be ratified. Immediately afterward Count Uchida, who signed the treaty at Paris as Japan's plenipotentiary, tendered his resignation from the Council on the grounds that no interpretation was necessary.

The Emperor, who was present throughout the morning and afternoon sessions when the treaty was being debated, was at first expected to affix the imperial pen immediately, but the formalities have not yet been completed.

It is surmised that the delay is due to the Government's desire to have Count Uchida's resignation withdrawn, but the latter is incensed with Premier Tanaka for giving way to the Council and adopting a course which puts a slur on his conduct as imperial plenipotentiary.

The statement the Foreign Office has prepared for public information was withheld pending the completion of ratification and will probably appear tomorrow.

Three Oppose Recommendation.

Three Councilors voted against the proposal of the Privy Council's special committee that the treaty be ratified with the interpretative declaration, but only one opposed the now famous phrase. Admiral Yashiro, Minister of the Navy in Count Okumas' cabinet fifteen years ago and a veteran patriot whose loyalty to the throne and unflinching antagonism to the present government are alike unquestionable, declared that the phrase implied the Emperor's being the people's agent and was therefore incompatible with the Constitution.

Baron Tanaka denied the words implied agency or delegated authority and when asked by Admiral Yashiro why in that case he had accepted the interpretation, answered that the public mind had been stirred up by agitation and the Government therefore thought it proper to append a clarifying statement.

Count Uchida, supported by Dr. Sakurai, President of the Imperial Academy, vigorously maintained that the phrase was not unconstitutional and held that a simple explanation by the Government was all that was necessary. The vote being taken, Admiral Yashiro, Count Uchida and Dr. Sakurai opposed the committee's report, but were in a hopeless minority.

Washington Very Pleased.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Approval of the Kellogg treaty renouncing war as an instrument of national policy by the Japanese Privy Council was greeted with deep satisfaction in government circles here today, particularly as the act means that the compact will soon come into force.

Under the terms of the treaty it is not to become effective until the ratifications of the fifteen original signatory governments have been deposited with the State Department. Japan was the only signatory that had not ratified. In normal course the instrument of ratification will be forwarded from Tokio by mail, so that the ceremony for depositing it and proclaiming the treaty in force will be held in approximately one month.

Should the ratification be communicated by cable the compact would come into effect earlier, but there has been no indication here of departing from the custom of mailing it, inasmuch as haste is not essential.

The State Department had no official report today of the action of the Privy Council, but upon the basis of press advices from Tokio Secretary Stimson made the oral comment that he was very glad the approval had been given. It was a very important event, he added, and one over which he felt that former Secretary Kellogg, who sponsored the compact, would be very happy.

Forty-nine Others Invited.

Aside from the fifteen original signatories, forty-nine governments were invited to become parties to the treaty through adherence, and all have been heard from with the exception of Argentina and Brazil, which have yet to reply to the invitations for their adherence.

Of the nations invited to adhere, twenty-three have deposited their ratifications, five have perfected their adherences except for formal deposit, six have had their ratifications approved by their legislative bodies and require only the approval of the heads of the States, and thirteen have signified their intention to adhere.

American officials are especially gratified that the treaty is to come into force, as the naval limitation negotiations between the United States and Great Britain are proceeding so favorably. The pact has been emphasized by Ambassador Dawes in London as the cornerstone upon which naval limitation efforts should be built. This Spring Hugh S. Gibson, as chief of the American delegation to the sessions of the Preparatory Disarmament Commission at Geneva, gave it a position of similar importance.

President Hoover in his Memorial Day address declared that "if this agreement is to fulfill its high purpose we and other nations must accept its consequences; we must clothe faith and idealism with action."

"We believe," he added, "that the time has come when we must know whether the pact we have signed is real, whether we are condemned to further and more extensive naval construction."

Briand Sought Pact With Us.

Negotiations for the treaty were inaugurated two years ago when Aristide Briand, the French Foreign Minister, informally proposed that the United States and France enter into a bilateral arrangement for the outlawry of war. This he followed with a formal suggestion to that effect, and Secretary Kellogg replied by agreeing to the formula offered by the French Foreign Minister, but suggesting that the proposed compact be made multilateral, to include all nations.

SIGNATORIES.

Ratifications deposited by original signatories — Australia, Belgium, Canada, Czechoslovakia, France, Germany, Great Britain, India, Irish Free State, Italy, New Zealand, Poland, South Africa, United States.
Ratifications to be deposited by original signatories—Japan.

ADHERENCES.

Ratifications deposited by adhering nations—Afghanistan, Albania, Austria, China, Cuba, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Egypt, Estonia, Ethiopia, Iceland, Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes, Liberia, Lithuania, Nicaragua, Norway, Panama, Portugal, Rumania, Russia, Siam, Spain, Sweden.
Perfected except for formal deposit—Haiti, Persia, Turkey, Honduras, Netherlands.
Countries signifying their intention to adhere—Bolivia, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, San Salvador, Hungary, Luxemburg, Mexico, Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay, Venezuela.

Kellogg May Attend Ceremony.

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP).—Frank B. Kellogg may personally witness the formal ceremony placing into full force the anti-war treaty which bears his name and for the completion of which he strove so diligently before leaving the office of Secretary of State.

Although no arrangements have been made for the ceremony of Japan's deposit, which will bring the peace instrument into force, it was widely suggested in governmental circles here today that Mr. Kellogg probably would be invited to come to Washington to see the completion of the work which he started. It is believed the arrangements will be made by Secretary Stimson and the Japanese Ambassador, M. Debuchi.

Lammot du Pont Aids Building Fund at Lawrenceville.

Dr. Mather A. Abbott, headmaster of the Lawrenceville School, Lawrenceville, N. J., announced yesterday a gift of $100,000 from Lammot du Pont of Wilmington, Del., toward an emergency fund of $1,130,000 being raised to erect modern fireproof buildings to replace frame structures at the school. Lammot du Pont 3d is a member of the fourth-year class at the school. With Mr. du Pont's contribution the fund has now reached a total of $605,127.

"The school feels it owes a great debt of gratitude to Mr. du Pont, whose gift has given such an impetus to the fund that it insures a successful outcome," Dr. Abbott said.

The drive for an additional sum of $1,717,000 to cover future needs of the school, Dr. Abbott said, will be started when the emergency fund goal is reached, it is hoped, by June 30.

repeatedly disregarded reports on useless offices and inefficiency, all the while increasing taxes in the face of propaganda designed to show that burdens had been lifted from the taxpayer.

Mr. Slemp aroused enthusiasm when he placed in nomination the name of Dr. Brown. Mr. Slemp said that "more was done in 1928 for political liberty, liberty of thought, liberty of conscience in our beloved State than had occurred in the preceding half century."

"The result in 1928 in Virginia," he asserted, "cannot be considered wholly a Republican victory—as I see Virginia today, it is a State of renaissance, politically, historically and traditionally."

Mr. Anderson said that the vote in Virginia generally was less than one in eleven of the population. He admitted that negroes were "effectually disfranchised," and asserted that less than half of the white population of voting age voted in 1928, when a record number of ballots were cast.

Urges Simpler Election Laws.

He referred to primaries, which he said were paid for by the people but limited to Democratic use, and called for liberalization and simplification of election laws. These laws now, he said, are administered by complicated machinery with arbitrary discretionary powers invested in boards and judges. He suggested a form with minority representation among judges.

He called the form of the ballots unsatisfactory and asserted that in the last election 10 per cent of them were defective. He deplored what he said was lax and irregular administration of election laws.

He denounced the fee system and, asserting that Virginia prisons were overcrowded and unsanitary, compared them to the torture chambers used in the Middle Ages. He charged politics were injected into the schools, and compared the "oyster war" and resultant disclosures to the Teapot Dome oil scandal.

Worst Gale of Season Sweeps Byrd Camp; Man Lost Between Huts Is Saved by Beacon

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, June 25.—The worst blizzard we have had since last Fall (our Fall) is blowing today, the wind having steadily climbed since morning to a gale that shakes the chimney pipes and rattles the stoves.

It is driving before it all the loose snow which has fallen recently, making a smother in which things only a few yards away are invisible.

Henry Harrison went overland from his house to the other today for, being a meteorologist, he is sufficiently interested in the weather to tempt it occasionally when most every one sticks to the tunnel. He missed the large house and wandered two or three hundred yards to the east before realizing that he had overshot his mark.

Then he turned, and by the light on the radio tower, which Commander Byrd had put there for just such an emergency, he found his way back again and finally stumbled over the house.

The entrance was almost entirely concealed by snow, but he managed to dig his way in and came in with his usual nonchalant manner, covered with snow.

The light is sixty feet high and some feet above the drift so that it is visible for a long way when objects on the ground are hidden from sight by the whirling curtain of white.

Two Hours for Line to Pass.

LONDON, June 26 (AP).—The gowns of the young Americans who were presented by Mrs. Dawes, several of which were specially designed in Paris, attracted much attention. All wore the regulation headdress with three feathers.

It took two hours for the entire 400 young women who were presented to file past the Queen. The great suite of state rooms, the ballroom, drawing room and picture gallery were filled with diplomats, statesmen, soldiers and women in many hued dresses. Yeomen of the Guard and Gentlemen at Arms in their white-plumed helmets and scarlet uniforms gave a medieval aspect to the whole scene.

The excitement of the royal court spread over all London, drawing crowds of enthusiasts to the streets near the palace in the hope of catching a glimpse of the royal personages or beautiful débutantes.

Honorary Degree at Oxford.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

OXFORD, June 26.—Ambassador Dawes was among those who received degrees at Oxford University's commencement exercises today. In eloquent Latin the honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Law was conferred upon him and several other distinguished guests.

The Sheldonian Theatre was crowded when, at midday, the university's chancellor, Lord Grey of Falloden, entered at the head of the procession of distinguished men about to receive degrees. These, besides Ambassador Dawes, included the Marquis Merry del Val, Spanish Ambassador; Lord Chelmsford, Lord Hailsham, Sir Alfred Ewing and Mohamed Mahmoud Pasha, the Prime Minister of Egypt.

The American Ambassador was the second of this group to be honored. The public orator, Dr. A. B. Poynton, presented him and the chancellor received him with the traditional Latin formula, a free translation of which follows:

"General Dawes, the man who in the war had helped the Allies as an administrator of supplies and who has returned after peace in order to help with his advice those interested in repairing the damages of the war. Such thoughts are, however, inappropriate since nobody here at this peaceful meeting today bothers how much any one has or owes, nor are even the grammarians involved at the moment in the canons of General Dawes."

There was laughter at this pleasantry aaimed at Oxford etymologists, and the chancellor, added:

"We receive you as a most welcome author and helper of world peace."

The chancellor then accepted the General as a "most valiant man, a friend of the people of distressed Europe, we accept you most heartily as plenipotentiary of your country, whose friendship will always be dear to us."

HOOVER IS UNDECIDED ON WORK'S SUCCESSOR

White House Denies That President Has Picked Republican Committee Head.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—President Hoover has not actively interested himself in the selection of a successor to Dr. Hubert Work, who resigned as chairman of the Republican National Committee to take effect this Fall, it was stated at the White House today in denial of widespread reports to that effect, which were declared to be wholly without foundation.

President Hoover, it was stated on his behalf at the White House, has made no decision regarding the next Republican national chairman and would not even present his recommendations thereon until late this Summer or early in the Fall.

The President's preference for a particular candidate for the Republican chairmanship would insure his election and the announcement was, therefore, interpreted to mean that the post is still open and that rumors that Dr. Work's successor had been decided upon lacked foundation.

The name of George Woodruff, a Chicago banker, had been mentioned quite prominently and reports were circulated that he had the support of the administration for the chairmanship. Among his sponsors, it was reported, were Secretary of War Good, who was Mr. Hoover's pre-convention manager, and J. R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican National Committee.

It was said at the White House today that although Mr. Woodruff is a close friend of President Hoover's and that there are many persons, some of whom are close to the administration, who would like to see him made chairman, the reports were untrue.

COMMITTEE TO AID BACKWARD PUPILS

Board Names Group to Study Problem of Misfits in the Public Schools.

TRUANCY FOUND GROWING

Dr. O'Shea Criticizes Grade System, Says Maladjusted Pupils Often Turn to Lawlessness.

In an effort to solve the increasingly serious problem of the psychological misfit in the public school system the Board of Education at its meeting yesterday afternoon appointed a committee of twelve principals and superintendents to study the situation and report on methods of coping with it. The committee was appointed at the suggestion of Dr. William J. O'Shea, Superintendent of Schools, who told of the problems presented to the school administrators by truancy, heavy retardation.

Dr. O'Shea pointed out that the public school curricula is based on the theory that grades roughly correspond to ages. But, he said, retardation has played havoc with the theory until the age span in individual grades is considerable, too many pupils do not progress regularly from grade to grade.

He painted a dark picture of the drifting, indolent, maladjusted pupils, some of whom are eventually led to lives of violence and lawlessness. He said that ungraded classes were too few.

Arthur S. Somers, chairman of the board's committee on finance, said that an investigation on truancy and related problems has been discussed by school officials for some time. "We hope to get valuable information and reach effective methods of dealing with this problem," he declared. "We have not made this inquiry in the past because we have not had the time for it. We hope to get enough material to enable us to adopt a policy of caring for all the physically and mentally handicapped children."

The committee will have its first meeting on Sept. 29. Five main points to be considered were outlined by Dr. O'Shea. They were:

1. Methods for the early identification of pupils who are likely to become retarded in school progress or atypical in conduct and the methods and facilities which should be employed to diagnose the problems presented by such pupils.
2. The most efficient remedies, including the personnel and other facilities, which should be utilized for the treatment of such pupils.
3. What provision should be made by the Board of Education for retarded and other exceptional pupils? Is the provision now made adequate?
4. Should the specialized school, known as the probationary school, be extended either in its present form or in a modified form?
5. Is the parental school discharging its functions in a satisfactory way?

The chairman of the committee will be Associate Superintendent Margaret J. McCooey. The other members are:

GABRIEL R. MASON, principal Public School 37, the Bronx.
Miss LUCILLE NICOL, district superintendent.
WILLIAM O'FLAHERTY, district superintendent.
HAROLD PEYSER, principal Public School 95, Manhattan.
JACOB M. ROSS, principal Public School 130, Manhattan.

FIRE WRECKS YACHT OF ATWATER KENT'S SON

Crew of Two Take to Life-Boats and Are Rescued by Coast Guard in Buzzards Bay.

BUZZARDS BAY, Mass., June 26.—The $20,000 yacht Areletha, owned by A. Atwater Kent, son of the radio manufacturer, sank in the main channel at sundown after burning to the water's edge. Her crew of two took to a lifeboat when flames mounted to the rigging and were picked up by the crew of Coast Guard Patrol 280 and taken to New Bedford.

Chief Boatswain's Mate Augustus Perry, in command of Patrol Boat 280, was cruising in the vicinity of Red Wing Neck Light when a sheet of flame half a mile away attracted the lookout's attention, and in another minute the 78-footer was speeding to the rescue.

The Areletha, a fifty-foot yacht rigged with auxiliary motors, was making her way from New York to Bussard's Bay shortly after 6 o'clock to be picked up by Mr. Kent and his family.

Trouble developed with the motors and there was an explosion followed by a sheet of flame which climbed the rigging and caught on the sails. It was this beacon which the Coast Guardsmen saw first.

As the patrol boat neared the blazing yacht, the lookout espied a life boat which had been put over from the Areletha and the two men were taken aboard.

Patrol Boat 280 went over to the scene of the sunken boat and found her in only fifteen feet of water, but probably totally destroyed by fire which had burned her to the water's edge before she sank.

MEXICO TURNS OVER 11 CATHOLIC CHURCHES

Priests Will Get Four More Today When Celebration of First Mass Since 1926 Is Likely.

MEXICO CITY, June 26 (AP).—Eleven Catholic churches in the capital were turned over to priests today, including the national shrine of Guadalupe. The first mass since 1926 may be celebrated tomorrow.

The churches were handed over by the government after inventories of property contained in them had been made. The priests who received the properties were designated by Archbishop Pascual Diaz, Primate of Mexico, and have registered in accordance with the law.

Four more churches of the capital will be turned over to priests tomorrow.

CITY ENGINEERS BACK REDS IN UNION

Meeting Approves Policy of Scherer and the Executive Committee.

CONSERVATIVES QUIT HALL

Radical Group Plans Legal Action Against Delaney for the Reinstatement of Men.

At a turbulent meeting which lasted five hours and which broke up at about 12:30 o'clock this morning the Union of Technical Men, at Labor Temple, Second Avenue and Fourteenth Street, upheld the policy of Marcel Scherer, organizer and active Communist worker, as well as the executive committee. The meeting voted to retain both Scherer and the executive committee to continue the fight for a minimum of $3,120 from the Board of Transportation for junior engineers and for the reinstatement of the 300 members dismissed by the board last week.

The committee of three, consisting of A. Judwin, Emil Bie and S. Chafets, which has been trying for a week to confer with Chairman Delaney of the Board of Transportation, with its followers, who led the fight on Scherer and other alleged Communist officials, bolted the meeting after vainly demanding for two hours that their report be taken up for consideration. They withdrew after a scene of disorder, announcing their resignations.

Later, members of the committee said that they had been followed by about 250 others, but a statement made on behalf of the union asserted that only 25 or 30 withdrew.

Against the urgent pleas of the committee of three the meeting decided to begin legal proceedings against the Board of Transportation to seek reinstatement of the men and payment of $3,120 instead of $2,700. An assessment of $10 on each of the members was decided upon and $300 was collected at the meeting.

Mr. Scherer, in a statement yesterday, charged that the published reports of his Communist connections was "a move on the part of Mr. Delaney and his agents to draw a red herring across the issues at stake." He did not deny his active interest in the affairs of Communist organizations, but charged Mr. Delaney with carrying on "a campaign of terrorization." He asserted that section engineers in the Board of Transportation had called in engineers, dictated letters of resignation and under threats of immediate dismissal had ordered the men to sign.

FEVER VICTIM WEAKENING.

Physicians Despair of Finding Cure, but Continue Transfusions.

Another transfusion will be administered today to George Mosher, 14, of 561 West Fiftieth Street, who is fighting for his life against the dread black fever kala-azar at the Seaside Hospital, S. I., it was announced at the hospital yesterday. This will mark the ninth transfusion the boy has undergone since he was attacked seven weeks ago by this rare disease of the East that destroys the red corpuscles of the blood.

The boy's condition still remains critical. The doctors said yesterday there has been no improvement since the last transfusion on Sunday. Instead he appears to grow weaker each day. Following a consultation of the physicians at the hospital, it was said the patient cannot long survive. The doctors still hope that some one will come forward with a cure, but in the meantime they will resort to blood transfusions to prolong the lad's life.

Tests have been made of the blood of about twenty of the volunteers, it was said at the hospital, and in each case the test came up to requirements. Ten more men offered their blood yesterday, bringing the total of volunteers to 875.

Heflin Urges 3 for Farm Board.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Senator Heflin of Alabama today urged upon the President the claim of the South to two places on the new Farm Board. He suggested for places on the Board Charles G. Barrett of Union City, Ga., Edward O'Neill of Montgomery, Ala., vice president of the Federal Farm Cooperatives Association, and Joe Thompson of Birmingham.

NEW ARRESTS PLANNED IN JERSEY CITY VOTE

A warrant for the arrest of the four members of the election board in the Fifth District of the Second Ward of Jersey City is scheduled to be sworn out today by one of the defeated fusion candidates as a result of further disclosures in the ballot recount now in progress, according to Prosecutor Drewen.

When the box was reopened yesterday, fusion workers said, it contained no unused ballots, had three ballots more than the number specified in the poll book and exposed other irregularities in violation of the election laws. The fusionists gained an average of fifteen votes in the district and a total of sixty-seven for the day, the Sixth, Seventh and Eighth districts of the same ward yielding the difference. The largest single gain was in the Sixth District, where the fusion candidates received twenty-seven votes more than credited on the official tally sheets. Yesterday's gain gave the fusionists a total increase of 566 votes in forty-nine districts of a total of 239 in the city.

Under an order signed by Chief Justice Gummere of the New Jersey Supreme Court, the board of elections will this morning postpone further examination of the Jersey City recount until it completes a recount of the votes in the primary election in the entire city of Kearny and in the Second Ward of North Bergen.

Prosecutor Drewen said that the warrant for the arrest of members of the election board in the Fifth District in the Second Ward will be requested from Judge Thomas H. Brown. The arrest of the members of this board would make the sixteenth arrest of election board members since the recount started, on charges of conspiracy to violate the election laws.

ASSOLLANT GREETS HIS BRIDE AT HAVRE

COUPLE MOTORS TO PARIS

Local Reporters Are Amazed by Inability of Honeymooners to Talk to Each Other.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 26.—Mme. Jean Assollant, American bride of the Yellow Bird's pilot, reached Paris tonight by automobile from Havre, where she debarked from the liner Ile de France, and was met not only by her husband but by his two transatlantic flight companions, Rene Le Fevre and Armeno Lotti.

The three French fliers flew to Havre this morning from Le Bourget in a French military plane. Lotti and Le Fevre returned to Paris by plane after lunching with the bride and M. Assollant at Duclerc, near Havre.

When the pretty blond showgirl, who married the youthful Assollant a few days before the Yellow Bird took off, arrived at the Lotti Hotel, owned by Armeno Lotti's father, a large group of newspaper men and camera men were waiting for interviews and pictures. It was noticed the bride was an inch or two taller than her husband, and she tried to efface this difference in their heights by stooping whenever obliged to stand behind him.

She Is "Mad About France."

"I am just mad about what I have seen of France already," said Mrs. Assollant, "but I am dead tired now. I was so excited I couldn't sleep at all last night."

It was necessary for American correspondents to translate her brief remarks to the French reporters, who were astonished at the discovery that the honeymooners were unable to converse with each other. M. Assollant seemed somewhat annoyed at the advantage of the American newspaper men and abruptly terminated the interview, protesting that his wife was too fatigued to talk any more.

Despite Mrs. Assollant's exhaustion, she and her husband accepted an invitation to a dinner in their honor tonight at the Restaurant des Ambassadeurs, given by a committee of the Friends of France.

M. Assollant's parents were not at Havre or at the Hotel Lotti to welcome their daughter-in-law on her arrival in France.

Gets Plane Salute at Havre.

HAVRE, France, June 26 (AP).—Pauline Parker, now Mme. Jean Assolant, was welcomed to France with an airplane salute today while her husband and his two comrades of the Yellow Bird bent low and kissed her hand. When the Ile de France, bearing the American wife of M. Assollant, came into Havre, a military plane with M. Assollant's friends aboard flew to meet her and circled low while the gangplank was lowered to allow the American bride, her arms full of roses, to be the first to land and to be gathered into her husband's arms.

JAHNCKE LAUDS AIR TRAVEL.

Assistant Navy Head Ends 3,500-Mile Flying Inspection Tour.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—After a 3,500-mile air tour of inspection of naval stations between Washington and San Diego and on the Pacific Coast, Ernest Lee Jahncke, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, today telegraphed Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, that he was "tremendously impressed with the manifold advantages of this modern method of travel."

Mr. Jahncke reported he had reached San Francisco "after an air journey of 3,500 miles without mishap or delay," and praised the "efficient manner in which the flight was accomplished" by Lieut. Commander Ralph H. Davison, his aide, and Lieutenant W. G. Tomlinson, winner of the 1929 Curtiss Marine Trophy race.

C. F. JENKINS IN AIR CRASH.

Television Expert, Pilot and 3 Friends Unhurt Near New London, Conn.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 26 (AP).—C. Francis Jenkins, television expert, of New York and Washington, narrowly escaped injury to himself and three passengers today when he crashed in an airplane while making a forced landing.

Mr. Jenkins was flying to Boston from New York in his own plane with three friends. Near here he noticed his gasoline supply running low and glided for a beach. Unable to reach the beach, he glided between two houses and struck rocky ground. The engine was partly ripped from its base and the fuselage torn. No one in the party was injured.

BURNING WRECKAGE OF PLANE IN WHICH FRANCIS PHILLIPS DIED.

When the craft crashed, Henry R. Goldsmith, a friend of the young pilot, was pitched out far enough to enable rescuers to seize him and drag him from the flames, but Phillips was held by his safety belt and burned to death before rescuers could approach the debris.

as the emergency truck clanged across the field with the horde of visitors stampeding behind it.

Goldsmith was lying a few feet from the cockpit of the wrecked plane. His clothing was afire. Glenn Garrett, an employe of the Pioneer Instrument Company, which has an office in the Wies hangar, was one of the first to reach the scene of the accident. Tearing the clothes from Goldsmith's body, he poured oil and grease upon his burns.

Nothing could be done for Phillips. Held by a safety belt, he could not leave his seat of torture. Nor could rescuers reach him through the curtain of fire which enveloped him. Fire extinguishers were useless against the gasoline-fed blaze. Phillips's body could not be removed from the skeleton of the wrecked biplane until long after Goldsmith had been taken to the hospital.

Stepmother Collapses.

The body was taken to the Jones Funeral Chapel. Soon afterward, Phillips's stepmother, Mrs. Marion Phillips, who had been playing golf with friends, was notified by Frederick B. Curran, for years her husband's secretary. She hastened to the field and collapsed upon hearing details of the accident. She telephoned to her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Helen Baines Phillips, who with her 3-month-old baby was visiting her family in Philadelphia.

The young aviator's widow arrived in Hempstead a little after 9 o'clock and went directly to the undertakers. There she viewed the body and announced that the funeral would be held some time Saturday, probably from their home at Roslyn Estates, near Roslyn, L. I. The body will be placed in the mausoleum at Calvary Cemetery, where the elder Phillips's body lies.

Detective Andrew Tosto of the Nassau County police made a brief investigation of the accident. He learned from pilots on the field that the engine had not failed, as was at first reported. The way in which the bolts on the propeller were "sheared off" proved that the engine was running when the blades chawed into the turf. District Attorney Edwards visited the field, not to investigate the crash, he said, but because he was a friend of Goldsmith, who was 25 years old and lived with his parents and brothers at 33 Connecticut Avenue, Freeport. Mr. Edwards said he had aided Goldsmith in an unsuccessful effort to get into the Army Flying School at Kelly Field, San Antonio, Texas.

Recently Goldsmith won an appointment to Brooks Field, Texas, and was to have reported there for training soon. Meanwhile he was running a shop in one of the hangars at the field known as the "Rent-a-Chute" Corporation.

Phillips Known as Dare-Devil.

Phillips had been a licensed pilot for about a year. He learned to fly under the tutelage of Ray Kitchingman, a Curtiss Flying Service instructor, and was said to have made his first solo flight after six hours of instruction. Older pilots knew him as a bit of a dare-devil in the air, but considered him fairly expert at the controls. What he tried unsuccessfully to do in the Moth might have been accomplished in the larger and more powerful Stearman which he was accustomed to flying, they said.

Young Phillips played a minor rôle in the sewer scandal investigation in which his father and Maurice Connolly, former Borough President of Queens, were principals but at times it was spectacular. He achieved considerable notoriety last Winter when he made an airplane flight to Montreal, in an effort to recover securities which his father, before his death in Atlantic City of alcoholism, had placed in a safe deposit vault there. State investigators learned of the plan and had the vaults sealed before Phillips arrived.

The flier's wife was the former Helen Carroll Baines, a society girl of New York and Philadelphia with whom he eloped June 12, 1928. She is the daughter of Mrs. Louise Tattersall Thomson of Philadelphia. Phillips's mother, Mrs. Ellen Trudden Phillips, died several years ago.

SWEDISH FLIERS TRY AGAIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, June 26.—With a full load of fuel and a new propeller driven at full speed by a reconditioned engine, Captain Albin Ahrenberg and his companions at tempted tonight to continue their flight in the seaplane Sverige [Sweden] along the northern air-route to America.

Several times the airplane plowed its way across the surface of the harbor, but failed to rise. There was practically no wind and to this Captain Ahrenberg attributed his failure to get the machine into the air.

Weather conditions were reported to be ideal over Greenland and the Denmark Strait. Late tonight Captain Ahrenberg was making further adjustments and hoped to make another attempt to take off before morning.

LINDBERGH IN INDIANAPOLIS

He and Bride Fly From Columbus, Ohio, on Transcontinental Tour.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 26 (AP).—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived at the Mars Hill Airport here at 6:20 o'clock this evening after a flight from Columbus, Ohio. They will spend the night here.

Colonel Lindbergh is making an inspection of the airports along the air-rail line of the Transcontinental Air Transport Company. He will probably fly to St. Louis tomorrow.

Mrs. Lindbergh was greeted at the airport by Mary Ann Ketcham of this city, a classmate at Smith College.

Colonel Lindbergh had no comment to make on the death here this afternoon in an airplane accident of James A. Perry, president of the Curtiss Flying Service of Indiana, Inc. Perry had been waiting to welcome the Colonel this afternoon and had made a flight to another field. He was killed when his plane went into a nose dive as he took off for the return flight to the airport at which Lindbergh landed.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 26 (AP).—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and his bride took off from Port Columbus at 5:18 this afternoon for Indianapolis, the next stop on the coast-to-coast flight the Colonel is making in his tour of inspection of the transcontinental air transport rail-plane route.

PLANS NEW OCEAN FLIGHT.

Clarence Chamberlin Will Use Flying Boat Next Summer.

Special to The New York Times.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 26.—Clarence Chamberlin announced here today that he would pilot a specially built flying boat in an attempt to cross the Atlantic next Summer.

The plane, designed by the flier, is under construction at a Long Island aircraft plant. He revealed that it was radically different from the ordinary type of flying boat and said it represented the product of his experience in ocean flying.

He refused to go into details concerning the new plane, but said that he was through with land planes for ocean flights, explaining that the flying boat would enable him to settle down on the water with slight hazard in case of mishaps to make repairs and then continue a flight.

J. U. PERRY KILLED IN CRASH OF PLANE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 26 (AP).—James U. Perry, president of the Indianapolis American Association baseball club, was killed this afternoon when an airplane he was piloting crashed at Schoen Field, Fort Benjamin Harrison, twelve miles northeast of Indianapolis.

Perry had just taken off from the army post field. When his airplane was about a quarter of a mile from the field the motor stopped and the plane fell. Perry was dead when officers from Fort Harrison reached the wreckage.

Perry recently made his first solo flight. He was president of the Curtiss Flying Service, Inc. He had landed at Schoen Field a short time before the accident, having flown from the Mars Hill Air Port, west of Indianapolis, where he had been awaiting the arrival of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

ASKS PRIVATE FLYING DATA.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The Department of Commerce began today for the first time the task of collecting quarterly an accurate record of miscellaneous flying operations in the United States. The total from scattered reports was estimated last year to have reached 60,000,000 miles and is expected materially to exceed that figure for 1929. The reports now to be sought cover the second quarter of this year.

The blanks mailed today to the owner of every airplane in the United States, besides those used in regularly scheduled air lines, call for a comprehensive report of the operations of each of 5,000 planes used in miscellaneous flying during the quarter. In the future, according to F. J. Martel, chief of the Statistical Section of the Aeronautics Branch, all owners will be required to submit reports showing each type of flying engaged in month by month.

The quarterly report called for today asks data on the amount of dual flying for instruction purposes, experimental flying in tests, races, endurance flights and other operations of this type, and miscellaneous flying, including commercial flying for hire, and pleasure flying.

$70,000,000 AIR DEAL COMBINES THREE

"It is anticipated that an offer will be made to the stockholders of both Travel Air Manufacturing Company and Moth Aircraft Corporation, but time has not permitted the working out of the final details of their participation.

"A committee will shortly be formed which will call for the deposit of the stocks of the companies named above under a plan whereby negotiable certificates of deposit will be issued to the depositing stockholders. Under the plan the committee will have the right to declare the plan overative when in their opinion a sufficient number of shares of each of the companies have been deposited.

"It is expected that if the plan is declared effective there will be many economies made possible in the operation of the companies, and in addition the research work of the manufacturing companies may be concentrated in one or two of the factories and very greatly expanded.

"If the plan is declared effective the company will have a complete line of airplanes and motors, excellent distributing agencies and dealer organizations and the ownership of many of the country's finest airports.

"All of the existing organizations and their personnel will be kept intact, and all of the present types of military and naval motors and planes will be continued and developed.

"The meetings of the boards of directors of the various other companies will be called in the near future, and it is expected that the formal notice to the stockholders of all of the companies will be sent out within the next two weeks.

"Upon completion of the Curtiss Wright Corporation and its subsidiaries will have tangible assets in excess of $70,000,00. In view of the fact that the companies involved are in strong liquid position no new financing is immediately contemplated. The company will have no funded or other debt."

Many Manufacturing Units.

The new company will include a large number of manufacturing units and only one transportation unit, the Curtiss Flying Service. It will embrace the Wright company, which manufactures the air-cooled Whirlwind engine, which has been used on many record-breaking flights, and the Curtiss Aeroplane Company, which has specialized for many years in the manufacture of water and chemical cooled engines, in addition to air-cooled engines.

Economics in the distribution of the products of these manufacturing units are expected to result from the use of the Curtiss Flying Service as the domestic sales agency for the entire group, and the use of the Curtiss Aeroplane Export Corporation as the foreign sales agency. Through the suppianting of the distribution system of the Hoyt companies by the Curtiss sales system, substantial savings will result, it was said, since independent dealers were generally paid between 20 and 25 per cent of the retail sales price by the Hoyt organization.

Through the holdings of Mr. Keys and Mr. Hoyt, the new company will be identified with several large transportation systems, including the National Air Transport, operating from New York to Chicago and Dallas; the Pitcairn Lines, from New York to Miami, which Mr. Keys and his associates recently purchased; the Transcontinental Air Transport and the Aviation Corporation of the Americas, of the Hoyt group. These transportation systems will offer large markets for the company's planes and motors.

Other Companies May Join.

Both the Hoyt and Keys groups of companies have been loosely bound together. In the Keys group the companies were affiliated through the ownership of stock in various enterprises by Mr. Keys. In addition to the Keys companies included in the merger several others may be taken over by the new company at a later date, it is believed. Among these are the Douglas Company, Sikorsky Aviation Corporation and the Cessna Airplane Company.

To effect the merger of the companies which have already been designated as subsidiaries of the new holding company, 1,000,000 shares of the Class A stock and 6,500,000 shares of the common stock will be required for purposes of exchange. This will leave 1,000,000 shares of Class A and 3,500,000 shares of common available for the acquisition of other units.

The units in the new merger are among the oldest and largest in the aviation industry. The Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Company had assets of $12,385,770, while Wright had assets of $14,670,241 on March 31, and Keystone had assets of $4,642,565 on Dec. 31, 1928.

The new companies' chief rivals in the American field will be the United Aircraft and Transport Company, with assets last Dec. 31 of $25,603,954, and the Aviation Corporation of Delaware, which was organized early this year with $35,000,000 cash to acquire aviation companies.

Rumors yesterday connected the United Aircraft Company with several mergers. Aviation stocks were strong, Wright rising 7¼ points, Curtiss 1 and United Aircraft 4, while Keystone and Aviation Corporation were fractionally lower.

Pioneers in the Merger.

The merger rings together two of the pioneering names in world aviation. The Wright Company is the outgrowth of one of the earliest aircraft concerns in the world and takes its name from the first men to fly in heavier-than-air, powered flying machine, Orville and Wilbur Wright. However, the family long ago ceased to be identified with the company that bears the name.

The Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Corporation is also in the hands of successors to the founder, Glenn H. Curtiss, one of the early followers of the Wrights, who graduated into aviation from motorcycle speed racing. Of late years Mr. Curtiss, while keeping up a personal interest in aviation, has not been actively engaged in the industry.

In a true sense the history of these two companies is the history of American aviation. The Wright Aeronautical Corporation, through its J-5 Whirlwind and its immediate predecessor, a nine cylinder, radial, air-cooled engine, has been credited with the tremendous impetus aviation has received in the last two years. Three Wright Whirlwinds carried Commander Byrd and Floyd Bennett to the North Pole and back. Engines of the same type carried Colonel Lindbergh, Clarence Chamberlin, Commander Byrd and Brock and Schlee across the Atlantic in 1927, and drove the Pacific fliers safely to Hawaii and Australia.

Similar emphasis is placed on the development of the water-cooled aircraft motor by the Curtiss Company. The Curtiss D-12 and now the Curtiss 600-horsepower water-cooled twive-cylinder V type motors have been used extensively by the Army Air Corps for its pursuit planes and bombers.

The Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Corporation has two plants. One, at Garden City, L. I., is largely experimental, and besides a staff of skilled mechanics, running at times close to 1,000, there are 167 aeronautical engineers working there the year round. The company's manufacturing plant is at Buffalo.

The Wright Corporation has its central plant at Paterson, N. J., which is growing as fast as masons and iron workers can set up buildings and machinery can be installed.

In the foreign field both the Curtiss and Wright companies are active. The Curtiss-Reid Company, Ltd., of Canada is building sport model biplanes and is about to expand its line. There is also a Canadian Wright corporation for the manufacture of the Whirlwind and Cyclone motors. In Europe the Wright company is affiliated with the Hispano-Suiza Corporation, builders of fine cars and aircraft engines, and the Whirlwinds are now being turned out there for distribution all over Europe.

AIR ROUTE UNFOLDS PICTURESQUE SCENE

LANDING PLACES PLENTY

By T. J. C. MARTYN,
Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 26.—Under an almost clear sky, with the mighty St. Lawrence twisting into the distance like a giant length of shimmering ribbon, a Colonial Airways mail plane took off this morning from Montreal for New York, arriving at Albany on its schedule time of little less than two hours.

With the sky the limit for ceiling, G. G. Deater, pilot, was able to maintain a safe altitude of more than 2,000 feet, affording a clear view of the country for thirty or forty miles in all directions. The writer was the ony passenger.

Montreal Improving Airport.

At St. Hubert Air Field, Montreal's airport, about fourteen miles from the heart of the city, a big commercial airdrome is being built by the Dominion Government. The present field is small and inadequate, but when the project is completed there will be 700 acres of landing space, flat as a pancake, with eleven large hangars and a big hotel for air passengers.

The airport here also is in the construction stage. Colonial Airways provides a comfortable waiting room for passengers while mails are transferred and the plane is refueled. At present there are no refreshment facilities, but a restaurant soon will be established here.

The field is situated midway between Albany and Schenectady and is easily accessible from both cities by motor in about 15 minutes.

Travel by air is not only comfortable and pleasant, but safe, since it is possible to make forced landing almost any where on this route.

The going has been so smooth, in fact, that it has been possible to write most of this dispatch without difficulty while passing over the country 2,000 feet below. The noise of the engine is not disturbing once one's ears become accustomed to it, which takes only a few minutes.

Landscape Is Picturesque.

Moreover, there is much to interest passengers along the route. Green fields are there in infinite variety of patterns on all sides, some hemmed in by hills and forests, some studded with isolated trees. Roads twist and turn among towns and hamlets, like brown ribbon trailed indiscriminately over the countryside. Railroad tracks glisten in the sun, their beds black as ebony, curve in great sweeps.

The most beautiful sight this morning was in flying down Lake Champlain. Though much of the water looked muddy because the sandy bottom was visible, great stretches, sun-caught and wind-swept, looked like rough frosted glass.

The plane has just flown over foothills 700 feet below, a dense mass of foliage in a score of shades. These are zones of beauties which unfold themselves to the air traveler.

FLIERS STILL LOST AS SEARCH WIDENS

WRECKAGE REPORTS FALSE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, June 26.—The search for the plane of Major Ramon Franco and his three companions continued today in vain. The British airplane carrier Eagle and several Spanish destroyers explored the waters between the Portuguese coast and the Azores, while Spanish and Italian hydroplanes flew a considerable distance from Lisbon to aid in the search.

The British freighter Greldon arrived at Gibraltar, its master stating that a message which was supposed to have referred to sighting the wreckage of a plane had been misinterpreted and that he had encountered no wreckage, but had heard the noise of a motor Friday night.

As the sea continues to be calm and the weather fine, hope is still held that the plane may still be afloat.

Premier Thinks Today Will Tell.

MADRID, June 26 (AP).—Premier Primo de Rivera believes that one more day will determine, as far as man can, the fate of Major Franco and his companions.

"Tomorrow's searching should be considered nearly conclusive one way or the other, ending the enormous anxiety and uncertainty of all Spain from official circles down," he declared at a Cabinet meeting.

What little hope remained he thought lay in the fact that the smaller naval units and the British airplane carrier Eagle were due to search tomorrow the area considered most likely to have been the grave or haven of the Spanish plane.

Another flurry of hope came tonight when the Premier received what purported to be a report from the British Admiralty that one of its planes had sighted wreckage. No details were given and a check-up with the Admiralty revealed that it had not sent such a message and knew of no foundation for it.

A series of wild reports as to the whereabouts of the fliers, who disappeared Friday on the first leg of their round-trip flight from Spain to New York, complicated the search for them, in which five nations are now participating. They were variously reported to have landed in the Spanish West African province of Rio del Oro and on the coast of Scotland.

Major Franco's mother in Ferrol has been kept fully informed of all developments, but all news has been withheld thus far from his wife at Cartagena and from Captain Galarza's mother.

Aviation experts in Madrid differ in their opinion as to how long the plane can keep afloat, but the theory that the aviators landed in some remote part of the Azores rapidly lost strength today. The secrecy of the arrangements for the flight was so well maintained that the authorities are unable to say how large a supply of food the airplane carried, but it was thought to be small and would have been exhausted by now.

Two French destroyers were ordered to Coruna, Spain, today by the French Minister of Marine for instructions before joining the Spanish, Portuguese, English and Italian ships and airplanes already searching for the fliers between Portugal and the Azores. Lisbon is the base of operations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 26. — The Havas Agency published a dispatch tonight from Madrid declaring that Premier Rivera, after the Cabinet meeting, had announced that the British Admiralty had sent word that one of the airplanes from the plane carrier Eagle had sighted a wrecked airplane at sea.

"Wreckage" Proves Whale.

ABOARD S. S. MARQUES DE COMILLAS, at sea, June 26 (by radio to AP).—Hope that an object sighted from this vessel might be the missing plane was blasted when a change in course brought it within range of identification. It was a dead thirty-foot whale.

For two days, with all officers and passengers on deck watching the surface of the sea in all directions, this liner has steamed about the Azores. Searchlights enabled the vigil to be maintained at night. Constant radio communication was maintained with other vessels searching, but not a thing was found to indicate the fate of Major Franco and his comrades.

CANFIELD SHIFTED FROM ALBANY POST

HIS REGIME UNDER FIRE

Doran Expects Acting Successor, H. M. Dengler, to Clean Up Speakeasies and Dry Up Breweries.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Palmer Canfield, prohibition administrator in charge of the Northern New York district, with headquarters at Albany, will be relieved on July 1 and become legal Field Supervisor of the Northeastern States, according to an announcement made today by Prohibition Commissioner Doran, following conferences by Dr. Doran and Assistant Secretary Lowman of the Treasury with Mr. Canfield.

Harry M. Dengler, a field officer, who operates a mobile school of instruction for dry agents, will be made acting administrator at Albany, to remain until the district has been cleared up of speakeasies and illegal breweries. Not until then will a new and permanent administrator be appointed.

Mr. Canfield has been in hot water with his Washington superiors almost from the day that he was named administrator of the Northern district some months ago. Charges that breweries in Troy and other localities were making high-powered beer for customers in New York City, Western Connecticut and other districts were investigated by order of Commissioner Doran.

Agents sent from Rhode Island closed two breweries in Troy and Mr. Canfield was called for an explanation. He has made several visits to Washington since the middle of June.

Dr. Doran explained that Mr. Canfield's transfer "was in the interest of the service." He made it clear that no charges had been made that in any way reflected on the personal character of Mr. Canfield.

"Mr. Canfield is a lawyer and owing to his experience is in a position to render us good service in a legal capacity," Dr. Doran said.

Mr. Canfield was connected with the prohibition service under the old system of directorships in New York State. He retired from the prohibition unit when the regional system was established by General Lincoln C. Andrews, then Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of prohibition. Mr. Canfield took the civil service commission examination prescribed for administrators, passed it and was named for an office in that grade on the establishment of the Albany district.

Enforcement conditions in the Northern New York area have gone from bad to worse in recent months, according to Prohibition Bureau officials. It is considered likely that an intensive drive against bootleggers will start on July 1 when Mr. Dengler assumes office.

He has been in the prohibition service since its establishment under the Volstead act. Latterly he has been instructing field agents in methods of making seizures and searches and teaching them how to operate. He will resume this duty on his retirement from the temporary detail as acting administrator at Albany.

FORDHAM NEARS GOAL IN SOCIAL SCHOOL DRIVE

Only Few Thousand Now Needed to Complete $150,000 Fund Sought by End of June.

Fordham University, School of Sociology and Social Service, announced yesterday that it lacks a few thousand dollars of the $150,000 to be raised by the end of June to win an additional gift of $50,000 toward its endowment and maintenance fund. The school is seeking $500,000 for its endowment.

Cardinal Hayes, Governor Roosevelt and Lieutenant Governor Lehman are among those who have urged public cooperation in raising of the fund.

The school is located in the Woolworth Building, in which also Fordham University conducts one branch of its School of Law. Its work is to train social service workers, and the city's parole, probation and attendance officers.

The Rev. Matthew L. Fortier, Dean of the school, in announcing the conditional gift of $50,000, said yesterday: "The education and preparation the school gives to the city's parole, probation and attendance officers in specialized efforts makes this school a unique contribution to the public welfare and the efficiency of its government agencies.

"The modest tuition places the well-planned courses within the means of struggling youth and workers ambitious to improve their qualifications and efficiency for promotion and great public service.

SAVE TWO CHILDREN FROM BURNING HOME

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., June 26.—Preceded by an explosion that shook the West Norwalk district for half a mile, fire today destroyed the Summer home of William Elliott 2d, New York business man, in West Norwalk Avenue, just over the New Canaan line, causing a loss estimated at more than $40,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott, their son, William 3d, aged 4, a baby less than a year old, and a maid, asleep on the second floor, escaped in night attire. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott each carried a child.

Ten minutes later New Canaan firemen arrived and found no water near the premises. Soon afterward a second explosion blew a portion of the front of the house nearly 200 feet into a pasture. Then the house was burned to the ground with all its contents.

Investigation indicated that the fire had started when a gasoline stove in the kitchen exploded. The second explosion was that of a basement storage tank containing either gasoline or kerosene.

Liquor Seized Here to Go Down Special Sewer; Will Be Dilated First to Foil Pipe Tappers

Prohibition headquarters for the metropolitan area, now at 1 Park Avenue, will be moved about July 20 to the government-owned warehouse at 641 Washington Street, where arrangements have been made for disposing of seized liquor through specially constructed "rum-running" sewers.

The possibilities offered by such sewers have occurred to Prohibition Administrator Maurice Campbell, who said all plans for the new headquarters had been carried out by Treasury Department engineers in accordance with requirements he had specified. In announcing yesterday the coming change, Major Campbell said:

"On the second floor will be stored the seized liquor. This floor has been especially constructed for this purpose and has been divided into several rooms by bricked walls so that the entire floor is inaccessible from any other part of the building. A special elevator runs to this floor and a special street entrance has been provided.

"A feature of the new liquor storage space provides for the destruction of libelled liquors within the building itself, so that any seized liquor, once taken into the building, never goes out again except through specially constructed sewers, and so diluted with water that the alcoholic content of the sewers will never be greater than 1 per cent."

This would render useless the tapping of the "rum-running" sewer, although any person who might in any manner obtain and carry elsewhere some of its contents might be convicted of a felony, since 1 per cent alcoholic content is illegal and transportation of liquor is a violation of the Jones law. The "destruction" of seized liquor behind closed doors is another prohibition enforcement innovation. The law, however, demands that such destruction take place in the presence of a Deputy United States Marshal and prohibition agents. In the past the procedure has often been witnessed by many persons.

Major Campbell said the prohibition headquarters would occupy the entire first, second and ninth floors of the building, which covers the block bounded by Christopher, Greenwich, Barrow and Washington Streets.

The first floor will be used as a storage place for seized trucks. The entire ninth floor will be used for office purposes. It will furnish several thousand feet more of space than the headquarters on Park Avenue. The only reason for the move, according to Major Campbell, was that the warehouse, which was formerly the old Appraiser's Stores, is government-owned property. There will be no change in personnel.

"The New York prohibition headquarters will be the most perfectly planned of any in the country," said Major Campbell.

SCHRIEBER ARRIVES; SAYS HE'S NO HERO

Yellow Bird Stowaway, Back on Leviathan, Admits He Did Wrong.

APOLOGIZES TO HIS FATHER

Did Not Realize Seriousness of Situation, He Explains—Flies to Maine.

Arthur Schrieber, the 22-year-old youth of Portland, Me., who stowed away in the Yellow Bird when Armeno Lotti flew across the Atlantic and landed in Spain, returned yesterday as a first class passenger on the Leviathan of the United States Lines and was met at Quarantine by his father, Morris R. Schreiber, a furrier. The youth received a third class ticket in Paris for the Leviathan, but his father cabled $144 to enable him to travel first class. Later he boarded an airplane at Roosevelt Field and flew home to Old Orchard.

The youth wore a neat blue flannel suit on his arrival and had the riding outfit which he wore as a stowaway folded up in his small valise. There was no one to meet him at the pier and very few of the passengers on the Leviathan appeared to know he was on board.

Schreiber told the reporters that he had nothing more to say about his adventure and that his only ambition at the time was to get to Portland to see his mother. Asked if any of the crew of the Yellow Bird knew he was aboard the craft before it started, he replied "No."

When Schreiber's attention was called to clippings of cables asserting he had been a humiliation to America he said:

"Well, perhaps they are right. I did not consider the seriousness of the situation. I only went for a thrill. I do not regard myself as a hero and never made such an absurd statement that my ambition was to be a second Lindbergh. I only did what I think the average American boy would have done if he had had the opportunity."

Turning to his father Schrieber said, "I'm very sorry for all the worry I have caused you. I hope you will forgive me."

Both father and son denied that any contracts had been made for writing magazine stories or for theatre engagements.

PATHFINDER LANDS AT PORTLAND AIRPORT

PORTLAND, Me., June 26 (AP).—The monoplane Pathfinder, in which Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey expect to fly to Rome, landed at the airport here tonight after a flight from Roosevelt Field, L. I. The rough condition of the beach at Old Orchard, the starting point of the proposed flight, prevented a landing there.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., June 26 (AP).—Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey arrived over the beach here tonight from Roosevelt Field, L. I., in the monoplane Pathfinder. No attempt was made to land and after circling the beach the fliers headed north, apprently for the Portland airport.

PRAGUE GREETS KING FUAD.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PRAGUE, June 26.—For the first time since Czechoslovakia became a republic, royalty paid an official visit when King Fuad of Egypt arrived here this forenoon and was welcomed at the station by President Masaryk, Premier Udrzal and Dr. Benes, Foreign Minister.

The King rode beside the President in an open State car to Hradcany Castle, set aside as the royal headquarters.

The flag-decorated streets of the capital were lined by troops and a cheering crowd.

In the afternoon the King deposited a wreath on the grave of the Unknown Soldier and later he received the Diplomatic Corps.

Farmer Comes to Get His Son Slain by Gunmen in Bronx Hotel.

Folks stopped in the city streets yesterday to stare at a travel-stained hearse bearing a North Carolina license. Thick Carolina clay encrusted the wheels and hub caps and was splashed against the dusty glass behind which a coffin could dimly be seen. Up in the driver's seat was William Fortner Sr., who had come here to take his boy's body home.

Six years ago, when he was 18 years old, young Bill Fortner quit his father's farm, which lies eight miles out of Clinton, N. C. He joined the army and served three years in Panama. He was mustered out in New York when his enlistment ended. He worked at various jobs for a while, and some time ago became night clerk in the Hotel Allaire, at 980 Prospect Avenue, Bronx.

Last Monday morning three gunmen entered the hotel lobby; they were looking for some one. Whether it was Bill Fortner they sought the police do not know, but they shot and killed Bill Fortner and got away.

A few hours after the New York police notification of the death reached the little farm outside of Clinton, T. M. Farell's automobile hearse, the only one in town, started north through the Carolina mud. Bill's dad was in the seat, wearing his Sunday clothes: straw hat, black and white striped shirt, stiff collar with a dinky black bow tie and a blue suit. With him was his son, Bruce, and Dave Smith, Farell's driver.

They made good time coming north; left Clinton about 6 o'clock Monday night and reached the Bronx about 9 o'clock Tuesday night, making stops only for gasoline. They stopped at a city hotel and Wednesday morning called for Bill's body at Levin's, the undertaker, 165 East Tremont Avenue. They had one of Farell's special coffins.

"Bill used to write an' say he'd never come home till he had a pile of money," Mr. Fortner said, "but I'll bring him home to the farm, where his dad afore him, and his granddad afore me, growed up."

Tears were in his blue eyes and he looked tired. A sympathetic murmur from the little group of curious New Yorkers who surrounded the mud-spattered coach caused Bill Fortner to remove his shiny straw hat. He made a little speech.

"I hope you'll pray fur me an' my boy in our time of trouble," he said. "We're all gonna meet in a better place." He paused awkwardly and gulped. His brown, gnarled hand replaced the hat. Looking through a blurring mist he nodded to Dave. The dusty coach began to roll.

PEN CLUB AGAINST CENSOR.

Meeting at Vienna Also Calls for 50-Year Copyright.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, June 26.—The assembly of the International Pen Club, under the chairmanship of John Galsworthy, passed a resolution today for the abolition of the censorship existing in some countries under the pretense of the protection of youth.

The club requested also revision of copyright laws to extend for fifty years instead of the present thirty years and abolition of all hindrances to the free circulation of books. The assembly proposed that the League of Nations establish a yearly prize for the best book about the aims of the League of Nations.

The club decided to abolish racial qualifications for membership and to substitute cultural attainments.

EDUCATION EFFORT BY DRY UNIT HELD UP

"The government needs the help and cooperation of every teacher from Maine to California and from Washington State to Florida in developing a consciousness of the proper attitude toward this law and all laws," the writer of the pamphlet stated in its introduction. "The Bureau of Prohibition would be glad to know of any successful plans or experiments concerning the teaching of the subject."

Teachers were advised to insert problems in arithmetic courses which would show the benefits attributed to prohibition.

The pamphlet outlined the methods by which dry propaganda could be taught in civics, English, social studies, drawing, current events, character education and in the use of scrap books.

"The varying aspects of the Eighteenth Amendment may be fitted into the course of study in many educational ways," the pamphlet states.

Among the slogans suggested for posting in conspicuous places in the public and high schools were:

"Obedience to law is protection."

"Law enforcement is good. Law observance is infinitely better."

"When we outlaw an evil, we bring into being the strongest possible weapon against that evil."

"Is prohibition a success? Ask the bankers. Ask the Salvation Army. Ask the social workers. Ask the mothers. Ask everybody."

Representative Schaefer, dry Republican, of Wisconsin declared that if prohibition were to be taught in the schools both sides of the question should receive a hearing. Otherwise, he contended, it would be manifestly unfair not only to the cause of truth but to the children themselves.

"And if they teach both sides, the dark as well as the bright," Mr. Schaefer said, "it won't be very elevating for the children."

Members of the Board of Education of the District of Columbia were loath to express themselves on the merits of the Prohibition Bureau's plan of education.

However, one of them, the Rev. F. I. A. Bennett, made this statement:

"The Constitution is an instrument of nineteen amendments. I believe it ought to be taken as a whole. In other words, I think the children should be taught respect for the law rather than respect for any special phase of the law. Unless this is done, I shall vote against any proposal to teach prohibition in the schools."

JERSEY PLATFORM LAUDS DRY INQUIRY

Tentative Republican Plank Pledges Support to Hoover in Prohibition Stand.

WET RESOLUTION REJECTED

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 26.—Although the platform adopted yesterday by the resolutions committee of the New Jersey Democratic Convention denounced prohibition as productive of crime and lawlessness and demanded a referendum on the repeal of the State enforcement act, the resolutions committee of the Republican Convention, in the tentative platform made public today, lauded President Hoover's investigation of prohibition as it exists and pledged support to the President.

The committee rejected a plank offered by Mrs. Natalie Pierrepont of Far Hills calling for a referendum on prohibition and for an appeal to Congress for legislation that would permit each State to regulate the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors within its borders. It also rejected a bone-dry plank offered by G. Rowland Monroe of Newark, counsel for the Anti-Saloon League.

Nine plans are contained in the tentative platform. Summed up briefly, they are as follows:

1. Pledges unqualified support to Hoover for farm relief and higher tariff.
2. Praises Governor Larson for keeping his pledges to stop pollution of Jersey's beaches by filing Federal suits, and for his move to settle the water supply and boundary dispute with Delaware in similar fashion.
3. Pledges full participation of women in the councils of the party.
4. Praises Governor Larson for appointing commissions to revise the election laws, reclaiming the waste meadow land of the State; for starting an audit of State departments with a view to increasing economy; for appointing a water policy and school and educational survey commissions; for legislation to eliminate grade crossings; for increasing the funds for rural roads; for amending the banking and insurance laws; for appointing a business manager for the Executive Department; for the creation of a women's and children's bureau in the State Labor Department and for creating a flood-control commission.
5. Lauds Hoover's investigation of prohibition and pledges support to him.
6. Pledges survey of judicial system; fostering and development of agriculture; simplification of legislative procedure; "continuance of present efficient and humane management of State institutions"; regulation of aviation; "preservation and strengthening of civil service"; urges "adequate punishment for malfeasance in public office," and "assertion of the State's right to demand and receive an account of their stewardship from public servants, and suppression of and adequate punishment for defiance of the lawful authority of State"; pledges promotion of intermunicipal and intercounty projects; pledges prevention of incurring public obligations in excess of appropriations; pledges fight against lighterage and car floatage discrimination; pledges consolidation of cities only by majority consent and State aid in prevention of coast erosion in cities; pledges cooperation with all veterans' welfare organizations, and recognition of all citizens without regard to race, creed or color; continued support for labor; protection of forest reserves and urges Congress to speed up the construction of waterways linking New York Bay to Delaware Bay.
8. Promises a commission to revise the election laws; urges the changing of the date of the primary from the second Tuesday in June to the third Tuesday in May and the permissible use of voting machines.
9. Advises the Legislature to consider the effect of workmen's compensation laws on the employment chances of persons more than 40 years old.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, June 26.—Marietta Millner, a film actress, who played in Hollywood several years ago, died today from tuberculosis in Baden, near Vienna.

The doctors who attended her believe that her death was due to extreme dieting.

Prohibition enforcement brought to the fore yesterday Frank Principe, who gave up his freedom for his friend. His misguided effort, however, served only to place his friend in greater jeopardy and himself in jail for ninety days.

When the prohibition case against Antonio Perry, 1,074 Southern Boulevard, the Bronx, and Louis Porter, 1,035 Old Street, the Bronx, was called before Federal Judge Edwin R. Holmes, Porter pleaded guilty to maintaining a nuisance and possessing liquor at 220 St. Nicholas Avenue and Principe, answering in the name of his friend Perry, said he wished to stand trial.

Two prohibition agents informed Judge Holmes that Principe was not Perry, Principe, apparently not at all surprised, admitted he was merely a friend and next-door neighbor of Perry, for whom he had appeared in the belief that his action was entirely legal. Perry, he said, was in Europe.

Principe was sentenced to ninety days in jail for contempt of court, Perry's bail of $1,000 was ordered forfeited and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest on his return to this city. Porter was fined $100 on his plea of guilty.

The men came into court without counsel. Judge Holmes assigned Nathaniel J. Harbin to represent them. Mr. Harbin was as much surprised as Judge Holmes when Principe admitted he was merely trying to help a friend.

900 SWEDES IN RUSSIA TO BE REPATRIATED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, June 26.—Nine hundred inhabitants of Swedish birth in the village of Gammalsvenskby, near Odessa, are going to be transferred to Sweden and settled as farmers in the province of Scania. They will be conveyed by a special train through Rumania and Germany and are expected at Stockholm about the middle of July.

This wholesale repatriation is a result of representations by the villagers themselves, and the Soviet Government facilitated the removal as a tribute to the Swedish Red Cross for its assistance to Russia during the great war.

A national collection is planned to defray the cost of the repatriation, estimated at 2,000,000 kroner (about $500,000), while the Red Cross is organizing the transportation and colonization.

ENDS LIFE FROM BOAT.

F. G. Farland Jumps Into Hudson and Balks Rescue Attempt.

Felix G. Farland, 38, head of the Farland Trading Company of 1,141 Broadway, committed suicide by jumping from the ferry boat Hopatcong, into the Hudson River about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, as the boat was about 150 feet from Pier 5, Hoboken, bound for Twenty-third Street, Manhattan.

August Schumacher, pilot of the Hopatcong, stopped the vessel immediately, and a rope was thrown to Farland, who refused to grasp it. Attempts to reach him before he drowned were unsuccessful. His body was recovered.

Written on a card found in Farland's hat was a request that the authorities notify his brother, Morris J. Farland, 1,201 Gilbert Place, the Bronx. The police notified the brother who identified the body.

A considerable sum of money was found in Farland's coat, which he had removed before jumping from the boat.

W. J. MAIER ACCEPTS STATE LEADERSHIP

LAUDS RECORD OF PARTY

William J. Maier, Seneca Falls banker, was unanimously elected chairman of the Republican State Committee yesterday to succeed H. Edmund Machold, who presented his resignation several weeks ago.

Chosen without opposition when W. Kingsland Macy, Suffolk County aspirant, withdrew from the race and delivered a harmony talk seconding Mr. Maier's nomination, the new chairman in his acceptance speech wasted no time in opening fire directly at Franklin D. Roosevelt. He charged the Democratic Executive with inconsistency for terming the Republican-dominated Legislature "do nothing" and at the same time taking credit for its achievements. He also called him a "political Governor."

The State committee meeting, held in the National Republican Club, was well attended by members from all parts of the State, including many prominent party leaders.

Proceedings moved swiftly, with hardly a single jarring note. The leaders had agreed on Mr. Maier the night before at a dinner given by National Committeeman Charles D. Hilles, and when the committee members assembled at noon to vote every one knew that Mr. Maier was the choice.

Machold Explains Resignation.

Mr. Machold, said to have been chief sponsor for Mr. Maier, spoke briefly, expressing regret that business pressure made his resignation necessary. He also spoke of the enjoyment he had experienced during his period of service and said he was ready to jump in and help again whenever needed.

Representative Hamilton Fish of Putnam County placed Mr. Maier in nomination with glowing tributes to his ability.

When Mr. Fish sat down and Mr. Macy rose to deliver the seconding speech this too came as no surprise. It had been intimated after the Hilles conference that Mr. Macy might withdraw in the interest of harmony rather than bring a forlorn fight to the floor. His promise to support Mr. Maier was received with a burst of applause. Colonel Lafayette B. Gleason, committee secretary, polled the vote by counties.

In a few moments Mr. Maier came in from a rear room on crutches, which, like Governor Roosevelt, he is compelled to use, and took the chair.

Mr. Maier in his acceptance speech said that he was accepting the position with great reluctance because he knew the demands it made upon its incumbent, necessitating neglect of personal affairs. However, he said, he was in the habit of "obeying the party will." Then he leveled his fire at Governor Roosevelt, saying:

Assails Roosevelt Record.

"The outlook of the party in this State at this time is very bright. The Legislature, at its last session, made a record of constructive achievement that has seldom been equaled. Governor Roosevelt has attempted in one breath to belittle its accomplishments and in the next breath to take unto himself all of the credit for the Legislature's work, but the record of the year 1929 at Albany speaks louder than any political argument, and I am convinced that the public knows what the record is.

"If I were called upon to say what those achievements were, I would recall that the Legislature increased the exemptions in the personal income tax instead of granting a flat 20 per cent reduction, as recommended by the Governor, thus helping the taxpayer of moderate means instead of giving most of the benefit of tax reduction to the wealthy.

"I would point out that it was the Republican Legislature which adjusted the unfair tax burden borne by the small up-State communities which hitherto have assumed more than their fair share of the cost of maintaining a great system of State highways and more than their fair share of educating the youth of the State—although, to be fair, I should give full credit to Governor Roosevelt for signing these measures with his complete endorsement.

"If called upon further to say what were the constructive achievements of the Republican Legislature, I should recall the compete revision of the old tenement house law, for the benefit of those in moderate circumstances who live in New York City.

"I should recall the revision of the public welfare law, an accomplishment which has been characterized by the State Charities Aid Association as 'an outstanding historical event in welfare work in this State.'

"I should recall that the Republican majority broadened the workmen's compensation law to include practically every occupational disease known to be attributable to industrial employment. The Legislature did away with the direct State tax on real estate. It revised the motor vehicle law and provided for a uniform system of traffic lights throughout the State. It revised the decedent estates law—a monumental task. It passed a general revision of the lien law. It passed a general revision of the corporation law. It passed Baumes crime commission laws, simplifying judicial procedure. It facilitated the elimination of dangerous grade crossings in New York and upstate.

"Never has there been such a session of the Legislature, and I say this despite the efforts of a political Governor to make it appear that this was a 'do-nothing' Legislature.'"

Mr. Maier went on to laud the cooperation among the Republican leaders and the policies and leadership of President Hoover.

Machold Hails Party Harmony.

Mr. Machold said in part:

"In turning over this chairmanship to my successor, whom you will choose here today, I am happy to say that with very few exceptions harmony exists in all the counties of the State and our organization is prepared to go forward with real constructive work. I am also glad to report to you that there are no debts of the State Committee and that there is a surplus in our treasury."

Mr. Machold referred briefly to the controversy between Governor Roosevelt and Republican leaders over methods of financing increased hospitalization for the insane. He said in part:

"The policy of the Republican party has always been a constructive one and great progress has been made in this State under its leadership, and I know we will continue that kind of a policy. I have in mind the care of the unfortunate wards of this State. A comprehensive plan looking ahead to the ultimate solution of the question will certainly meet with the approval of our people. This great State is able and willing to provide all of the facilities necessary. Our people only ask that it be done in a businesslike and economical manner."

Fish Assails "City Graft."

Mr. Fish called Mr. Machold one of the best chairmen the Republican party in the State had possessed. Mr. Maier, he said, was eminently fitted to carry on the work.

"We owe it to President Hoover," he declared, "to select the best man to lead the State. We must take the State out of the hands of the unfaithful servants who permitted thousands of poor people to put their hard-earned money into the City Trust Company. And not only in the State must we be active but in the city, where for two years past there has been a record of graft and payroll padding."

Mr. Macy spoke for only a few moments. He said: "I would have accepted for the good of the party, but I understood that at a meeting last night certain matters were decided. A unanimous pary is needed in this State. I and my friends are all good Republicans and I am sure will support Mr. Maier and the party to the utmost."

The only hint of any discord of the routine of the meeting expired quickly when Mrs. Kathryn Rall of Rennselaer offered a resolution calling for the immediate selection of a national committeewoman to succeed Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, who resigned several months ago. Mrs. J. D. Clark of Albany seconded the motion. A vote to table it met with no opposition.

The following new State Committee members were approved:

ALLEGANY—Benjamin J. Rice of Friendship.
DUTCHESS, Second District—Frank L. Gardner, Poughkeepsie.
KINGS, Seventeenth District—Walter E. Corwin.
MONTGOMERY—John Rosney, Amsterdam.
NEW YORK, Twelfth District—Mathew A. Henkel.
QUEENS—Mrs. Mildred Klarman.

On motion of Herbert N. Straus, State Treasurer, the committee authorized appointment of an assistant treasurer with power to act for the treasurer in his absence. The meeting then adjourned.

Mr. Maier is 52 years old. He has spent much of his time in New York City during the past few years. He was educated in the Seneca Falls schools and at Mynderse Academy and was graduated from the Albany Law School in 1900. He was elected to the Assembly in 1904 and served until 1916, when he resigned to become Fiscal Supervisor of State Charities. He became Deputy State Controller in 1917 and Controller in 1922. He operates a dairy farm and is a director and principal stockholder of the Seneca County Trust Company of Seneca Falls. Since 1923 he has been vice president of R. F. De Voe & Co., investment bankers of New York. He is a Presbyterian.

ROOSEVELT CALLS HOSPITALS PARLEY

Will Confer Next Tuesday With Republican Leaders on $50,000,000 Bond Issue.

SAYS HIS MIND IS OPEN

Result of Meeting Likely to Determine Question of Special Session of Legislature.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 6.—Whether there will be an extraordinary session of the Legislature to consider a bond issue of $50,000,000 for the construction of new State hospital facilities probably will be determined next Tuesday at a conference of State leaders, Governor Roosevelt announced today.

He stated that he had invited the Republican legislative chiefs and his advisers to confer with him then, in the hope of reaching an agreement on a method of financing new hospitals that all are agreed must be built to take care of the constantly mounting number of insane persons.

It is believed that the Governor's announcement was prompted in part by the one made yesterday by Tohmas M. Lynch, president of the State Tax Commission, that the State's ince tax revenue had increased about $20,000,000 this year and that other revenues had risen accordingly.

The Governor invited Lieut. Gov. Lehman, Controller Tremaine, Mr. Lynch, Senator Knight, Speaker McGinnies and Senator Hewitt and Assemblyman Hutchinson, chairmen of the Legislature's fiscal committees, to the conference.

"I have invited these gentlemen to go over all of the figures of receipts and disbursements of the fiscal year which ends June 30," said the Governor, "to go over the estimates of receipts for the coming fiscal year and check them against the estimates of receipts and disbursements for the following fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1930. All of this is in connection with the needs of the State for additional hospital facilities and other public works.

"I sincerely hope we can arrived at an agreement as to the best method of financing the needs of the State and the laying down of a program.

"Do you believe that the bond issue is the best method," he was asked.

"I am not going to express a personal opinion until I have talked with these gentlemen," he replied. "In other words, I am going into the conference perfectly open-minded."

Those Republican legislative leaders invited by Governor Roosevelt to attend a conference on Tuesday to discuss a State hospital building program intend to be present, Eberly W. Hutchinson, chairman of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee, said here yesterday.

Mr. Hutchinson said he would go to the conference with an open mind.

"Under the circumstances, it would seem that there is a large surplus and that there is no need for a bond issue for increased hospitalization for the insane wards of the State," he said. "It would seem as though this could be taken care of through current revenue. But I am going in with an open mind and if they can show me facts, I'm willing to accept facts. But facts they must be. I assure you, however, that my mind is entirely open."

BRINKMAN SENTENCED AGAIN AS 'FENCE'

Disbarred Lawyer Gets 2 Years More as Receiver of Stolen Securities.

An additional sentence of two years in Sing Sing was imposed in General Sessions yesterday on Israel Brinkman, 42 years old, disbarred lawyer, of 2,966 Briggs Avenue, the Bronx, for his second conviction for criminally receiving stolen securities. Judge Koenig rejected the plea of Brinkman's lawyer that the sentence be made concurrent with the one of two and a half to five years imposed on Brinkman last March.

After his first sentence Brinkman obtained a certificate of reasonable doubt from Judge Donnellan and is awaiting a decision on his appeal to the Appellate Division. His counsel announced yesterday that a similar appeal would be made from the second conviction.

In a report to Judge Koenig yesterday Edwin J. Cooley, chief of the Probation Bureau, said that Brinkman was suspected of having handled $180,000 in securities which had been stolen from messengers of brokerage firms in this city and also part of $100,000 in securities obtained by safe robbers several years ago from the Central Union Trust Company in St. Louis.

His indictment with two other men in 1925 followed the discovery that Brinkman had pledged the stolen securities with banks in this city as collateral for $100,000 in loans. The specific charge on which he was sentenced yesterday was in connection with the theft of about $20,000 in securities from a messenger for Leigh C. Trumbull & Co., brokers at 150 Broadway.

PROPOSES SURVEY OF OUTDOOR SIGNS

PRESENTS IDEA AT BOSTON

Listing of Securities Explained at the National Convention of Real Estate Men.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 26.—Direct appeal to the Department of Commerce to investigate the outdoor advertising situation and recommend methods for its control was suggested by Ward Gifford of Kansas City, chairman of the outdoor advertising committee, at a conference on the subject today at the convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Mr. Gifford announced his suggestion as a step toward eliminating undesirable forms of outdoor advertising. If the committee concur, he will lay the suggestion before the board of directors of the association and on their approval appeal to the Federal Department.

Meeting with the real estate men were Mrs. Elizabeth Lawton of the American Nature Association and the General Federation of Women's Clubs of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Arthur Lisle of East Greenwich, R. I., of the Garden Club of America; Florence A. Paul of the York (Me.) Committee for Restriction of Outdoor Advertising; Robert Wolcott of Boston, representing the Massachusetts Bill Board Events Committee and the Massachusetts Civic League; Albert H. Bard of New York City, representing the National Committee for the Restriction of Outdoor Advertising; I. W. Digges and William B. Beehan of the General Outdoor Advertising Association; Harlan James of Washington, D. C., of the American Civic Association, and C. H. Sampson of the North Shore Garden Club of Massachusetts.

The representatives of these various organizations advised solution of the outdoor advertising problem through beautification of the highways under State supervision and county zoning, State licensing of outdoor advertising and city ordinances.

Through a report of the committee for the restriction of outdoor advertising, the conference was informed of a plan of the New Jersey civic organization to present a bill for the enactment of legislation at the next session of the Legislature.

"In the United States the investor looks for salable securities, in the form of stock with a speculative possibility; at the same time he hopes to find the sound investment," Cyrus C. Miller said in an address before the mortgage and finance division.

"So rapid is the rise in values of some localities in our cities by reason of shifting population or wise improvements that speculative possibilities of securities based on properties in such locations may be considered a certainty," he continued. "The fundamental soundness of real estate investment has long appealed to the public. There remained some method for making available real estate securities which would be quickly salable, of accumulating value and in small denominations.

Such was the purpose of the establishment of the Real Estate Board of New York Exchange, Inc., as outlined by Mr. Miller.

"The idea of an exchange for real estate securities is not a new one," he went on. "For twenty years various groups of bankers, mortgage dealers, operators and others have discussed the subject.

"The annual capital requirements to finance real estate operations a year in the United States have reached the large total of $12,500,000,000. Of this amount perhaps $500,000,000 should be deducted as being represented by their exchange for real estate, leaving $12,000,000,000 to be financed yearly by cash, mortgages or contract.

"It must be evident that the capital requirements for such operations must be met more and more by the sale of securities to the public."

Mr. Miller told the realtors that before a security could be traded in on the floor of the Exchange it must be listed. When an issue was presented to the Exchange for listing it was referred to the listing committee. The latter decided whether the securities on which the issue was based were adequate for this purpose. It had the real property appraised by appraisers of the real estate board of the city in which the property was located. Their names were a guarantee of good faith and ability.

In addition, the financial condition and the financial history and personnel of the person or corporations offering the issue for listing were investigated.

If the data given satisfied the listing committee the issue was allowed to be bought and sold on the Exchange.

GEORGIA PUBLISHER THREATENS EXPOSURE

Lavarre Warns He Will Reveal Facts of Newspaper Deal Unless Injunction Suit Is Dropped.

AUGUSTA, Ga., June 26 (AP).—William Lavarre, defendant in an injunction suit brought by his partner, Harold Hall, for operating control of The Augusta Chronicle and three South Carolina papers they own, said today he did not wish to issue any statement except that "if the injunction proceedings are not withdrawn either by Mr. Hall or the International Paper Company that the whole story of the deal will be included in my answer."

"They have demanded that I turn over all the stock and money to Mr. Hamilton," Lavarre declared. "Unless that matter is stopped I will give the whole history of the deal. I do not wish to do that because it would be an explosion."

Hall and Lavarre borrowed $870,000 from the International Paper Company and bought The Augusta Chronicle and three South Carolina newspapers, The Columbia Record, Spartanburg Herald and Spartanburg Journal. Yesterday Hall stopped a meeting of the board of directors and stockholders of The Augusta Chronicle by an injunction and court order appointing Thomas J. Hamilton, editor of The Chronicle, as temporary receiver.

Mercury Held Superior to Water for Steam; Seen as Next Great Power Producing Agency

Turbines using the steam of mercury instead of water are the latest achievements in the engineering problem of obtaining the maximum energy from coal, Alfred D. Flinn, director of the Engineering Foundation, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street, announced yesterday in a report on research in this field.

Mr. Flinn says mercury power has been successfully harnessed, and will be the next great vassal of humanity, with energy-generating properties far superior to those of water. He describes man's successive advances in the utilization of water power, steam power and gas power to do his work.

To bring under certain and safe control this molten metal that boils at 675 degrees and whose vapor is poisonous is a feat which has taxed the inventive genius of engineering units, Mr. Flinn says. The higher temperatures and correspondingly greater heat fall of mercury is responsible for its greater power, he explains.

"At the very moderate pressure of seventy pounds on the gauge, mercury vapor has a temperature of 884; at 180 pounds, a temperature of 1,000," he says. "High temperatures can be had without excessive pressures.

"Mercury differs from water in other properties. It weighs 13½ times as much; it does not wet steel, the usual material for power boilers; it is expensive; its vapor is poisonous; it oxidizes readily.

"Several other liquids which boil at high temperatures were tested to determine their suitability for the same application. After extensive experiments it became evident that mercury was the only practical liquid for supplementing water as a thermodynamic fluid in connection with the generation of power from coal.

"A type of boiler promising reliability in service having been developed, a combined mercury and steam power unit was built for the Hartford Electric Light Company and put into service in 1923. This was the first mercury-vapor power installation in the world.

CLOAKMAKERS READY FOR CALL TO STRIKE

Walkout of 30,000 Appears Imminent as Workers Get Preparatory Order.

The imminence of the strike call to be issued to 30,000 cloakmakers was indicated yesterday in the union order that all the workers, even those at present out of employment, report to the shops daily beginning yesterday to await the walkout order to be issued by President Benjamin Schlesinger. There was considerable speculation in the trade concerning the exact date and hour of the strike order. Union officials declined to discuss rumors that the strike might be called today or tomorrow.

Directly upon the issuance of the order to cease work the cloakmakers will repair to fifteen halls where they will be instructed further on the issues in the strike and their duties as pickets. Full power to call a strike has been vested in an advisory committee headed by Mr. Schlesinger, head of the international union.

Strike committee heads reported at Webster Hall yesterday that all was in readiness for the general walkout in protest against what they describe as the return of the sweatshop, the piecework system, the forty-two-hour week and unreasonable discharge of shop chairmen. Their demands include restoration of the unemployment insurance fund, certification of shops and increase in wages.

Dressmakers met last night and agreed to make financial contributions to the striking cloakmakers. Boston cutters yesterday assessed themselves 10 per cent of their wages every week during the strike as their contribution to the strike fund. The Boston cloak union has called a meeting of Boston labor in which American Federation of Labor locals will participate to devise means for support of the strikers.

HOPE FOR CADET SHIP FADES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, June 26.—The mystery of the missing Danish training ship Kjoebenhaven, the world's largest sailing vessel, was believed today to have been cleared up when the East Asiatic Company received a cablegram from the steamer Mexico, which has been searching the South Atlantic.

It reported that the Mexico arrived in Tristan da Cunha, whose inhabitants, when shown photographs of the Kjoebenhaven, recognized her as the vessel they had seen drifting southward past the reef in January. She had one mast down and was deep in the water astern and from the fact that she flew no signals it is believed she had already been abandoned by the crew.

It is now recognized here that there is no hope for her complement of sixty-seven men and boys, many of whom were representatives of the best Danish families. She was last heard from on Dec. 21, a week after she set sail from Buenos Aires for the East Indies and Australia.

development of labor-saving and time-saving machinery, the steeping up of per man productivity and many other factors have served to make American manufacturing the wonder of the world. According to figures from the Bureau of the Census, we have increased the physical output per man employed in the manufacturing industry by 50 per cent in the last twenty-five years. This is equivalent to an industrial revolution.

Denies Middleman Is Profiteer.

"But although the costs of production have been continually lowered by those methods the costs of distribution have been increasing. We hear from all sides serious complaints regarding the cost of getting commodities from producers to consumers.

"Some years ago these complaints took the form of criticism of the so-called middleman. Today we are realizing that these increased costs are not due to profiteering by the middleman, but in reality to the increase in the actual cost of doing business.

"Not only that, but the increased efficiency of production itself, resulting in what we call mass production, has created new problems in distribution. In the mad scramble to secure markets for an ever-increasing output, many wasteful and uneconomic processes have grown up. In addition new methods of distributing merchandise are being tried out. Among these may be mentioned chain stores, mail order houses, cooperative wholesale buying, instalment selling and a host of others. As a result, our whole system of distribution is in a state of flux.

More Information Needed.

"One of the reasons that we have not made more progress in increasing the efficiency of distribution is the fact that we have relatively little comprehensive information about the movement of commodities. We have in this country very excellent governmental and private statistics of production of all kinds of commodities. But we practically lose sight statistically of every commodity once it is produced."

Secretary Lamont spoke of studies and analyses of distribution costs undertaken in the grocery business in Louisville, Ky., "to find out what the distributer spends his money for, what it costs to sell, deliver and collect for individual items and what these particular services add to the cost of distribution." He said the research revealed profitable and unprofitable operations offsetting one another and other weaknesses which showed the value of the proposed distribution census.

"Within the next ten days," Secretary Lamont said, "the Department of Commerce intends to ask a representative committee of business men to advise and help the Census Bureau in the taking of this new census of distribution. The census will be of value just to the extent of the helpful interest that is taken in it by the merchants of the country. I realize now, as never before, the importance of filling out government questionnaires and sending them in promptly."

Booth Pledges Cooperation.

Willis H. Booth, president of the association, assured Secretary Lamont of the cooperation of the member merchants and added that they had already initiated similar studies of the distribution problem.

The speaker was introduced by Lewis E. Pierson, chairman of the board of the Irving Trust Company, after George B. Cortelyou, president of the Consolidated Gas Company, had been introduced as the first Secretary of Commerce and Labor to sit in the Cabinet.

"In these days of rapid transition," said Mr. Cortelyou, "we need in the Department of Commerce precisely the type of American business man of wide experience that we are so fortunate to have there now."

and Queens District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe had agreed on the warrant to block release of any of the five material witnesses. Those held were:

EDWARD L. LEWIS of Boston, known as "Boston Louie."

MARY SEIDEN, 19 years old, a dancer, known as "Mickey of the Rendezvous," a night club in which Marlow once had an interest.

They were examined at headquarters until 5 A. M. by Mr. Whalen and Deputy Chief Inspector Edward Mulrooney.

"They told conflicting stories," Mr. Whalen said. "They undoubtedly know with whom Marlow went away. Their memories were splendid up to the time they came out on the street and saw the two men and the car. Then their narratives conflicted.

Witness Changes Story.

"Coppa, for instance, denied that he had driven Marlow and Lewis to the race track that afternoon. He denied everything until we showed that we had information. Then he admitted driving the party down to the Aqueduct track."

The commissioner said that Lewis came here from Boston on June 16 on what he characterized as "a mysterious mission." The Boston man registered at the Hotel President, in West Forty-eighth Street, later moving to the Half Moon Hotel at Coney Island.

Seigel, who is a friend of Lewis, joined him at the Coney Island hotel. Seigel lives with his mother at 2,002 Surf Avenue, about two blocks from the hotel. Seigel and Lewis checked out of the hotel on Monday morning.

Tip on Race Went Wrong.

Commissioner Whalen said that Lewis was invited to accompany Marlow to the race track on Monday afternoon. Marlow, it was reported, had a "hot tip" on Senator Vasquez Bello in the second race. Lewis put $2,700 on the horse to win. It finished sixth. The party for the track assembled at the Victoria at 12:30 P. M.

Marlow was in Wilson's room at the hotel when Lewis, Seigel and the Seiden girl arrived. Coppa, driving a Packard sedan, called for the party and drove them to the track. After San Vasquez Bello came home in the ruck the group motored back to the Victoria. The party separated, Marlow, Coppa and Wilson remaining at the hotel, where a number of long-distance calls, some to Boston, were put through.

Lewis, Seigel and Miss Seiden returned to the hotel at 6:30 P. M. Lewis, the only one in the group with spare cash—Marlow having been "broke" for a year—invited Marlow to join them at dinner in Coppa's restaurant, La Tavernette. The police interviewed two waiters, George Derusso and Joseph Pope, who said the party was at table from 8 to 9 P. M. When the party ended Coppa remained behind, while Wilson, according to Mr. Whalen, went into a telephone booth to make a call.

Lewis, Seigel and Miss Seiden walked to Broadway, where they turned south, leaving Marlow at the corner. The girl, after several yards, retraced her steps to say good-bye to Marlow. She said Marlow was talking to the two men and she changed her mind.

Commissioner Whalen said that Lewis had a police record, having been arrested on an assault charge here by the State troopers, and that he had served a term for picking pockets. Wilson, the commissioner said, denied that he had ever been arrested until confronted with a Rogues Gallery picture, taken seventeen years ago.

The police learned that on Tuesday $3,500 had been telegraphed to Lewis by some one in Boston. Commissioner Whalen expressed keen interest in this, and said that it was one of the major problems his men in Boston were trying to clear up. Another financial negotiation the commissioner was seeking to plumb was Marlow's recent efforts to negotiate for the purchase of a brewery in Bridgeport, Conn.

A "stab" wound found on Marlow's right side after his death was the scar of a recent operation. Marlow had been in a sanitarium, taking treatment for tuberculosis. The operation was for the relief of empyema, induced by the disease, detectives learned from the physician who performed it.

Witnesses Questioned in Queens.

All these facts were in the hands of the police before Lewis and his companions were taken over to Queens and lodged in the Hunters Point station, where Inspector Gallagher and others began to question them. The interrogation went on without a break from 8 A. M. until noon.

Then two detectives with hand bags came out and caught a train for Boston. They were Detectives David Daly and Thomas Caputo. Their particular mission was to trace the $3,500 telegraphic remittance to Lewis. Shortly after their departure Lewis was brought out alone. He was taken to the office of District Attorney Newcombe and a few minutes later arraigned before County Judge Frank F. Adel.

Lewis, who is about 45 years old, with gray hair and a short, broad figure, stood before the bench. Assistant District Attorney Thomas Thornton appeared for the State. Judge Adel asked Lewis if there was any reason why he should not be held as a witness.

"I gave myself up voluntarily," said Lewis.

"The District Attorney says you were with Marlow until forty-five minutes before he was killed. Is that right?"

"Yes," said Lewis, "I was with him all day long, until just before he was shot."

Assistant District Attorney James A. Dayton joined Mr. Thornton at the arraignment of the others. Miss Seiden was weeping. Her eyes were red and tears had streaked a rather heavy make-up. She wore a blue beret, tan coat, white pongee dress, light gray hose and tan pumps. She, too, was asked if there was any reason for not holding her. She nodded her head affirmatively, but seemed unable to speak. The bail was set for her.

Coppa came next. He is dark and heavy-set. He was scowling. He made no response to the judge's question.

Wilson, the ex-middleweight champion, was called to the bench. He has grown heavy since leaving the prize ring.

"I told them all I know, your Honor," he said, and the judge fixed the same heavy bail. Wilson said his business was running a restaurant and managing fighters.

Seigel, slim and tall, with long dark "sideboards" in front of his ears, was decidedly nervous. He offered no reason for not being held. Miss Seiden was sent to the Fifth District Jail in West Fifty-fourth Street, Coppa to the jail in West Fifty-third Street, Wilson to the Tombs. Seigel to Raymond Street Jail and Lewis to the Long Island City Jail.

"We want to keep them as far apart as possible," Commissioner Whalen said.

John Doe Warrant Obtained.

The John Doe warrant was obtained by Inspector Gallagher and Detective Albert Boller from Magistrate Marvin in Long Island City court. Inspector Gallagher refused to discuss the warrant, as Boller disappeared with it. Commissioner Whalen, however, robbed it of its significance by his explanation that it was a precaution to prevent the release of any of the witnesses.

Lewis's release, however, will be sought this morning. Arthur Adler of 151 West Fortieth Street, Manhattan, attorney retained to represent him, said after conferring with Lewis in the Long Island City jail. Adler appeared for Miss Helen Morgan, when she was acquitted several weeks ago on a Federal charge of selling liquor in her cabaret.

"Lewis's bail of $50,000 is exorbitant and beyond all reason," said the attorney. "Lewis gave himself up voluntarily. He came to my office yesterday afternoon and told me the whole story. I told him to call the police and tell them to come and get him. He waited in my office until the detectives came and questioned him.

"He gave them all the information he had. He made no effort to conceal any information and now he is clapped into jail in $50,000 bail. I am not going to try to bail him out. I am going down to see Commissioner Whalen and if that fails I am going to get him out on a writ."

Car Found in Brooklyn.

After the fixing of bail in Queens the action in the case shifted back to Manhattan headquarters, where detectives brought the blue sedan found at South Fourth Street and Marcy Avenue, Brooklyn. The machine had been stolen at 2 P. M., on June 23, from Louis Fried, Inc., real estate operators, at 144 East Eighty-sixth Street, Manhattan. The wheels of the car were covered with mud and there was other evidence of hard driving.

Shortly after the car was brought to headquarters, the slain man's widow, Mrs. Minnie Curto of Bellport, L. I., appeared. She retains Marlow's right name of Curto. She was accompanied by her brother-in-law, Frank Barbaro of 217 Elizabeth Street, and by her brother, John Provenzano, who lives next door to Barbaro. She told Inspector Mulrooney that her husband was often "away on business," the nature of which he did not confide.

Next, and starting the questioning of Broadway characters, came Larry Fay, night club operator and taxicab magnate; Bill Duffy, also of the night clubs, and Jack Sharkey, bantamweight of five years ago. They were all smiles when they left headquarters after thirty minutes of questioning. Fay said that he had been in Atlantic City over the week-end, and Duffy knew nothing of Marlow.

Victim on Bad Terms With Capone.

Mr. Whalen refused pointedly to disclose the police theory as to the motive for the murder. He said that he understood that Marlow and Scarface Alphonse Capone, Chicago beer gang leader, now in a Philadelphia jail, had not been friendly since the slaying of Frankie Yale, or Uale, a year ago in Brooklyn, because he became too ambitious in beer-running. But, the commissioner added, there was nothing to link the death of Marlow to Capone.

"The contact in this case," he said, "is between New York and Boston. There are at least fifteen persons in Boston we are anxious to question, including some questionable characters with whom Wilson was seen last month when the whole gang went up to see Marlow's fighter in a bout with Jim Maloney." Marlow's fighter, an Italian heavyweight, won from Maloney on a foul. Detectives were not inclined to put much stock in reports that Marlow's death might be traced back to the bout. The reports had it that the fight had been "fixed."

Supreme Court Justice Strong in Brooklyn said yesterday that he had no recollection of having issued a pistol permit to Marlow under the name of Gandolfo Curto in 1922, as reported by the police.

Boston Racketeer Sought.

BOSTON, June 26.—Michael Rocco, known as "Mickey the Wise Guy," debonair Boston gangster, was being sought throughout the city tonight by Boston and New York police for questioning in the murder of Frank Marlow.

The police here said that Rocco was seen in a Flushing Avenue lunch room in Brooklyn shortly after Marlow had been killed.

Four New York detectives are hunting Rocco here. Two other racketeers are also being sought. The police say that Rocco drove here from New York, arriving Tuesday.

The New York authorities gave the Boston police considerable information over the long distance telephone tonight. They prophesied that there would be reprisals in the Marlow murder and that killings would include persons identified with the alcohol trafficking. Several of the names mentioned were those of bootleggers in Boston, Nantasket, Cambridge and South Boston.

The New York police apparently believe the slaying of Marlow was the result of his activities in connection with his Belgian alcohol business in New York. It is said that during his stay here Marlow made many friends and that he succeeded in winning over a number of customers in Boston and vicinity.

A Boston friend of Marlow's said that Marlow was on his way to Philadelphia at the time he was killed. The man who furnishes this information is sure that Marlow's Philadelphia trip had something to do with Al Capone's move for release from prison there. The man talked with Marlow in New York June 13, he said, and Marlow told him he had to go to Philadelphia to straighten out a business deal.

Dolores Farris Collapses in London —Unable to Play Part.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—Miss Dolores Farris, who is playing in "The New Moon" in the Drury Lane Theatre, collapsed in her dressing room this evening when she received a cablegram announcing that her friend Frank Marlow had been killed in New York.

"It's a lie," she said to newspaper men when shown a dispatch describing Marlow as "a wealthy bootlegger and gambler." Miss Farris added that "Frank would never get mixed up with gangs of that kind."

"He's the only man I ever loved and the squarest man I ever met," she declared. She was unable to play tonight and was removed to her apartment in a hysterical condition. She came to London specially to play the rôle of Julie and made a successful début.

REPUBLICAN APPEAL DRAWS THOMAS'S FIRE

The appeal to Republicans for funds for The National Republic, to aid in upholding the administration and in fighting radicalism was characterized yesterday by Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Mayor, as an attempt to "trot out the Red bogy man."

In a statement issued from Socialist headquarters on the appeal which had the endorsement of Dr. Hubert Work, former national chairman and Senators Watson and Burton, Mr. Thomas said in part:

"The mighty Republican party, once the party of Abraham Lincoln, is reduced to so low an estate that it has to trot out the Red bogy man to scare rich suckers with more dollars than sense into contributing $10 quarterly to the official party magazine, The National Republic, thereby supporting Mr. Hoover and fighting radicalism! This appeal is endorsed by the eminent Dr. Work, retiring chairman of the Republican National Committee, and by Senator Watson, who cuts a serio-comic figure as official leader of the Republican majority of the Senate, and others.

"The appeal suggests certain questions that President Hoover might like to answer. For instance, is his party's constructive record so bad, his tariff mess he is in so unsavory, that to divert attention it must shout 'red menace'? When he talks to Prime Minister MacDonald about peace and the size of navies will he preface his remarks with a sermon on the necessity 'of meeting and checking the growth of dangerous demagogism and socialism' which so excites his friends? On all sides it is admitted that Ramsay MacDonald's victory was a victory for peace. And MacDonald is a Socialist. Let the President explain how far his friends speak for him."

SEEKS 6-CENT SUGAR BY TARIFF INCREASE

WORKERS BACK SHOE DUTY

Union Official Says Industry Faces "Life and Death" Struggle Due to Imports.

PLEAS ON WOOL PRESSED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Arguments for and against proposed higher tariff duties on sugar and wool and the imposition of duties on boots and shoes, hides and leathers featured sessions today of various subcommittees of the Senate Finance Committee, now engaged in whipping the Hawley tariff measure into shape for presentation to the Senate when that body reconvenes on Aug. 19.

It was the first day of the sugar battle, so far as the Senate is concerned, and the debate was lively. Domestic sugar producers, led by former Secretary of Agriculture William N. Jardine, supported the higher rates carried in the House bill, asserting that these rates would afford relief to not less than 100,000 farmers engaged in the production of sugar beets in Colorado, Utah and other Western States.

At the same time that a subcommittee headed by Senator Smoot was considering the sugar problem the subcommittee on the wool schedule heard more arguments for and against the higher rates on wool carried in the bill as it passed the House, while a committee dealing with the sundries schedule got its first testimony on the hides and leather proposals.

Manufacturers as well as workers went on record for the projected duties on leather and leather products, the Boot and Shoe Workers Union going so far as to assert that unless shoes and boots are put on the protected list the American industry faced a "life-and-death" struggle.

Many at Sugar Duty Hearing.

The contest on the sugar tariff drew a crowd of witnesses, many from the Philippines and from Cuba, Porto Rico and other West Indian sections.

Under existing law, imported raw sugar is taxed $2.20 a 100 pounds, except that from Cuba, on which the levy is $1.76 a 100 pounds, and that from American possessions, which enters duty free. The House bill would impose a rate of $3 a 100 pounds on imported sugar except from Cuba, which would be taxed $2.40. Sugar from the Philippines, Porto Rico and other American possessions would still come in free.

Part of the controversy over the sugar tariff concerns black-strap molasses, a by-product of cane sugar and used as a source of industrial alcohol. Farming interests who want corn used for alcohol manufacture urge a high duty upon black strap, now taxed only one-sixth of a cent a gallon, a rate which the House left unchanged.

Mr. Jardine appeared under the auspices of the United States Beet Sugar Association.

Pointing out that the special session had been called to relieve agriculture, he said one way to do this was to aid the 100,000 farmers whom the Federal Government had encouraged to raise sugar beets, and who were now $79,000,000 behind in payments to the government on reclamation projects. The government, Mr. Jardine said, had showed its interest in beet sugar production by appropriating $230,000 to fight an insect pest.

"This country has built up its property under a protective tariff, right or wrong," Mr. Jardine said.

When asked what were the prospects for domestic cane and beet sugar eventually supplying this country's demand, he said:

"Give us a duty that will bring 6-cent sugar and the Western sugar factories will pay the beet sugar farmer $8 to $8.50 per ton and we will show you how to produce more sugar in the United States."

He said sugar was now selling at below the pre-war price level and that the American consumer should not object to sugar at 6 cents a pound. When Senator Connally of Texas asked if the export debenture plan would aid the farmer, Mr. Jardine said he wanted to see the present farm relief bill tried out first.

Frank A. Dillingham of New Jersey, representing the Association of Sugar Producers of Porto Rico, objected to a provision in the House bill raising from $1 to $3 a ton the duty on sugar cane. He said this would be prohibitive for Porto Rican sugar, but Senator Smoot asserted that a Porto Rican factory made $345,000 in one year by importing cane from Santo Domingo at $1 a ton and shipping raw sugar to the United States.

According to Mr. Dillingham, all Porto Rican factories lost money on sugar last year. He favorcd the rate of 2.40 cents a pound on Cuban sugar, but said such a rate against Porto Rico would destroy the sugar industry there.

Mr. Dillingham estimated there would be a drop of about 144,000 tons, to 600,000 tons, in the Porto Rican crop this year, largely because of the September hurricane. He commented that the 20 per cent preference given to Cuban sugar meant a $30,000,000 bonus for Cuba on last year's crop.

Three Oppose Rise on Blackstrap.

Three witnesses, Representatives Hudson and Clancy of Michigan and John H. Caldwell of St. Louis, opposed any increase in the duty on blackstrap molasses.

Mr. Hudson asserted that the proposed tax of "from 8 to 10 cents or even higher per gallon of blackstrap" would advance the price of alcohol to more than $1 a gallon, affecting its use for medicinal and industrial purposes. He said that the use of industrial alcohol had increased from 1,780,276 wine gallons in 1917 to more than 90,000,000 wine gallons in 1928.

"The proposed tax, if levied," said Mr. Hudson, "would put an added cost on practically every article in daily use so varied has become the use of industrial alcohol in industry.

"Forty million gallons every year go into anti-freeze for the automobile owner. This means $40,000,000 levied on that one class of the American consumer if the proposed duty is imposed. The important pharmaceutical trade, the varied cellulose industries, our varnish, paint and shellac industry, dyes and cosmetics are dependent upon a plentiful and cheap supply of industrial alcohol."

Mr. Hudson also referred to the extensive use of industrial alcohol in the motor, airplane and rayon industries and its use in national defense for smokeless powder and poison gases.

On the other hand, W. R. Ogg, assistant manager of the American Farm Bureau Federation, urged a duty of 5 cents a gallon on blackstrap molasses, as well as a rate of 3 cents a pound on Cuban sugar and 3.75 cents on world sugar importations. He advocated abrogation of the reciprocal duty which gives Cuba a 20 per cent preference on sugar and suggested tariffs on Philippine and Porto Rican sugar.

Druggists' Spokesman Opposed.

E. C. Brookmeyer, for the National Council of Retail Druggists and the National Beauty and Barber Supply Dealers Association, opposed the increase on black-strap molasses. He said an amendment by Senator Broussard of Louisiana to raise the duty from one-sixth of a cent to 4 cents a gallon would increase the cost of ethyl alcohol 15 cents a gallon.

"The assumption that an increase in the duty on non-edible black-strap molasses would redound to the benefit of the farmer is erroneous," Mr. Brookmeyer stated. "Corn would not replace molasses as the raw material for the manufacture of alcohol, as supposed, because alcohol may be made with chemicals and gases cheaper than with corn if black-strap molasses is displaced by an increase in the duty.

"The farmer not only would not benefit by the use of corn for the manufacture of alcohol but he would be compelled to pay a higher price for medicine and no less than 5,000 different articles of commerce in the manufacture of which alcohol is used."

W. L. Crouse of the National Wholesale Druggists' Association made the same contention.

Representing domestic cane sugar refiners, John A. McCarthy of the Pennsylvania Sugar Company said that under present conditions it was virtually impossible for American refineries to compete with those in the West Indies.

"If you are going to promote American industry," he stated, "you must prevent the present importation of refined sugar," he said.

When Senator Smoot interrupted to ask if he would prefer a direct duty on refined sugar, Mr. McCarthy assented. He then suggested a differential of 60 cents per 100 pounds on refined sugar above the charge on the raw material, and in the case of Cuba a charge of 48 cents.

Before leaving the stand Mr. McCarthy asked the subcommittee to ascertain if it was not possible to raise the rate on imported sugar candy, which, he suggested, might be washed of its color, "and thus you have sugar coming in at three-quarters of a cent duty instead of the regular rate."

C. D. Welsh, with interests in Cuban, Philippine and American sugar factories, told the committee he had lost $1,000,000 in a Philippine operation in trying to raise cane on new land. Senator Watson and Senator Harrison endeavored to ascertain Mr. Welsh's specific recommendations, but he laughed and said:

"Don't you want to see one man who is not asking for something?"

He conceded that if the domestic sugar industry was to be maintained a tariff was necessary.

Felix Cordova Davila, delegate in Congress from Porto Rico, objected to the increased rate on sugar cane. He advocated a duty of $1 a ton for the first 200,000 tons and $3 a ton thereafter.

Senator Smoot is working out a tentative "sliding scale" of tariffs on refined sugar which would start at about $1 a 100 pounds and rise to $3. The Senator stated that his scheme was only tentative and would be presented to the Finance Committee later in the week.

May End Wool Hearings Today.

The subcommittee having in charge the wool schedules had a busy morning and worked at top speed. So far as public hearings are concerned this committee may terminate its work tomorrow.

The first witness it heard was W. Franklin Hobbs of Boston, president of the National Association of Woolen Manufacturers, who challenged two of the principal demands of the wool producers, the first being a proposition to set up testing facilities at the three principal ports of entry—New York, Boston and Philadelphia—which he said would "clog" trade; and, secondly, the proposal to increase the duties on wool waste—that is, noils, rags and other by-products.

Mr. Hobbs declared that if rates on waste were increased from 8 to 25 cents a pound, as asked by the producers, the compensatory specific duty on fabrics in which reworked wool is used should be increased to at least 50 cents a pound, with a proportionately higher ad valorem rate. The lower rates carried in the bill as it passed the House were satisfactory, he said. By-products should carry rates proportionate to their value to the raw wool.

Speaking of the woolen and worsted industries as a whole, Mr. Hobbs said that the industries had slowed up in recent years and that in the revising of the tariff along the lines suggested by President Hoover they were entitled to favorable treatment at the hands of Congress.

He argued for increased duties on yarns and woven fabrics in general. The "catch-all" rate in the wool schedule should be fixed, Mr. Hobbs suggested, at 50 cents a pound and 60 per cent ad valorem, instead of the proposed straight 50 per cent ad valorem rate.

Alban Eavenson of Camden, N. J., speaking for the wool scourers, urged a differential of 3 cents a pound on scoured wool. The rate carried in the House bill, which is 24 cents a pound, should be increased to 26 cents a pound, this being necessary, he added, to maintain this branch of the industry.

George McGeachin of New York said that the duties fixed in the House bill for pile and woven fabrics, tapestries and upholsteries were high enough and he opposed any increase.

Joseph W. Randall of Philadelphia asked that camel's hair be placed on the free list, while Joseph F. Lockeet of Boston, appearing for carpet manufacturers, told the committee that the 3-cent differential urged by Mr. Eavenson would double the burden of the carpet manufacturers, and for that reason should not go into the bill.

Hides, Leathers and Shoes Up.

The subcommittee on sundries heard a wide range of arguments on the question of imports of hides, leathers and boots and shoes. Under existing law, these are on the free list, and, as in the case of the proposed higher duties on sugar, the plan to add them to the dutiable list is certain to start a battle when the bill reaches the Senate floor.

Thomas O'Hare of Boston, representing the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, who pleaded for the duties, said that imports of shoes threatened the market for domestic footwear.

"These importations," said Mr. O'Hare, "are increasing to an alarming extent, largely because foreign manufacturers have adopted the American system of mass production and at the same time are enjoying the advantages of cheap labor. Meanwhile exports of American-made shoes are decreasing.

"The question of a duty is one of life and death for the industry in this country. Of all the industries, it is the one which faces the most serious threat at this time."

Asked what rate he thought would be justified, Mr. O'Hare said he thought 35 per cent ad valorem would be about right.

F. E. Mullin of the American National Live Stock Association advocated the transfer of hides and leathers to the protected list. Mr. Mullin said that the proposed rate of 10 per cent ad valorem was not enough. He suggested a rate of 6 cents a pound on "green" and 10 cents a pound on "dry" hides. E. B. Spiler of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association and Robert Hamblett of the National Live Stock Producers' Association took the same position.

The committee also heard arguments on rates for corkboard, used in the manufacture of refrigerators. Machias Riesler of New York, who represented this industry, opposed the proposed duties. There is no cork grown in this country, John K. Johnston of Wilmington, Del., appearing for the Laminated Bakelite Manufacturers, told the committee a duty of 25 per cent was needed against German competition.

Harrison Wants Hoover's Opinion.

Senator Harrison of Mississippi, the Democratic member of the subcommittee on sugar and molasses, said late in the day that, in his opinion, President Hoover should at once inform the Finance Committee where he, the President, stood on the tariff measure.

"By so doing," said Senator Harrison, "the President could not only save weeks, if not months, of time, but could relieve the suspense of business and incidentally a lot of public anxiety.

"When the Agricultural Committee of the Senate reported the so-called farm relief bill with the debenture feature a part of it, the President took occasion to send its chairman, Senator McNary, a letter which was promptly given to the press, calling the committee's attention to the President's objection to the debenture plan.

"Every few days, or even more often, word comes in an 'authoritative,' though not in a public way, that the President will veto the tariff bill if the rates are too high or the revision too general.

"Senator Smoot, chairman of the Committee on Finance, in a discussion with Senator Robinson of Arkansas on the floor of the Senate on June 14, committed himself to a general revision of the tariff.

"It seems to me that, if the President has any intention of vetoing the bill or any direct views regarding the tariff contrary to those that are now under way, he should make them public so that the Committee on Finance may act accordingly. The public's interest can be best served by the President giving notice now rather than having all this time wasted.

"If it is the President's intention to veto the tariff bill, as we so frequently hear, he should send a letter to the Finance Committee, stating that the bill should be limited to certain schedules and an indication of such limitations, also his views as to any increase in rates, or the changing of any rates on existing schedules. He should take the Finance Committee and the country into his confidence and let the tariff work proceed in the fullest light possible."

Frear Assails Sugar Increases.

Representative Frear, Republican, of Wisconsin, has written to all Senators protesting against increases in the rates on sugar.

"A few cents' increase on the 12,000,000,000 pounds of sugar consumed by the American people is measued by $120,000,000 for every cent of increase," he said. "Domestic sugar production is only one-sixth of all we consume. The Great Western Sugar Company, which produces one-half of our domestic sugar, is not in need.

"Thirty million agricultural consumers of sugar are to be squeezed out of a 'few cents' annually to help weak mills. The only remedy is by a straight bounty and that the beet sugar people, including the Great Western, have not approved, for possibly good reasons."

Steel Men for "Free" Manganese.

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP).—An upward revision in the duty on manufactured iron and steel products and the removal of the duty on manganese was advocated today by John A. Topping of New York, president of the American Iron and Steel Institute, before the Senate finance subcommittee considering the metal schedule of the tariff bill. Mr. Topping said the duties on raw steel and iron materials were burdensome and that they should be removed.

"On manganese ore particularly," he declared, "we feel that the duty imposed by the tariff act of 1922 is enormously burdensome and entirely without justification from any possible point of view."

L. E. Block, chairman of the board of directors of the Inland Steel Company of Chicago, also appearing for the American Iron and Steel Institute, also urged the adjustment of the 1922 act with regard to the fixing of the compensatory tariff on ferro-manganese if manganese was placed on the free list.

Mr. Block said that since 1922 imports had amounted to about eight times the domestic production and the manganese duty had cost the steel industry $45,771,328.

State Publishers End Meeting.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 26.—The State Publishers' Association concluded their two-day meeting today with a business session at which reports were read. William Skinner of the New York Central, L. B. Palmer, general manager, and W. J. Mathey, traffic manager of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, made addresses. Russel Hathaway, Albany correspondent of The Associated Press, addressed the State members of that organization.

EAGAN TO ADMINISTER STEINHARDT ESTATE

Letters Denied to Two Creditors of Bankruptcy Lawyer Who Killed Himself.

Letters of administration on the estate of David Steinhardt, ousted trustee and receiver in bankruptcy and alleged embezzler of about $500,000 in bankruptcy cases, were issued to Public Administrator James F. Egan yesterday by Surrogate Foley. The court held that Mr. Egan was entitled by law to prior consideration and rejected the applications of two creditors of the decedent, who committed suicide in Philadelphia on April 19.

Mrs. Anna Steinhardt, the widow, and a daughter, Grace Evelyn, 18 years old, who live at 300 West 108th Street, are his legal heirs but took no part in the proceeding.

The creditors who applied for the letters were Mrs. Minnie Katzman, a widow, 300 Riverside Drive, who asserted she gave Steinhardt $13,480 to invest, and Philip Munter, a former lawyer, of 1,355 Union Street, Brooklyn, who said he loaned the decedent $3,500 and was never repaid.

Mrs. Katzman asked the court to appoint her and William Koerner, an attorney who represents other creditors, as co-administrators so they could begin an action in Supreme Court to restrain four insurance companies from paying any of Steinhardt's insurance money to Mrs. Steinhardt. They would also ask the court, she said, to determine the amount of the insurance to which the widow is entitled. Mrs. Katzman said the insurance called for "many thousands of dollars" and could be purchased by the payment of $500 in annual premiums.

BOLT HITS PRUSSIAN DIET.

Flame Appears Like Modern Handwriting on the Wall.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 26.—What looked like the handwriting on the wall of the twentieth century occurred today at the plenary session of the Prussian Diet. When two delegates were hotly arguing over a trifling matter there was a sudden thunderous crash and a huge flame ran down the wall behind the president's chair.

After the house had recovered from the shock it was discovered the roof of the building had been struck by lightning. Nobody was hurt, but the two combatants did not resume the debate.

CHIANG SAYS FENG WILL LEAVE CHINA

President Declares Yen Will Command Northwest Now That Marshal Has Resigned.

GENERALS BLOCKED WAR

Leaders Opposed Chiang's Punitive Campaign, Threatening Secession From Nanking, It Is Reported.

By HALLET ABEND.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, June 22.—If, as now appears likely, Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang decides to leave China, the Nanking Government will have the brightest prospect of unifying China that any government has had for more than the last decade, for, with the Hankow faction defeated, Canton apparently firmly held and Feng out of the picture, Nanking would be twice as strong as it was a year ago immediately after the capture of Peking. If Feng goes abroad it will be from mixed motives, one of which seems unquestionably to be his determination not to shoulder the responsibility of a new war which would bring appalling suffering upon millions in his territory who are already subsisting on the hunger line.

Another motive that would induce Feng to leave is the state of his health. He is reported to wish to get to America for expert medical attention. Once he has left he is not likely ever again to be a powerful factor in Chinese affairs, for the kidney disease from which he suffers has already resulted in heart enlargement and dropsical symptoms, it is reported.

Feng Demands Back Pay.

Despite his condition Feng is adamant in refusing to desert his supporters. He demanded $30,000,000 to pay the arrears due to his troops but seems finally to have accepted $3,000,000 for this purpose and a personal grant of $200,000 for traveling expenses is said to await him the day he sails from Tientsin.

There are many rumors, apparently emanating from Nanking, seeking to make it appear that Feng has been abandoned by many of his Generals and shorn of power, but the fact is that he is still powerful enough to have caused Nanking considerable loss of face by insisting that he would remain unless the order of his arrest were publicly canceled. This cancellation has been officially announced. Many of the supposed desertions of Feng's Generals, observers declare, are in reality ruses by which these adherents, in avowing loyalty to Nanking, have turned their military zones in Honan into buffer areas into which Nanking troops cannot penetrate without fighting their new "allies," thus giving Feng time to consolidate his positions in Western Honan and Eastern Shansi, as well as concentrate along the southern border of Shansi, thus assuring himself against attacks from General Yen Hsi-shan.

Yen's Position Difficult.

The same Generals who are now supposedly disloyal to Feng less than a month ago destroyed bridges and tunnels on the Peking-Hankow Railway, giving Feng time for a safe withdrawal. General Yen Hsi-shan's position is extremely difficult, as his Shansi armies are now strung along the railway and the Great Wall to Peking, south along the Hankow line to the Shihchiachuang junction with the narrow gauge line into Shansi, and northwestward to the Peking-Suiyuan Railway. Yen is not able to abandon any of these lines without endangering his hold upon the Peking-Tientsin area, and he has no surplus troops to guard the southern border of Shansi against Feng, who could easily march north to capture Taiyuan-fu, the Shansi capital, with a prize in the form of the best arsenal in China except Mukden.

This situation, rather than friendship for Feng or support of Nanking, has inspired Yen's efforts to arrange a truce. Every day the opponents of President Chiang Kai-shek's policy of seeking to unify the country by force have been gaining strength, as shown by the refusal of the plenary session of the Nanking Executive Committee to meet Chiang's demand for a punitive mandate against Feng.

Chiang's Plans Opposed.

More serious was the joint opposition of General Yen Hsi-shan, Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, Tang Shen-chi, Fang Chen-wu and other generals to a punitive campaign against Feng which a few days ago resulted in the drafting of an "armed arbitration" mandate, the text of which is not available, but which, it is understood, in thinly veiled language warned Chiang Kai-shek against launching a new war and which virtually threatened the secession of these commanders from Nanking if he persisted in the war plan. This mandate, if published, would automatically alienate all territory north of the Yangtse except the Hankow area from Nanking's control and would renew the tragic hostility between north and south, for, except at Hankow, Chiang Kai-shek does not possess strong enough forces save those directly under the four leaders above named. The preparation of this "armed arbitration" manifesto was known to Nanking and will probably go far to curb future aspirations to resort to force. Indeed the mandate itself is a hopeful indication that the militarists sense the people's war weariness.

Delays or suspicions or betrayals on either side may at the last minute upset the plans for Feng's departure, but if he goes it will mark the end of the Kuominchun armies as a powerful factor, for Tang Shen-chi has been promised Honan Province, and the Feng forces there will be scattered. Theses Feng generals have been promised places as heads of the provincial governments of Shensi, Kansu and Ninchsia, but the old cohesion will probably not survive.

Meanwhile it is authoritatively learned here that Chiang Kai-shek's gesture to win the radicals by having Wang Ching-wei, a left wing leader, elected to Feng's old post in the Nanking Government has failed. Wang Ching-wei, who has been an exile in Europe for two years, has cabled from London his definite refusal of the proffered posts and his decision not to enter Chinese politics for the "next three months at least."

Yen Gets North Command.

NANKING, June 26 (AP).—General Chiang Kai-shek, so-called President of Nationalist China, today notified leaders of Northwestern China that Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang, former leader of the Central China military opposition, had resigned from his command and had decided to leave China for a foreign tour.

Chiang said he had appointed Yen Hsi-shan Minister of the Interior and Shansi soldier and politician, to succeed Feng, and that henceforth he would administer the Northwest provinces. Yen has been instructed to afford full protection to Feng's person and to guarantee his safety.

Marshal Feng cooperated with the Nationalists in driving out the former Northern Government under Chang Tso-lin at Peking and for a time played a prominent role in the Nationalist government, becoming Minister of War. After a time, however, Feng's loyalty to the Central Government became a matter of doubt and eventually an open break came, the situation reaching a head last month.

Chiang Kai-shek demanded explanations of the impendend course being taken by Feng's soldiers, particularly in destroying certain bridges, and on May 19 the Nationalists virtually declared war on Feng and sent troops toward Honan. Feng, in his turn, denounced the Nanking Government as illegal and proclaimed a war on Chiang Kai-shek.

Several weeks ago the Chinese in Manchuria raided the Russian Consulate at Harbin, claiming to have information that the Third International was holding secret sessions there and was giving support to Feng. Soviet Russia denied the charges and has protested against the raid.

Althoug Feng and Chiang both controlled large armies, comparatively few clashes were reported.

Paper and Newsprint Industry Passes Experimental Stage.

HOBART, Tasmania, June 26 (Canadian Press via Reuters).—The results of recent experiments justified the hope of early establishment of a paper and newsprint industry on a substantial scale in the Huon district of Tasmania, said Sir James O'Grady, in the speech from the Throne at the opening of the Tasmanian Legislative Assembly today.

The Governor also expressed sympathy with the sufferers in the recent disastrous floods and stated Parliament would be asked to consider financial proposals for reconstruction of roads, bridges and railways.

ASSERTS SHIP HOLDS $25,000,000 BULLION

REFUSES NAME OF VESSEL

LONDON, June 26.—A vast fortune in Mexican silver is believed to be afloat on the high seas. Edward Emile Jochen, an American contractor who claims to have a $25,000,000 treasure ship off the coast of England, was brought before a court today to prove it or stay in jail.

The evidence presented at the hearing included a statement that the bullion, consisting of 50,000,000 ounces of silver, belongs to the heirs of President Obregon of Mexico.

Jochen remains in custody, charged with obtaining $5,000 by false pretenses from Major Pennellied, a bullion merchant who advanced that sum for the purpose of bringing in the treasure galleon.

A contention by the prosecutor that the vessel was mythical was met by three statements for the defense.

Robert Doyle, the secretary of a company who arranged the introduction of Jochen to the bullion merchant, declared: "I believe that the ship exists, as Jochen knows the details and arrangements so well."

Jochen's attorneys stated that it was "incredible that such elaborate methods would be taken to obtain a mere $5,000 in view of Jochen's position and admittedly high character," and by the fact that Jochen had offered to return the $5,000 to Pennellier both before and after his arrest.

Mystery, however, still surrounds the identity of the silver-laden galleon, as Jochen refuses to divulge its name on the ground that if he did so it would be located in five minutes by reference to Lloyd's shipping register.

It was this argument which persuaded Pennellier to advance the money for landing the treasure. During an extraordinary midnight meeting on May 3 in a London hotel room Pennellier, Doyle and Judge Schofield, a former American magistrate, listened to Jochen describe how he learned of the treasure while dredging the ports and river mouths of Mexico, how he had spent months negotiating with the heirs of Obregon, how the silver was buried in the bottom of a ship and covered by a dummy cargo of sulphur and how, finally, he got it out of Mexico.

At the end of the recital Pennellier signed a contract with blanks for the name of the ship, the flag flown and the port of destination, though, it is said, that it took considerable persuasion by Judge Schofield to make him accept the deletions and promises to produce Jochen's title to the silver.

Pennellier stated that the titles were never shown and that he caused the arrest of Jochen after waiting some time for them.

REDS CALL WORKERS TO SHOW STRENGTH

CHALLENGE BY SOVIET ARMY

By WALTER DURANTY.

MOSCOW, June 26.—"The Communist International has declared Aug. 1 a day of protest against the danger of a new imperialist war. That day should rank as a review of the revolutionary forces for the coming struggle with the bourgeoisie. 'The enemy within one's own country'—that is the slogan for the revolutionary workers to conduct on Aug. 1 a mighty demonstration."

Thus the Red Star, the mouthpiece of the Red Army, flings challenges to the bourgeois world today in its leading editorial, entitled "Against a New War—For Soviet Union."

An editorial in the Isvestia on the same subject expresses in more cautious terms the purpose behind "Red Aug. 1." The imperialist countries and their social democrat lackeys, it asserts, are talking peace but preparing for war. The Soviet Union alone tries to frustrate their cut-throat policies and confound their capitalist tricks, therefore the Soviet Union must be crushed.

Foresees New "Blood Bath."

The Red Star publishes a cartoon of French, German and English policemen planning a new "Berlin blood bath"—as Moscow terms the affair of May 1 in Berlin—to repress the Aug. 1 demonstrations. Well, why shouldn't they try to repress them if they mean what the Red Star, which presumably knows something about the aims of the Communist International, says they mean and says it, in fact, in black type in its concluding paragraph.

"The day of Aug. 1 is a signal to international imperialism that the revolutionary proletariat is ready to undertake the decisive struggle against capitalism. The day of Aug. 1 is a day of mobilization of the revolutionary forces of the international proletariat."

That is a clear enough challenge, isn't it?

Here for the first time there comes out full into the international field the natural complement and corollary of the "leftward" swing that has been so striking a feature of the Kremlin policies during the past few months. In terms no one can fail to understand the Red Army newspaper waves the flag of world revolution.

Why, one asks at a time when this country is awaiting the renewal of diplomatic relations with England, signing contracts with Henry Ford and the General Electric and certainly not inclined to refuse American recognition, should it be offered? The answer to that why explains a lot of things in Soviet policy which may well puzzle outsiders.

A Logical Gesture.

Yet it is simple enough. The Kremlin cannot logically insist upon a 100 per cent socialization policy inside Russia without a corresponding "leftward" gesture in the international field. The Russians may not always be practical, but they have made a fetish of logic and after all it is a cardinal tenet of the Marxists' gospel that wars are caused by capitalist rivalry.

One might well question whether the Isvestia, the mouthpiece of the Soviet Government and the Foreign Office, believes as implicitly in the danger of war and a capitalist onslaught upon the Soviet as the Red Star, whose editorial is primarily designed, it must not be forgotten, for internal consumption.

But it is not the first time that communism's world revolutionary dogmas and the economic interests of Communist-controlled Russia have shown a certain discrepancy. The latter certainly do not require at the present juncture any waving of red flags before the capitalist bull. The former presumably, at the present juncture, do.

In other words, the Red Star's challenge and the "Red Aug. 1" should be considered in their true light—that is, as a gesture, a logical gesture if need be, a rash or unwise gesture, if you prefer it, but nothing more. For it is the basis of Communist Marxism that "economics determine policies."

Ex-Monk Will Leave French Army Command; Freydenberg Criticized for Moroccan War

TAZA, Morocco, June 26 (AP).—General Freydenberg, brilliant French soldier who quit a monastery for the barracks in his fortieth year, in an order of the day to the soldiers and officers under his command in the Meknes district, announced today that he was relinquishing his command and returning to France.

The dashing red-headed general, who won all his stripes from corporal to brigadier general on the battlefield, was in charge of the territory where the French detachment was ambushed June 10 and where the post of Ait Yakoub was besieged by dissident tribesmen from the Atlas Mountains.

Army circles thought that he had been recalled because of the interpellations facing the government on its Moroccan policy in the Chamber of Deputies.

General Freydenberg has been one of the most successful of all the French commanders in handling the difficult military problems presented in Morocco. In fighting the Touaregs he won promotion from corporal to captain and received the slash which is still visible as a white streak through his flaming red hair. He entered the great war as a colonel and after taking part in most of the battles along the Western front he came out of the war still a colonel.

Returning to Morocco, a better fate awaited him. When Abd-el-Krim swooped down from the Riff mountains in 1926, after having driven the Spaniards almost into the Mediterranean, the former monk was sent against him. In four days Adb-el-Krim and his Riffians were beating a retreat back to their mountains, with General Freydenberg hot on their heels. The French Government made him a brigadier general, his first promotion in years.

When the Moorish tribesmen besieged Ait Yakoub on June 11, General Freydenberg was ready for a campaign again. Within a few days he was marching at the head of 3,000 crack troops of the French Foreign Legion to the relief of the desert outpost. On June 21 French military headquarters in Morocco announced that the siege had been lifted and that the legion troops would form a punitive expedition into the territory of the Moors.

BUTLER DINES WITH BRIAND.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 26.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, who is in Paris in the interests of the Carnegie Foundation, had luncheon today with Foreign Minister Aristide Briand at the Quai d'Orsay.

"Our meeting was as of friends of long standing," Dr. Butler explained. "We conversed on various subjects and chiefly about the work the Carnegie Foundation is attempting to do. I was chiefly anxious to congratulate him on the success of the Kellogg pact, as I have not seen him since the signing of the pact."

Dr. Butler said he found the Foreign Minister in excellent health and fully recovered from his illness, that he was intensely alert and active mentally."

The American educator, who is recuperating from an operation, has declined all other invitations to dinners and he will make no public addresses.

WOKING, England, June 26 (AP).—Published statements that Lord Balfour's health again is causing anxiety today were declared to be inaccurate. It was said at his brother's home at Fisher's Hill, where he is staying, that "Lord Balfour's convalescence is progressing slowly. He still hopes to go to Scotland in August." The aged statesman is said to be spending his leisure hours writing his memoirs.

TOKIO HOSPITAL AIDED BY ROCKEFELLER GIFT

St. Luke's Will Use $350,000 With Other Donations for New Construction.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. has given $350,000 to St. Luke's International Hospital at Tokio, Dr. Rudolph Bolling Teusler, founder and director of the hospital, announced in this city yesterday. The sum is to help in wiping out the loss sustained by the hospital in the earthquake and fire of the Summer of 1923.

The gift is in addition to a sum of $400,000 already pledged by the Rockefeller Foundation for completing a wing of the College of Nursing of the hospital. Although there were no stipulations to Mr. Rockefeller's personal gift, it, too, will be applied to building the college, Dr. Teusler said.

"This gift insures the beginning of construction of the wing," he said yesterday, and added that it brought the amount of money pledged for the hospital to $1,885,000. Dr. Teusler has been in this country nearly a year seeking to raise a fund of $2,656,500 to develop the hospital as a medical centre.

The Smoker's Friend

HERE is a tooth-paste made specifically for the smoker and proud so to announce itself—the final blend of enjoyment for the millions of men and women deriving daily pleasure from their cigars and cigarettes. In originating it, Dr. Bost was alert to the fact that he was dealing with the world's greatest army of epicures, experts in taste and sticklers for refinement.

The Long Long Step from the First Tooth Cream Made by Hippocrates to This Final Triumph

FASHION changes in tooth pastes. We all know those of twenty years ago and those of ten years ago. Constant change—progress all along the line. Bost is the culmination of this progress.

To cleanse the teeth and sweeten the breath was regarded an art among the old Greeks and Romans, the Etruscans and Chinese. Aesculapius, the man of medicine whose sons took part in the siege of Troy, gave it his attention.

Since Sir Walter Raleigh brought the consolation of tobacco to civilization's notice and introduced to court circles the polite habit of smoking, dentists have vied with one another to keep the teeth free from tobacco stain—not a malady but a beauty handicap.

The very first prescription for a tooth cream in existence comes from the old physician Hippocrates, twentieth descendant of Hercules, on his mother's side. Ladies will be interested in this boudoir elegance of twenty-four centuries back:

"When a woman's mouth emits a bad odor," Hippocrates says, "and her gums are black and unhealthy, one burns separately a head of a hare and three mice; then pounds in a mortar some marble or whitestone and passes it through a sieve; then mixes equal parts of these and rubs the teeth and interior of the mouth, rubbing them again with greasy wool; then washes the mouth with water. One then soaks the wool with honey and with it rubs the teeth and gums. One pounds dill and anise-seeds, two oboles of myrrh, and immerses these in half a cotyle of pure white wine, and rinses the mouth with it, holding it in the mouth for some time. This is to be done frequently, fasting and after each meal."

Something to begin with, at any rate—a little rough-hewn in its grit, but with the carbons, or potash, from the burnt mice and hare's head, the flavors and mild antiseptics which some of the later tooth-paste makers used. The fashion cycle of this old Hippocretean tooth cream ran out, however, before the modern mixers got seriously to work.

Mile-posts have flown by swiftly enough in the last ten years of tooth-paste progress, as in the advance in hygiene and automobiles, dentistry and airplanes. It is time the smoker's special tooth-paste appeared!

The interesting handkerchief test proves to you that Bost Tooth Paste will remove tobacco stain. It is the first time this has been done. Use of one tube will convince you it is the smartest toilet requisite you have ever owned.

For things are running cross-ways, and Maggie and I are out.
We quarreled about Havanas—we fought o'er a good cheroot,
And I know she is exacting, and she says I am a brute.
Open the old cigar-box—let me consider a space,
—The Betrothed

It's all different today. Maggie is smoking now, with millions of other Maggies. Ladies have accepted the solace and become expert judges of blends.

The Priest of Partagas is joined at the coffee table by the Lucky Strike Princess, the Old Gold Dowager and the Camel Debutante. And this is not a cigarette advertisement. It is the opening chapter of The Conquest of Bost, for it is going to be a conquest.

No sex appeal, but plenty of test appeal and taste appeal, for man and woman, bachelor and spinster, Moor and Mormon—not made to cure pyorrhea and winding up in the last act, ten years later, as "also good for the smoker."

Made for the smoker from the very start!

Wm. Dale Bost, Doctor of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Chemist of note, whose child this tooth-paste is, knows all that a chemist of high degree can know about tooth-pastes, their merits and their weaknesses. Because the thing had not been done, he discussed with hundreds of tobacco manufacturers, growers, merchants and smokers the need of a real smoker's tooth-paste, which would harmlessly remove tobacco stain and prevent it.

Not to scour it off with grit, nor to eat it off with acid, nor to slowly fade it out with bleach; but by combining mild and pleasant ingredients, innocent as milk and seductive as fruit juices, to dissolve tobacco stain and leave gleaming white teeth to decorate that smile of satisfaction produced by a good smoke.

The Smoker's Friend is right!

That he put the paste in a jade-and-coral tube which is an ornament on the glass shelf of the most self conscious of aesthetic bathrooms is just an incident, as beautiful pajamas are an incident of sweet slumber. And that the delicious bouquet blend of the flavor is reminiscent of a glass of old Tokay, or a breath from an Italian rose garden, is—also merely reminiscent.

Bost Tooth Paste, in its composition and in its dress, has the refinement of lavender and old lace. It leaves the breath fragrant with a lingering piquant sweetness.

Dr. Bost, in compounding these mildest of oils and emolient ingredients, to dissolve tobacco and other organic stains, brought together a new combination which prevents the digesting or decomposing in the mouth of those vagrant little food particles which stick about in the crevices and nooks no matter how vigorously you brush.

No fermentation in the mouth through the night, no bad breath in the morning, no bad taste to interfere with the fragrant and delightful Bost bouquet. In making a tooth-paste to keep the stain off smoker's teeth, Dr. Bost has turned out as fine a product for everybody as the world has ever seen—children included!

Yes, a new idea through and through. Sold at all leading stores—and how! Ask how it is going when you buy yours. The before breakfast aristocrat, sweetening the breath with the freshness of morning flowers—the before-bed aristocrat, leading to clean, pleasant dreams—a comrade and chamber-fellow of refinement fitting in with all those nicer belongings which contribute to life's enjoyment.

Be sure you try the test—they're doing it at the bridge clubs and in the locker rooms.

BRITISH SEE SNAGS IN DEBT CONFERENCE

SAARE ISSUE A PROBLEM

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—The idea is put forward here now in authoritative quarters that the conference of governments for action on the Young plan may prove to be far from a mere formality.

It is believed that behind that opinion lies the intention of the new British Government to request some review of the distribution of the sums which Germany is to pay into the Bank for International Settlements. It will be recalled that during the election campaign Philip Snowden, now Chancellor of the Exchequer, bitterly attacked England's debt settlements on the basis of the principle laid down in the Balfour note—namely, that England would take no more from her creditors than she had to pay to America. He construed this to mean that if America ever canceled war debts, England would pass on the benefit to her creditors.

Snowden Objection Likely.

It is true that the Young plan provides in an annex to the main plan that if America ever cancels war debts the Allies will get one-third of the benefit and Germany two-thirds. It is possible that this does not satisfy Mr. Snowden and doubtless he would like to make a move to alter the arrangement by which Britain drops her claim for the reimbursement of the billion dollars she has in the past paid to the United States over and above what she has received from her creditors.

However, it must be remarked that if the British Cabinet has been swung into line by Mr. Snowden there is not any great deal of changing to be made, for the Young plan in some of its essentials reposes upon the distribution which it recommends to the governments. And also anything done to satisfy Mr. Snowden would automatically cause dissatisfaction in other capitals. There is no doubt about England's finally approving the Young plan, but there does seem to be a prospect of an effort by Mr. Snowden and his friends to secure a better apportionment for Britain.

Mandates Brought Up.

On another score, too, it is predicted here that the conference will bring forth a clash of interests. There is not a great deal of doubt in London that the former Allies will decide on the early evacuation of the Rhineland—at least, before the end of the year—which Dr. Stresemann demanded in his speech explaining the Young plan to the Reichstag. However, Dr. Stresemann in that same speech said something else to which London does not at all agree. He spoke of the coming conference as one for the final liquidation of the war. And very soon thereafter he was talking about "British unification plans in East Africa," meaning thereby the plans made by the Hilton Young commission for an administrative union between former German East Africa and the British African colonies. Indeed, he did not hesitate to say the Hilton Young plan was incompatible with the British mandate over the former German African colony. The British have the answer, of course, that in the terms of the mandate they provided for just such an administrative union. But Dr. Stresemann followed his point and left no doubt what was his meaning when he said that Germany expected to take her rôle in the League of Nations machinery of the mandated territories, and thus he appeared to discount the provisions of Article X of the Tanganyika mandate statute.

British Put Saare Apart.

This looks to the British pretty much like Germany saying she expects England to give her back German East Africa, and that is something the British have not yet begun to consider. The German Foreign Minister is sure to find his tribute to the consistency of British foreign policy so true that he will not find any change in regard to this mandated territory, and if in the coming conference he expects England to surrender the former German territories which she now controls under League mandates, he will be disappointed.

In addition, while the British are quite sympathetic to the German desire for the evacuation of the Rhineland, they do not agree with Dr. Stresemann's demand for the coincident evacuation of the Saare district by the French, who technically hold it under the League of Nations. The Allies occupied the Rhineland to secure the carrying out of the treaty. This political occupation is held here to be different from the French occupation of the Saare because the Saare was turned over to the French until 1925 to pay for the willful damage the Germans did to the French coal mines. Whereas the Treaty of Versailles provides for the eventually anticipated evacuation of the Rhineland, it made no such provision regarding the Saare.

Thus it will be seen that shadows may appear at the coming "love feast" of the former foes. There is going to be some bitterness and some disappointment. But yet there is no reason to believe that the Young reparations plan is in any danger. The alternative is too serious for every one concerned.

It seems now likely that the meeting will be held in London. Dr. Stresemann has proposed Baden-Baden, to which the French objected. Paris suggested Lucerne, to which the British object on the grounds that Premier MacDonald could not absent himself from London next month for any considerable time. The British Government has now invited the other governments to hold the conference here and London appears to expect favorable answers.

BRITISH URGE LONDON PARLEY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 26.—Today's events portend further delays before decisions can be taken either on the ratification of the French debt accords or on the convening of a conference of governments to put the Young plan into operation.

Sir William Tyrrell, the British Ambassador, conferred with Aristide Briand, the Foreign Minister, and strongly urged the selection of London for the States' conference on the plan. He argued that otherwise the British Government would be the only one not represented by Ministers, since the session of Parliament would make it impossible for Premier MacDonald to go to Switzerland or to any place outside England. That might delay the work of the conference, whereas if it were held in England the Ministers of all the other countries would be free to attend.

M. Briand's reply was not a refusal, but resolved itself into another effort to put forward the advantages of holding the conference in a neutral country where none of the powers attending would be acting as host, but where all would meet upon an equal footing.

Premier Poincaré, having completed his outline of the facts relating to the debt accords before the Foreign Affairs and Finance Commissions of the Chamber, today reviewed at length the international negotiations concerning the reparations question which he finally brought down to the Young plan. As it was evident that his exposé would occupy at least another session, after which the commissions will have to formulate their recommendations, it was generally agreed that the public debate on debt ratification could not be held on Friday. The government will, therefore, ask for a delay and will pose a vote of confidence on postponement until Tuesday at least.

Deputy Renaudel agreed to withdraw his interpellation, but Mr. Franklin Boullion openly refused M. Poincaré's request, so that there is to be a sharp issue in the Chamber on Friday.

In the corridors of the Chamber it was thought likely that the Finance and Foreign Affairs Commissions, when framing their recommendations, would suggest ratification not with a reservation, but with an "interpretation," which would imply that ratification would not hold good if the Young plan were not adopted.

Berlin Against Locarnoing.

BERLIN, June 26 (AP).—The place for the governmental conference on the reparations agreement is looked upon as of only secondary importance to the German Government, and official circles declare it should not be allowed to overshadow the negotiations. Some preference is expressed, however, for London.

Definite objections have been made to the choice of Lausanne, Switzerland, and it is said that if Western Switzerland is to be the scene of the conference the German Government would find Geneva most suitable. Baden-Baden is also favored.

It is now thought probable that Chancellor Mueller, Foreign Minister Stresemann and Finance Minister Hilferding will be the German representatives.

ALL GERMANY PLANS TO PROTEST TREATY

Nation-Wide Demonstration Will Be Staged on Anniversary of Versailles Pact.

BERLIN, June 26.—The tenth anniversary of the signing of the Treaty of Versailles, which takes place on Friday, will be the occasion for a nation-wide protest and demonstrations, although the government will confine itself to an official proclamation signed by President von Hindenburg and all the members of the Cabinet.

The protest will briefly reiterate the German position and declare that the Treaty of Versailles does not constitute a voluntary accord between the victors and the vanquished, but is an arbitrary dictation forced on Germany in her hour of need.

It will further be declared that Germany rejects, as a historic untruth, the charge that she was solely responsible for the outbreak of the World War.

On the other hand, the German people will be admonished by government leaders to rise above partisian quarrels and join in a common effort to achieve a new and better future.

Fearing the demonstrations might reach a serious stage, the Cabinet has requested government officials not to participate in them, this, particularly in view of the impending developments in connection with Germany's foreign affairs.

The Social Democratic Party will not stage any demonstrations and it has also declined to join the other political factions in a protest.

Objections to such a widespread observance of the day is voiced in many quarters where it is believed that such manifestations are likely to have a serious repercussion at a time when Germany's new reparations commitments and the Rhineland issue are up for final discussion with the creditor powers.

The German Government is holding strictly aloof in the reported controversy between Premiers Poincaré and MacDonald over the question of locating the forthcoming conference on the Young plan, although Germany secretly cherishes the hope that the Allies will concede to Germany at least one of the numerous post-war gatherings of statesmen as proposed by Foreign Minister Stresemann in the course of his Madrid conversations with Foreign Minister Briand.

The suggestion that the main conference be held at Baden-Baden is prompted by a wish to afford both Chancellor Mueller and Dr. Stresemann, who have been chronically indisposed in recent months, the opportunity for recuperation away from a metropolitan environment, although Premier MacDonald's desire to have the conference convoked in London, as an accommodation to the new British Labor Cabinet, is fully understood here.

German official quarters frankly prefer to have the issue decided without recriminations which might create an inauspicious prelude to the coming deliberations.

BERLIN, June 26 (AP).—The Evangelical Consistory of the Province of Brandenburg has instructed all Berlin churches to toll their bells at 3 P. M. on Friday, the time of the tenth anniversary of the signing of the Versailles Treaty ending the World War. They were also instructed to display flags with mourning crepe.

Congregations are asked to attend silent prayer meetings with the injunction "No politics whatever must be mentioned; it will suffice to place the sufferings of the nation in the true light of God's word and beseech the aid of the Almighty."

The Protestant Cathedral of Berlin announced a choral service for that evening to which a number of personages have been invited.

WASHINGTON HOLDS TO DEBT BANK BAN

Stimson Says Nothing New Has Developed to Cause Him to Change His Stand.

WON'T AID IN COLLECTION

No American Official Will Be Allowed to Take Part in Bank or Any Other Agency.

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP).—The adoption of a hands-off policy by the United States Government in the operations of the proposed international bank of settlement for German reparations is assured for the present at least.

Reiteration of the attitude of the American Government on this question was made today by Secretary Stimson. The State Department head said there were no recent developments to change the government's position, which he stated on May 16 was that it does not desire to have any American official participate in the collection of German reparations through the bank or any other agency.

Recent suggestions from abroad that an official of a New York Federal Reserve Bank be designated to participate in the management of the international institution have evoked little response in high administration quarters in Washington.

Even such indirect representations as would be involved in the proposed bank plan would not likely be undertaken without the advice and consent of Congress, and for the present, at least, there is no reason to believe that President Hoover will ask Congressional action on this question.

Nor is it expected that the United States will have even an unofficial observer at the forthcoming conference of the interested powers to consider the acceptance of the Young plan agreed upon at the recent experts' conference in Paris. Numerous suggestions had been put forward both here and abroad that Ambassador Dawes, in view of his experience in the evoiving of the Dawes plan, might be designated by the American Government as an unofficial observer at this gathering.

The view of administration officials appears to be that in the working out of a substitute for the original Dawes reparations settlement, the American Government is without a sufficient immediate interest to warrant further active participation in a question which is regarded as primarily affecting the European creditors of Germany.

One step in the reparations settlement, however, does confront the administration. This is the negotiation of a new agreement with Germany under which there would be a reduction up to 10 per cent of the total costs of the maintenance of the American Army of Occupation on the Rhine. This total cost has been fixed at $250,000,000 and Germany already has paid about 25 per cent of this amount. Other nations which have made claims for Rhine army costs, however, have been paid between 80 and 90 per cent of their claims. The only other interest which the United States has in the reparations question is that of the claims of American nationals under the awards of the Mixed Claims Commission.

REGRET BAN ON DEBT BANK.

Bankers Hold Absence of Officials May Embarrass Federal Reserve.

Leading Wall Street bankers yesterday frankly admitted their disappointment at the action of Secretary Stimson in reiterating the opposition of the government to official American participation in the proposed Bank for International Settlement.

Prominent financiers stated, during informal discussions of the State Department's action, that they felt the International Bank had been somewhat overpraised, but there was unanimous agreement that the institution would perform a valuable service to international finance.

It would be impossible, bankers said, for the Federal Reserve System to avoid entering into relations with the International Bank, and if those relations were to be strictly unofficial there would be a likelihood that the Reserve officials might frequently be embarrassed by their unusual status.

On behalf of Owen D. Young it was said that no statement on the plan evolved at the Paris conference or on the State Department's announcement would be made at this time.

A similar statement was made on behalf of Thomas W. Lamont, who was alternate to J. P. Morgan.

Aside from the functions of the International Bank in effecting reparations transfers, bankers stated that its chief use would be in bringing together the heads of the various banks of issue and its functions as a clearing house for international gold movements.

The new bank, it was said, would offer a permanent basis for such cooperation between the central banks. With officials of the Federal Reserve barred from any representation on the directorate of the International Bank, it was suggested in well-informed quarters that the prestige which the Reserve has enjoyed in international banking conferences might pass to some other bank of issue.

In pursuing its international operations the new bank might frequently have occasion to make open market transactions in the various money centres of the world. Should the bank undertake such operations in New York, without taking the Federal Reserve into its councils, a serious interference with the Federal Reserve policy might result, it was stated. With a representative of the Reserve on the board of the bank, such a danger would be obviated.

Since the Federal Reserve is not to be permitted to participate officially in the new International Bank, Wall Street concluded that the United States would be represented by a private banker. The conclusion reached in most quarters was that a member of the house of J. P. Morgan & Co. would be called upon to sit on the board of the bank.

BYZANTINE COINS FOUND.

Sixty-seven Rare Pieces Are Dug Up on Island in Baltic.

STOCKHOLM, June 26 (AP).—An important archaeological discovery of Byzantine gold coins has been made at Etelhem, on the Baltic Island of Gothland. Sixty-seven such coins were found about a foot below the surface of the ground.

Swedish archaeologists think the collection was the hoard of a local trader with Near East contacts by the overland route along the rivers of Southern Russia.

In recent years numerous finds of this sort have been made on Gothland and of the 7,000-odd ancient gold coins found in Swedish soil, many have been dug up on this Island.

"My Tire Cost is just one-third what it was before I used Miller Tires" R B Hayes

The Miller Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio.

Gentlemen:

The decision to equip our 19 buses 100% with Miller Tires was reached by us after 20 months of operating our lines with nearly every make of tire on the market; and after nearly 8 months of operating on Millers, I am more than pleased and gratified to inform you that to date your tires have exceeded our expectations in every respect.

We cover approximately 49,000 miles each month, and out of the total of 114 tires rolling, there has been only one tire discarded and that one only recently. The entire lot have given us the least possible trouble in regard to punctures and your servicing has been above reproach. My tire cost is just one-third of what it was before I used Miller Tires.

I might add here that I am thoroughly convinced that your geared-to-the-road tread is the best for non-skidding that I have ever been able to find.

(Signed) R. B. HAYES,
President, Albany Transit Company.

WE might tell you that Millers are the greatest tires in the world—but—with records like this—such statements are unnecessary.

We might tell you that Millers have the greatest non-skid tread ever designed—but—the fact that this large operator has proved it in 49,000 miles a month carries a great deal more weight.

We might tell you that Millers are the only tires that will do a job like this—but—we prefer to tell you that after 20 months' testing, the Albany Transit Company proved it for themselves.

EX-MINISTER'S TRIAL BEGINS IN WARSAW

PILSUDSKI TAKES BLAME

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, June 26.—Gabriel Czechowicz, fromer Minister of Finance, went on trial today for having spent 560,000,000 zlotys (about $62,000,000) in excess of the budget in 1927-28 without Parliament's approval. M. Czechowitz is being tried by a special State tribunal consisting of twelve prominent citizens elected by the Sejm and the Senate, with the president of the Supreme Court presiding.

The case has a long history, which has been recounted at various previous stages. Briefly, Parliament's impeachment of M. Czechowicz was not so much for the purpose of punishing the Minister as to protect its own claim to the right to control the State's finances. The case marks another phase in the conflict between government and Parliament that has continued for three years. The money involved was spent with the knowledge and approval of the Cabinet. M. Czechowics resigned under pressure when the opposition began attacking the government.

The proceedings were opened by reading the Sejm's resolution of impeachment, specifying M. Czechowicz's alleged guilt, which he repudiated in an answering statement, saying there was no reason for his impeachment, as he acted legally and on the Cabinet's instructions. If the Sejm disapproved, said the reply, it could have voted no confidence and have overthrown the Cabinet, which would have been the right course to take.

The first witness was General Skladkowski, Minister of the Interior, who, like others, was not sworn in. There was no box for the witnesses, but the President very politely asked them to sit in a comfortable chair.

General Skladkowski, in a soldierlike manner, said briefly that Marshal Pilsudski, whether Prime Minister or simply a member of the Cabinet, always reserved to himself the decision on all matters pertaining to Parliament, and all Ministers, including M. Czechowics, had to submit to that decision. General Skladkowski refused to give an additional explanation asked by the prosecutor, repeating only that all Ministers had to obey the Marshal's orders.

The next witness was M. Kwiatkowski, the Minister of Commerce, who corroborated the General's statement.

The day's climax was reached when Marshal Pilsudski entered the room and all but the judges rose from their seats. The Marshal refused to sit, and, standing for twenty minutes, read his statement. As usual, he criticised Parliament, adding:

"I am pleased that I changed the Sejm and reduced its power. I am responsible for the 'crime' which is charged to Minister Czechowicz. The whole case is merely an endeavor of the Sejm to belittle a great man of Poland."

After reading the statement the dictator left the room, giving the prosecutors no opportunity to ask questions. One prosecutor, however, protested against the Marshal's criticisms of Parliament.

M. Daszinski, Marshal of the Sejm, said that Prime Minister Bartel had promised many times to ask the Sejm's approval of the additional expenditure, which, however, for reasons not made public, never was fulfilled.

The case was adjourned until Thursday, when the prosecutors and defendants will make statements.

LABOR CABINET SPLIT ON ADMITTING TROTSKY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—Ramsay MacDonald's Cabinet failed to agree today on the question of granting Leon Trotsky refuge in England and the decision was postponed until relations are re-established with Russia. Premier MacDonald and a large part of the Cabinet, it is said, fear that to extend hospitality to the fallen commissar would be highly prejudicial to the restoration of amicable relations with the present Soviet.

Other ministers are emphatic in urging that refusal to grant Trotsky's request was bound to lead to awkward expressions of resentment from the government's left wing supporters.

The Liberal Party, according to one authority, is prepared to support granting permission on the principle that England always has extended refuge to political fugitives.

BERLIN, June 26 (AP).—The Mittag Zeitung reported today from Stamboul that Leon Trotsky denied in an interview statements in the English press that he had been visited by an emissary from Moscow to entrust him with the mission of re-establishing Anglo-Russian diplomatic relations.

Trotsky admitted he had applied for permission to enter England and said that he was hopeful it would be granted.

WOMAN SHOOTS AT CONSUL.

She Had Asked Aid of Frenchman for Leg Lost in Paris.

BERLIN, June 26 (AP).—M. Binet, French Consul here, had a narrow escape from death today when an excited Lithuanian woman fired at him several times in the French Consulate.

A porter caught the woman's arm and the shots went wild, lodging in the ceiling of the room.

The woman, who arrived at the consulate with her husband and child, asked M. Binet for money to travel to Lithuania, saying that she had lost her leg in Paris after a bungled operation in a State hospital. She therefore claimed compensation from the French Government.

Consul Binet pointed out to her that he was not the proper person to receive such an application. The woman immediately burst into wild threats, drew a revolver and fired at him several times.

The man and the woman were both arrested.

Type!

If Wall Street were a newspaper, there are some advertising men who would classify the colored mule driver as the Wall Street type.

THIS tendency to symbolize, to make the single stand for the many, to seize a swallow for a season, is natural and inevitable. To get some definite visualization of a publication's readers, the advertiser often casts around for a pattern or image, a reader "type"—and with the convention classifies the publication. This sort of thinking is convenient and comfortable, but hardly correct.

Some years ago when The News was younger, by dint of strong moral suasion and hot coffee, we used to persuade advertisers to venture out in the early morning and observe newsstand sales to view their prospects among the public on the hoof. And in the cool if not always clear dawn, this checking of customers offered no evidence to support the conventions of reader types. Readers of any newspaper are as varied as the motives which make them readers—and these are very various indeed. Young women buy a certain newspaper for baseball news. Clerks buy another for its financial pages, and financiers buy a third for a comic strip. A chauffeur with a lot of idle time on his hands likes a paper which gives a lot to read, and a busy man likes one which doesn't. People read a newspaper because they like it; income, intelligence, education, occupation and place of residence have little to do with their likes.

THE "type" assigned to The News is often amusing, usually erroneous.

One favorite shibboleth used to be: "The News is read only by stenographers." But every last stenographer in New York buying The News would account for only about 8% of our circulation.

"News readers are mostly young fellows—good customers for cigarettes," is another generality. These News readers, however, purchase canary birds and washing machines in unprecedented quantities, and buy more patterns for children's clothing and dresses in sizes over forty than any other group of newspaper readers in the world.

"News readers are just prospects for low-priced merchandise." But on occasion they have bought $360,000 worth of lots over a week-end, made bond purchases averaging $2400, and consistently buy more furniture, radio sets, and pianos than any other newspaper readers in New York.

Then there was the well-known columnist, who writes for out-of-town consumption. He once explained that the bulk of News circulation came from the lower East Side, although he got his copy at the Ritz. The lower East Side furnishes just less than two percent of News buyers. We have our poorest representation in this district, but unfortunately can't do anything about it until more people down there learn to read English.

"News circulation is all middle class," said another critic. A couple of years ago, a news service erroneously announced the engagement of a Social Register girl. Inadvertently, we printed it in very little space briefly—and gave her family's social secretaries a bad three months denying misplaced congratulations from their friends.

"The News is read only by women." But a few minutes at any newsstand will show that six or more buyers in every ten are men.

So it goes! When a paper has more than 1,300,000 circulation daily, and more than 1,500,000 Sunday, how can you cast its readers in a single mold?

THE only circumstances typical of most News readers are that they have two cents in the morning, and live in or around New York. Aside from these identifications, all others fail. News readers are found in seven-tenths of all New York City families, and in one-fifth of the families in New York's suburbs. They represent a majority of families in all income grades except the lowest. They may not be classified by sex, age, social status, commercial servitude, or place of residence. They are just about everybody in New York.

So whether you seek a few customers among the many in New York, or want all you can get, The News is a good advertising medium for you. It has not only a huge circulation, but its small page and small size carries copy to more eyes and minds, carries more advertising impressions. And at lower costs!

TWO NEW SCHOOLS TO COST $1,125,408

$198,886 VOTED FOR SITE

Plans for Winthrop Junior High in Brooklyn Are Approved by Board of Education.

Contracts aggregating $1,125,408 for the construction of two elementary schools in Queens were awarded yesterday by the Board of Education at its semi-monthly meeting.

New Public School 100 will be constructed at 111th Avenue and 118th Street, Richmond Hill, by the J. Weinstein Building Corporation at a cost of $478,744. John Kennedy & Co. received a contract of $510,900 for erecting new Public School 141 at Twenty-first Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street, Astoria. Three additional contracts, totaling $137,864, were awarded for plumbing, mechanical equipment and electrical fixtures for Public School 141.

On the recommendation of the superintendents the board also approved plans for an addition to Public School 52, at Broadway and Academy Street; new Public School 159, Thirty-third Avenue and 205th Street, Queens, and new Public School 232, to be known as the Winthrop Junior High School, in Brooklyn. Plans for two other additions, one to Public School 52, Queens, and the other to Public School 71, Bronx, were also approved.

Superintendent William J. O'Shea was authorized to withdraw concessions to private persons to operate luncheon counters in public schools. He asked for the power in order to be able to force compliance with food standards recently set up by school authorities.

The board approved an appropriation of $198,886.68 in payment of a site on Winthrop Street and East Fifty-second Street, Brooklyn. The land will be used for school purposes. Forty-three playgrounds throughout the city will be opened in the evening during July and August to give adults a chance to cool off and to engage in recreational activities. In addition several playgrounds will be open mornings for the use of mothers and babies.

Another action of the board involved the closing of Public School 73, in the Bronx, today and tomorrow, the last two school days. The reason given was a fire on Tuesday night, as a result of which a wall overhanging the schoolyard was considered a danger to children playing below.

HOLD JOINT INQUIRY ON FIRE IN BRONX

McGeehan and Fire Officials Question Building Owners—Data on Incendarism Lacking.

District Attorney John E. McGeehan, police officials and men from the Fire Marshal's office conducted a joint investigation yesterday into the origin of the blaze that caused $1,000,000 damage Tuesday night to a ten-story apartment house that was nearing completion on Jerome Avenue opposite 164th Street in the Bronx. Mr. McGeehan said he believed the fire was of incendiary origin, but admitted that he found no evidence during the first phase of his inquiry to justify the belief.

Two watchmen who were employed by the building contractors were questioned in the District Attorney's office, but they shed no light on the cause of the fire. Two daughters of Thomas H. Reynolds of 982 Andrews Avenue, a general contractor, were also questioned. They reported that they had seen the blaze from the windows of their home as they were preparing to retire. It appeared to be burning in two units of the five-part structure, they said.

Mr. McGeehan said that Mr. Reynolds made application in the Supreme Court recently for an injunction to restrain the Tenement House Department from issuing a certificate of occupancy for the new apartment house on the ground that it was not properly constructed. Action on this application is pending. The building was to cost $1,500,000.

Simon and Louis Bregman, brothers, owners of the structure, appeared before Mr. McGeehan yesterday for questioning, but because they forgot to bring their books the investigation was adjourned until today.

Assisting Mr. McGeehan were Tenement House Commissioner William F. Deegan and two of his deputies; Captain Henry Bruckman and Inspector John Duane of the Police Department; and assistant fire marshals J. J. Cashman and Hermon W. De Malignon.

HELD AS SUBWAY CHEAT.

Man Says That If He Used a Slug, He Did It Unconsciously.

Scott Bedford, 53 years old, who has been stopping at the Hotel Gotham, Fifty-fifth Street and Fifth Avenue, was arraigned in West Side Court yesterday on a charge of inserting a slug in a turnstile in the Fiftieth Street and Broadway station of the Interborough subway.

Mr. Bedford pleaded not guilty, asserting that if he had inserted a slug as charged he had done so unconsciously. He was arrested by Interborough inspectors.

Magistrate Bushel released him in bail of $20 for hearing today when Mr. Bedford declared that that was all the money he had with him.

Mr. Bedford described himself as a school teacher. When questioned about the school or college at which he taught he replied "I would rather not say."

BAKER ESTATE TO WIDOW.

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—Dr. George Fales Baker, financier, bequeathed his estate, estimated at close to $4,000,000 to his widow, the former Lillian Ingham Walker, daughter of the late William Walker of Pittsburgh, according to the terms of his will probated today.

The will suggested a plan whereby Mrs. Baker, would pay specific amounts to several institutions, during life or by will after death. Under this plan, half of the residue of the estate is to go to the Pennsylvania and University Hospitals here, and one-fourth is to go, on the death of Mrs. Baker, to the University of Pennsylvania, from which Dr. Baker received his degree of Doctor of Medicine, to endow a chair in the medical department.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Edward L. Neville, Chargé d'Affaires at Tokio, notified the State Department today that the heirs of Edgar A. Bancroft of Chicago, who was appointed Ambassador to Japan in 1924 and died at his post in 1925, have created a scholarship fund in his memory amounting at present to $100,000. Later it will be increased to $150,000 when certain trusts, which are now a charge upon $50,000 of the estate, have expired. The trust fund is in the hands of a body of trustees who must, by the terms of the trust, be Japanese subjects educated in whole or in part in colleges in the United States. Count Kabayama and Baron Dan are the outstanding members of the board of trustees.

It is the intention of the trustees to maintain a maximum of four students in the United States at different educational institutions. The first two have been chosen, one of whom will study at Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., of which the late Mr. Bancroft was a graduate, and the other will attend Amherst College, Amherst, Mass. The trustees plan to have the students whom they send to the United States pursue their studies in small colleges where there will be few or no other Japanese students.

Secretary Stimson has also been informed by Katsuji Debuchi, the Japanese Ambassador to the United States, that the Do-Ki Memorial Hospital, or fraternity memorial hospital, was recently opened at Tokio. It is one of two hospitals established from the surplus of the American contributions at the time of the Japanese earthquake of September, 1923. The other was opened at Yokohama last September.

The Japanese Ambassador said that pursuant to an instruction from his government he took pleasure in expressing the deep gratitude which the government of Japan entertains toward the government and the people of the United States for their unbounded generosity and sympathy. He stated, furthermore, that these hospitals would be an everlasting monument to the cause of friendship and good-will between Japan and the United States.

BURNS SURRENDERS AT GEORGIA PRISON

Escaped Convict Who Became Chicago Editor Is Back in Chain Gang.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 26.—Smiling and asserting that he had "no grudge against any one," Robert Elliott Burns, who escaped in 1922 from a Georgia chain gang in which he was serving a term for robbery, went to Chicago and there became editor of a magazine paying him $20,000 a year, today returned to complete his sentence, provided Executive clemency is not granted him.

He was met by his lawyers, John F. Echols, who defended him at his trial seven years ago, and William Schley Howard, a former Representative, and held brief conferences with them. In the afternoon, accompanied by F. H. Redwine, chairman of the Campbell County Board of Commissioners, he returned to Fairburn and then to the prison camp from which he fled. He was at once placed in stripes and tonight was confined to the cage in which all convicts are kept.

An early effort will be made to obtain clemency for Burns. He still has five and a half years to serve. The point that Burns was revealed to the authorities by a jealous wife will be stressed by the lawyers in their appeal.

Burns came from Chicago with Vivian L. Stanley, a member of the Prison Commission, but both insisted there was no question of his being in custody.

"I came back voluntarily," Burns said. "Mr. Stanley happened to be a traveler to Atlanta at the same time and is a fine, agreeable gentleman for a companion."

Prof. C. E. Payne Wrote on "What Is Making for War With England."

Charles E. Payne, Professor of History at Grinell College, Des Moines, Iowa, was announced yesterday as the winner of The Nation's prize of $150 for the best essay on "What Is Making for War with England?"

Among the causes he enumerated, Professor Payne placed failure of the United States to join the League of Nations or adhere to the World Court first from the English viewpoint. Dangers from our side he saw as business competition in foreign markets and Great Britain's regulation of neutral trade in war time.

Honorable mention was given for essays submitted by Walter Phelps Hall, Professor of History at Princeton, and Albert F. Coyle, former editor of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers' Journal. The judges were Professor Charles A. Beard, Willmott H. Lewis, Washington correspondent of The London Times, and Norman Thomas, Socialist leader.

FOR WORLD WAR PENSIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., June 26.—Passage by Congress of a World War pension act was urged at the opening here today of the annual encampment of the New York Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and its women's auxiliary.

Mrs. Bessie Hankin of Revere, Mass., national president of the auxiliary, advocated pension action in an address and was supported by two subsequent speakers, Thomas Kehoe of New York, representative of the American Red Cross, and Daniel J. Manning of New York, past department commander of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War. Mr. Manning made a plea for the treatment of tubercular veterans with families in cottages rather than in the large hospitals.

About 500 delegates are here for the veteran's sessions and about 150 members of the auxiliary. Commander George C. Traver and Mrs. Eustace M. Bender are presiding.

Supreme Court Justice Irving I. Goldsmith spoke as representative of Mayor William D. Eddy at the opening meeting. A memorial service was conducted under the direction of Walter Hilton of Hudson, with Commander Traver. Senior Vice Commander Monroe Curtis of New York and Mrs. Rose MacCormack of Brooklyn, department auxiliary chaplain, participating. This evening a dinner was given for the officers of the auxiliary.

The CALL of the BURNING MASCOT

by E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

UNINVITED and unwelcome, Inspector Dickins sat in the speeding car driven by lovely Martha Dring who, he knew, had the stolen Rosenthal jewels. On the radiator a dragon-shaped "mascot" that Dickins couldn't see, flamed red. Minutes behind roared a posse from the organized underworld; from the opposite direction rushed a patrol from Scotland Yard —which barely suggests the thrills in this first of ten breathless adventures.

HOLDS WORLD SEEKS BEAUTY IN RELIGION

PASTORS IN TOUR OF CITY

Hear Norman Thomas and Other Labor Leaders After Morning Session at Union Seminary.

The world today was awakened to the fact that true religion should teach both beauty and ethics, the Rev. Harry F. Ward, professor at Union Theological Seminary, said yesterday at the conference of ministers and lay religious workers at the seminary, 120th Street and Broadway.

"Do you want to know about God out of curiosity or do you want to do His will?" he said. "Do you want to know God as awful because He is the ruler of a dynamic universe, or do you want to know Him as companionable because He is the motive force in our human companionships and relationships? We are not going to get anywhere by turning our back on the problem of war and peace and industrial relationships and seeking a mystical experience. The Protestant Church will have to take up the question of the new imperialism and either give it its sanction or transform it. If it does not transform it it will conform."

Besides this, he asserted, "youth today has found what religion should have taught long ago—that life is to be enjoyed as well as changed. Thus time has its revenge on the Puritans. Instead of duty with beauty left out there is beauty with duty ignored."

Dr. Lewis B. Hill, assistant to the commission of the Massachusetts Department of Mental Diseases, spoke on "The Youth With a Mission."

In the afternoon and evening many members of the conference made a trip through the city to hear speeches by Norman Thomas and other Socialist and labor leaders.

Before the trip Albert F. Coyle, former editor of The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Journal, spoke at the seminary on "Labor Control in Europe." Paul Blanchard of The Nation spoke at the Community Church House, Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue, on "Labor's Program in the Making of the New Orient."

After supper at Our Cooperative Cafeteria, 49 East Twenty-fifth Street, there were addresses on "The Trinity: Cooperation, Unionism and Socialism," by Cedric Long, executive secretary of the Cooperative League of the U. S. A., and "Industrial Emancipation in Russia," by H. A. Lever, a machinist who recently spent eighteen months in Russia.

BRING MAN FROM PRISON.

Walter R. Nolan, 58 years old, a former Chicago pugilist, whose black velour hat in 1922 enabled government secret service men to round up three counterfeiters who had been passing bogus travelers' checks on the American Express Company throughout the country, was brought back to this city yesterday from the Ohio State Penitentiary at Columbus to answer a forgery indictment.

Nolan and a confederate in 1922 were trailed from Pittsburgh to New Orleans and arrested because of the hat which Nolan had stolen in a Pittsburgh store when he ran out after tendering one of the spurious checks in payment for it. He was convicted in Cincinnati of passing counterfeit travelers' checks and sentenced to from three to twenty years. He was released on Tuesday after serving a little more than six years of the term, to find Detectives Fitzpatrick and Fay of the Old Slip Station waiting at the prison gate with a bench warrant to take him into custody.

When he was placed in the line-up of prisoners at the Detective Bureau in police headquarters yesterday morning, it was revealed that Nolan and his confederates were suspected of having passed $2,500 worth of the bogus checks on small storekeepers in the vicinity of Broadway and Forty-second Street before they extended their operations to the West and South.

Nolan will be arraigned in General Sessions this morning to plead to the forgery indictment.

GREEN BACKS EQUITY IN FILM CONFLICT

American Federation of Labor Will Support Actors, He Wires Gilmore.

CALLS STRUGGLE VALIANT

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The campaign of the Actors' Equity Association to organize the actors engaged in the moving picture industry will have the "earnest and aggressive" support of the American Federation of Labor.

In announcing this decision late this afternoon President Green made public a telegram which he sent to Frank Gillmore, president of the Actors' Equity Association, now in Hollywood, reading in part:

"Modern industrial and economic life have wrought such changes in human relationships as to make the individual inarticulate and helpless so far as protection of living standards is concerned. This is an age of mass production, mass action and organization. Cooperation, coordination and collective action are the primary requirements in all human enterprises and undertakings.

"The Bar Association and Medical Association, the Chamber of Commerce and many other organized bodies understand and appreciate the value of organization and the benefits which come from group action. The theatrical producers themselves operate very largely through group action, and the employes of the theatrical and motion sound producers, men and women of talent and genius, who add so immeasurably to the happiness of others, must be accorded that liberty of group action which is recognized without protest as being the right and prerogative of other professional groups.

"The Actors' Equity Association is engaged in a valiant struggle. We are proud of its past record and the talented men and women who make up its membership.

"Your cause is our cause and your struggle is our struggle. The American Federation of Labor is with you. Continue the good fight honestly, fair and justly, and eventually you will win."

"Your telegram is wonderful and we are so grateful," Mr. Gillmore said in his reply to President Green. "We turned to you as a guide and a friend, and you have responded magnificently. Every one will admit that the fourth largest industry in the country is an antagonist of some merit, but since your message it has shrunk into comparative nothingness.

"Some of our members are world famous, but that, strange as it may appear, is not entirely an asset, since wealth sometimes robs the owner of principle and induces a selfish apathy. Rest assured that your encouraging words have helped us mightily and we shall never turn our eyes to the rear. We cannot help but win, now that we have your aid and comfort."

Hollywood Meeting Is Stormy.

LOS ANGELES, June 26.—A meeting of motion picture actors and actresses to formulate a petition to the president of the Actors' Equity Association, asking why the organization is attempting an "intrusion" into the industry without proper consent of those concerned, was thrown into an uproar last night when a crowd of persons said to be Equity members appeared at the meeting and heckled the speakers.

The Equity members did not stop at argument or opposition to the proposed resolution. The proceedings approached the riot stage several times, and there was an ominous rumble when an Equity member charged a motion picture actress, Miss Patsy Ruth Miller, with not knowing what the fight was about.

The meeting had been called by Conrad Nagel, Ralph Forbes, Lois Wilson, Basil Rathbone and others to discuss a means of obtaining official representation for the actors of Hollywood in the Equity Council so that a fair understanding of the problems which the organization claims exist here could be found in Hollywood. The representatives of the industry declare that the method of entry into the organization is unfair to the actors. Frank Gillmore, president of Equity, promised them consideration if they would present a petition to that effect to him, signed by thirty members of the association.

Willard Mack, the playwright, director and actor, told the assemblage that the campaign for Equity reorganization was apparently a result of the entrance of stage players into the industry, and if they persisted in this headlong move before they were firmly established in pictures, 97 per cent would be sent back to the stage by the film producers.

The resolution, as finally signed by the well-known players who had initiated the move is:

"The following members of the Actors' Equity Association in California believe that they have been deprived of representation during the present crisis which vitally affects their interests. In the controversy of 1919 the actors were called together in a closed meeting, heard both sides of the question involved, and then voted on what action was to be taken.

Film Players Ask Voice.

"Those members were represented, in the following walkout, not only by their officers but by a council formed on levels of their profession.

"We believe the picture player is entitled to the same consideration. As the Los Angeles advisory board was arbitrarily dissolved two weeks ago by Mr. Gillmore, therefore we request President Frank Gillmore to call a closed meeting of only paid-up members in California to consider the present situation and vote on whether or not they will support the present policies of the New York council and the president, and also elect an executive committee to work with President Gillmore during this emergency, thereby giving the motion picture player a definite voice in things concerning his welfare."

First Wedding in 121 Years Held in Quaker Meeting House

MULLICA HILL, N. J., June 26.—The first wedding on record in the Friends Meeting House that was erected here 121 years ago took place today when Miss Florance Kester of Mullica Hill was married to J. Malcolm Pratt of West Chester, Pa.

More than 150 men and women attended the meeting and heard the bride and bridegroom read alternate verses from the marriage ceremony in the Friends' Book of Discipline. There is no pastor at a Quaker wedding.

Miss Kester is the daughter of Wilmer Kester, a farmer. Mr. Pratt is the son of Maurice Pratt. Their names are the first in the marriage record of the little brick meeting house that was built by Quaker settlers in 1805. Why other weddings have not taken place in the edifice no member at the meeting seemed to know.

WILHELMI IS HELD ON 3 INDICTMENTS

Man Seized in Swindles on Importing Scheme Accused Also as Second Offender.

Edward Wilhelmi, who, according to Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings, has used thirteen aliases since he began a criminal career as a smuggler in 1902 while an employe of the American Embassy in Paris, was held without bail for trial, after pleading not guilty yesterday before Judge Allen in General Sessions on three grand larceny indictments. The pills also accuse him of being a second offender. He was sent to the Tombs.

Birchall Freeman of 58 North Ninth Avenue, Mount Vernon, who has an office at 267 Fifth Avenue, appeared as complainant in two of the indictments. He charges Wilhelmi with swindling him out of $10,000 four years ago in a scheme to import merchandise from Germany and Holland. The third indictment was based on the complaint of Jack Musicant of 36 120th Street, Richmond Hill, Queens, who alleged he lost a similar amount under like conditions in the pretended formation of an importing corporation in 1928.

Wilhelmi, who was convicted in General Sessions in 1909 and 1911 for swindling importers in the same scheme, received a suspended sentence on the first charge and serving a penitentiary term on the second, fled after defrauding his latest victims, it was alleged. He was arrested June 5, however, in his room in the Hotel Albert in West Eleventh Street, after he had attempted to place an advertisement in THE NEW YORK TIMES for a partner in the importing business. A TIMES employe testified that four years before complaints had been made by Mr. Freeman, Mr. Musicant and others that they had been swindled by Wilhelmi through joining fake importing corporations with him after reading advertisements in newspapers.

Assistant District Attorney Hastings and Detective Captain James J. Gegan and Detective James F. McCoy were notified. Gegan previously had arrested Wilhelmi. When the two detectives confronted Wilhelmi in the hotel, he simulated indignation at first, but Gegan brushed this aside when he told his prisoner how well he knew him.

Wilhelmi's plan was to form an importing corporation with each of his victims, and then make a trip to Europe to send back merchandise. The arrival of the merchandise would be simultaneous with that of a draft for nearly all the money he and his victims had placed in the treasury of the corporations. The draft would be paid before it was discovered that the merchandise really had been purchased by Wilhelmi some time before the formation of the corporation and was worth less than one-fifth of the amount of the draft.

Wilhelmi found that the Federal Government had lodged a warrant in the Tombs for him on a charge that he violated the immigration law by entering the country recently without inspection. When he was arrested the detectives found three alleged fake passports in his possession in which he variously claimed citizenship in Canada, this country and Germany, where he is known to have three homes, one of them an old chateau. The police said that he was born in Philadelphia more than sixty years ago.

TO SELL LIGHT CRUISERS.

Navy Will Dispose of New Orleans and Albany, Bought in 1898.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The light cruisers New Orleans and Albany, which were purchased in England from Brazil during the Spanish war and have been out of commission since 1922, are to be sold as unfit for further naval service. They were built by Armstrong, Mitchell & Co. at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

The New Orleans took part in the battle with Cervera's squadron and the forts at Santiago in 1898 and has recently been stationed in Central American waters.

During the World War the New Orleans and Albany operated out of New York, escorting convoys to meet the destroyers which operated from European ports.

STARTS FOR TEST DIVE.

Simon Lake's Old Submarine, Defender, Off for Block Island.

If the test is successful the submarine will be taken over by the navy for safety experiments with the submarine S-4, which has been raised from the bottom of the sea off Provincetown, Mass., where she sank and took forty men to their deaths in December, 1927.

'BOMBOOLA' A SWIFT NEGRO MUSICAL SHOW

BOMBOOLA, a negro musical comedy in two acts and many scenes. Book written and staged by D. Frank Marcus; music and lyrics by the author and Bernard Mullin; dances and ensembles by Sam Ross; the "Bomboolians" directed by Lieutenant J. Tim Brymm; produced by Irving Cooper. At the Royale Theatre.

PRINCIPALS—Mercedes Gilbert, Mamie Hawley, Hilda Ferjene, Percy Winters, George Randol, Isabell Washington, Timothy Gladstone, John Mason, "Dusty" Fletcher, Oliver Foster, Cora Merano, Ruth Kyrgar, Billy Andrews, Billie Cortes, Brevard Burnett, Revella Hughes, Claude Lawson.

Down from Harlem and points north and mostly south came still another all-negro musical comedy last night, "Bomboola," strutting swiftly and crooning fervently on the stage of the Royale Theatre. For the larger part of its first act it set a furious pace, which, perhaps inevitably, lapsed in the concluding half into a succession of dreary and ineffective attempts at comedy. But when all the shouting—and there was a great deal of that—had died down, "Bomboola" remained a promising invader, frequently made lustrous by the presence of Isabell Washington.

Like almost every other negro entertainment of the sort, "Bomboola" is strikingly unoriginal. The blackamoor drama evidently reckons it a dull evening that does not include a lachrymose gesture or two of longing toward a mammy waiting in that sunny, sunny South, and in "Bomboola" the hearts that will be broken if that Alabama train doesn't leave on time are heard to break yet again and as unconvincingly as ever.

However, that matters in "Bomboola" is not the recurrence of those familiar African antics but the fetching speed with which a good deal of strutting and singing are accomplished. Although it frequently threatens to become a revue, the book chooses instead to present a story. It is a banal tale, to be sure, since it is once more the account of the girl who leaves the old home to become a Broadway star in a revue entitled, if you can imagine it, "Bomboola"; and, oddly enough, she does, which for the sake of comparative drama makes it all a sort of "Show Girl" in blackface. Such a synopsis of her rise to fame and fortune will suggest that there are almost innumerable opportunities for some one to burst into song or dance on little or no provocation. "If you want a job in this show, let me see what you can do," the company manager likes to say, and invariably the applicant obliges with an almost overpowering eagerness. But the rustiness of that formula may quite easily be forgotten, at least in the first act, in a whirlwind of fast dancing. Led by Percy Winters, Miss Washington, Johnnie Bragg, groups variously known as the Bomboola Dusky Damsels and the Bomboola steppers slide sleekly about the place with great good-will to the tune of three catching melodies, "Ace of Spades," "Dixie Vagabond" and "Rub-a-dub Your Rabbit's Foot."

But directly these bespangled artists have finished, and the first act curtain is down, lethargy assaults the piece throughout the remainder of the performance. As if there were not a score of painful lessons to be learned from other negro musicals a series of laborious sketches are inserted, one less humorous than another, and the glamour of first hour disappears at an astonishing rate. The whoopee still belongs to the song and dance specialists.

Outstanding among the latter was, of course, Miss Washington, who comes on first to sing the lilting "Rub-a-dub Your Rabbit's Foot" at about 9:15 o'clock, and threatens to let nothing more on the program take place. An always ebullient performer, with her every appearance she raises the show to a sparkling level that not even the unfortunate comedy of the Messrs. Mason and Fletcher can dim. If "Bomboola" is revised to accommodate her talent, it will be something to mention in a breath with that permanent criterion, "Blackbirds."

THEATRE HOLD-UP FAILS.

Lone Robber Loses Nerve After Firing Shot at Manager.

A lone robber entered the Fox Crotona Theatre on Tremont Avenue, between Park and Washington Avenues, the Bronx, late last night, fired one shot at the manager in an unsuccessful effort to intimidate him into opening the safe, and then, apparently losing his nerve, escaped emptyhanded.

Sol Heyman, 40 years old, of 10 Cooper Street, the manager, was alone in the treasurer's office when the bandit knocked on the door. Thinking it was an usher, Heyman opened the door, and was ordered by a stocky individual with a pistol to open the safe. He refused, pleading that he did not know the combination.

The robber fired one shot which whizzed past Heyman's shirtfront and into the wall, then turned and fled down a fire-escape. Many of the 3,000 persons in the theatre heard the shot, but there was no panic. Detectives summoned from Bronx Police Headquarters, only a block away, learned that the thug had made his getaway in a taxicab. Heyman said there was about $2,000 in the safe.

MORLEY DECLARES GRIBBLE NOW 'HISSES'

In a statement issued yesterday at the Old Rialto Theatre in Hoboken, Christopher Morley and Cleon Throckmorton, president and treasurer, respectively, of the Hoboken Theatrical Company, Inc., which has been staging revivals of "After Dark" and "The Black Crook," declared that they had not received a bill of complaint in the threatened suit by Harry Wagstaff Gribble, their former stage director, to seek an accounting and record of royalties which he says are due him.

Max Chopnick, Mr. Gribble's attorney, said on Tuesday night that suit would be brought immediately in Trenton.

The Morley-Throckmorton statement follows:

"We have not yet been served with Harry Wagstaff Gribble's bill of complaint, but we gather from the press that Mr. Gribble, formerly our stage director at the Old Rialto Theatre in Hoboken, has taken sanctuary in the chancery office at Trenton.

"Our Hoboken audiences have always been famous for hissing, but we had not expected the stage director to begin hissing too.

"Our contract with Harry Wagstaff Gribble expired at the end of the theatrical season, June 1. We have fulfilled our contract with him in every particular. We paid Harry Wagstaff Gribble $22,252.79 for his services during the season, which was plenty, and gave him the biggest artistic opportunity of his career. He has occasionally complained that he has not had as much publicity as he desired, which is evidently now being remedied.

"Harry Wagstaff Gribble and his attorney have always had access to our books and accounts. Their dramatic crossing of the Delaware is evidently intended as an attempt to embarrass us because we desired to make use of the services of other stage directors and because we refused his repeated application to buy into the ownership of the Hoboken enterprise. We are not embarrassed. Plans for future productions are well under way, and 'After Dark,' or 'Neither Maid, Wife Nor Widow,' is about to enter its thirtieth week. Harry Wagstaff Gribble may be reminded of the line which 'After Dark' now nearly three hundred times has uttered on the Old Rialto stage: 'He's on velvet anyhow. I don't see how he coulda made another trick.'"

GRACE MOORE MAKES HIT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 26.—To the growing list of American singers who have been making their débuts at the Opéra-Comique this season, Miss Grace Moore added her name tonight, appearing in Charpentier's opera "Louise." Another American, William Martin, sang the rôle of Julien.

Miss Moore's performance was enthusiastically received. She took the opera throughout in a somewhat lighter-hearted way than most French singers, and sang magnificently in the last two acts, her fine voice making ample amends for any variations from the traditional dramatic acting of the part. At the end of each act she had repeated curtain calls.

LAST CHANCE TO VISIT LONG ISLAND GARDENS

Those of Mrs. H. Van R. Kennedy and Doubleday, Doran on View to Public Today.

The series of Long Island garden visits which began early in May will end this afternoon with the opening to the public of Mrs. H. Van Rensselaer Kennedy's gardens in Hempstead and those of Doubleday, Doran, Inc., in Garden City. Proceeds from the slight admission charged will aid the Wayside Home for Girls in Valley Stream.

Mrs. Kennedy's place, Three Oaks, is featured by its rose gardens, which display many varieties, including species of ramblers trained over artistically designed trellises. In the centre of the rose gardens is a unique sun dial, while at one end is a rustic tea house. The rock garden and perennial-bordered flower beds are other features of the place.

The Doubleday, Doran grounds have been planned to illustrate various types and styles of garden design. A rock garden, an old-fashioned garden, an unusual evergreen plot with rare Asiatic shrubs and a rose garden of unusual design are among the features. The flower-bordered fountains, one on either side of a wide brick walk, lead from a brick courtyard to the main entrance of the company's building, which is of Tudor design. H. Hobart Porter's office at 50 Broad Street has charge of tickets.

Many from New York will visit three Westchester gardens to be exhibited tomorrow in aid of the Westchester County Children's Association. The first estate, that of Senator and Mrs. Seabury Mastick in Pleasantville, can be approached over the Bronx River Parkway extension through Hawthorne to the Bear Ridge Road, Pleasantville. The place has an English garden surrounded by hemlock hedges, the paths arched by climbing roses now in their prime. Shrubs and roses border a bowling green, and from a terrace there is an admirable view.

From Pleasantville, the gardens of Mrs. Victor Guinzburg can be reached over the Bedford State Road to Chappaqua. There are three lakes on this estate, which is featured also by a sunken garden and rose garden.

Seven Springs Farm, the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer on the Byram Lake Road, Mount Kisco, next will be shown. It is one of the largest estates in the county, and among its attractions are extensive boxwood gardens. Many drives wind through the woods on the estate.

The Westchester exhibits will end on July 2 with the exhibition of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Brewster's place in Mount Kisco.

MAMARONECK, N. Y., June 26.—New holes have been cut in eighteen greens, yellow flagsticks have replaced those of the basket type, 200 marshals have been counted off and assigned their places, the final practice rounds have been played and everything is in readiness for the opening round of the thirty-third national open championship, which will start on the west course of the Winged Foot Golf Club tomorrow morning.

Beginning at 8:30 o'clock, even before the dew will be off the grass, the first pair of golfers, Ira Couch, Chicago amateur, and Kean Donnelly, Philmont professional, will drive off and the 1929 championship, golf's blue-ribbon event, will be on. Other pairs will follow at intervals of five minutes each, and between the starting time and 6 o'clock tomorrow night the famous Westchester course will be the parade ground for the world's foremost linksmen, amateurs as well as professionals.

The field, carefully culled by process of eliminations from approximately one thousand entries, was further reduced yesterday by the withdrawal of five who qualified in the thirteen sectional tests held early in June, and now consists of 148 players.

One Ex-Champion Absent.

Among them are all but one of the winners of every open championship that has been played between 1921, when Long Jim Barnes of Pelham spreadeagled the field at the Columbia Country Club in Washington, and last year, when Johnny Farrell broke through the barrier by defeating Bobby Jones by a one-stroke margin in a sensational thirty-six hole playoff at Olympia Fields in Chicago.

Cyril Walker, diminutive professional who won fame and glory by beating the field at Oakland Hills in 1924, will not be on hand when play starts tomorrow, having failed to qualify by a stroke, but he is the only champion in the last eight years who will be absent. To offset his loss, there is Hagen, winner in 1914 and again in 1919 and present holder of the British open title, and Wee Freddie McLeod of Washington, who won the national open back in 1908, even before some of those in the present field were born.

Practically all of the contestants were on hand today, taking their farewell glances at the course that will either make or mar them between tomorrow morning and Saturday night when, unless there should be a tie such as has happened five times in post-war championship history, a new champion will be crowned.

Busy in Practice Rounds.

So far as could be learned there was only one who was content to forego a practice round. That was Bobby Jones of Atlanta, who, tapering off with a Ti Tuesday on top of one or two rounds below 70, probably decided to let well enough alone and not tempt fate any further. Farrell, the defending champion, confined himself to playing nine holes in 35, the best figure he has had recently, but most of the others went around the course at least once and several of them played double-rounds.

Jones, the man who is generally accepted as the one to beat in order to win, visited the course, carrying his famous putter, Calamity Jane Jr., but spent his time as a member of the various galleries. Farrell, not especially optimistic until today, when he began hitting his shots better than he has since he returned from the British open in which he finished second, was considerably cheered by the return of his favorite driver, the weapon that served him in such good stead at Chicago last year. He had left it with Jack White, famous British clubmaker, to be copied and it was just returned to him today.

Hagen, who has not been playing the course any too well, either, went eighteen holes in the afternoon, playing with George Christ, Rochester professional, who was his assistant back in the days when Walter was a club professional, and was in a much happier frame of mind than he was on the day before.

Predictions of Golf Stars.

Both Farrell and Hagen concur in the belief that it is going to take something like 292 or 293 to win the championship, while Jones is of the opinion that the winning total will be 293 or 294. That is, providing the weather holds as it is.

All three are agreed, as are most others in the field, that it is going to be a great championship and that the course, in spite of its burned condition, will afford a real test of golf.

It is unfortunate, indeed, that the drought, which has seared most courses to a crisp in the past few weeks, has made Winged Foot so fast, cutting its playing length down from 6,800 yards, which it was four weeks ago, to approximately 6,500 yards now. But in spite of the baked condition of the fairways, changing drive and long iron holes into drive and pitch holes, the course still remains a great test.

In the opinion of many, one being Jones, the four short holes at Winged Foot will have a lot to do in deciding who is going to be crowned the year's champion. As Bobby views them, they are even harder than Oakmont's four famous one-shotters. Most of the two-shot holes which would have proved troublesome had the championship been held three weeks earlier are no longer difficult, and many are frequently getting home in the three-shotters with a drive and a brassie or spoon.

But the one-shot holes remain unchanged and it would not be at all surprising if they are the ones that will settle the fate of the championship.

Greens Are Hard to Hit.

According to Bobby, the man who makes 3s on all four of them in any one round will pick up strokes on the rest of the field, for, while the greens are not unusually small and hold well, as do all the Winged Foot greens, they are hard to hit and are surrounded by trouble in the way of bunkers.

Standing on the tenth tee today, the shots that failed to hit the tenth green outnumbered those that did by a big margin. Hagen, for instance, hit three successive balls toward the hole and failed to put one of them on, and he was no exception to the general run.

The outstanding favorite for the title that will be up for sale, unless Farrell succeeds in accomplishing a feat no one has accomplished since the days of Johnny McDermott, is Jones. That is only natural, for since 1922, when he finished second to Gene Sarazen at Skokie, Bobby has won twice, tied twice only to lose in play-offs, and finished either second or tied for second in every championship except one, that being the 1927 event at Oakmont. He has seldom come to a championship playing as well as he is at the present moment and as sage-like Diegel put it today, if any one breaks 290 it will be Jones, he being too modest to mention himself.

Others Favored in Test.

After Jones it is every man to his own choice. There are those who favor the chances of Hagen, Macfarlane, Diegel, Burke, Cooper, Sarazen, Tommy Armour, Macdonald Smith, Horton Smith and Farrell. There are likewise those who are willing to go beyond the list of such outstanding stars and pin their faith on some of the youngsters who are not so famous—on outside choices.

On the form displayed in the practice rounds since the first of the week the writer would say Jones first and then Burke. No one, barring Bobby, has been more consistent around the Winged Foot course than has the young professional who recently won the New York State open championship with a score of 287 over the Westchester Biltmore course. Having had three rounds on Monday and Tuesday in 71, 72 and 73, Burke tapered off today with a 73.

But, while practice rounds are all one has to base judgments on, they mean comparatively little. They merely indicate that a man is playing well on the eve of a championship and bolster his own confidence in himself just that much. There's a vast difference between shooting for a tightly-bunkered green with nothing at stake and shooting for the same green in the knowledge that missing it may mean the loss of the championship.

Judging by the way some of the boys have been scoring on the course of late, a total of 292 or 293 seems rather high, but starting tomorrow it is four rounds, not one, and while some one may get started and reel off a 68 on one round, the same player may take 74 or 75 on the next, it all depending on whether or not they are missing the bunkers and on how their putters are working.

One of the interesting things to watch in the next few days will be the annual battle between the home-breds and the foreign-borns and that between the amateurs and the professionals. There are not a great many amateurs in the field, but there are some good ones besides Jones, George Von Elm and Harrison Johnston, for instance.

THREE YALE GOLFERS SCORE IN TOURNEY

DUNLAP, MEDALIST, PUT OUT

By LINCOLN A. WERDEN.

Special to The New York Times.

DEAL, N. J., June 26.—Three members of Yale's golf team, which lost the team title yesterday to Princeton after a nine-hole play-off in the intercollegiate championship over the Hollywood Golf Club links, came through the first two match-play rounds triumphant, while a fourth Yale man, Melvin Newman, not on the team, was responsible for a good share of the day's surprises.

This afternoon in the second round Newman had a lead of 1 up at the sixteenth hole against the defending champion, Maurice J. McCarthy Jr., and carried the match an extra hole before the Georgetown player won, 1 up, at the nineteenth. Earlier in the day it was Newman who was responsible for the first important elimination when he disposed of C. D. (Chuck) Hunter of the University of Washington, 6 and 5, who made the transcontinental trip with Don Moe of the University of Oregon to play in this tourney.

When McCarthy was trailing at the sixteenth it seemed that only two of the favorites, Moe and Lester Bolstad of Minnesota, the big ten title-holder, would be among the survivors for the third round. For by that time George T. Dunlap Jr. of Princeton, the medalist, had been beaten 4 and 3 by his teammate, John C. Jones, a nd Phillips Finlay of Harvard, who lost to Bobby Jones in the semi-final of the National Amateur at Brae Burn last Fall, had been eliminated by the Georgetown player, Joseph F. Beger, 2 and 1.

One Princeton Man Remains.

Princeton, which led with six qualifiers, has only one left, Jones. Georgetown has two to match Yale's remaining four, and the Western colleges are represented by Moe and Bolstad.

Yale's victors included the captain, Marshall Forrest, who disposed of Johnny Stevens, leader of the victorious Princeton team yesterday by 1 up; Fred Bannerot, who defeated Fred McFawn of the University of Detroit by the same margin and Tommy Aycock, the Florida amateur champion, who shot a splendid 36 against John Foisy of Georgetown over the first nine and then went on to win by 7 and 6.

Bolstad scored by 3 and 2 against F. P. Hersey of Princeton, whose brother Winthrop lost to Dunlap this morning in the luck of the draw that brought two Princeton men together and later two more—Jones and Dunlap; while Moe, who has been improving daily since his 85 in the first day's qualifying round, defeated Richard Wilson of Georgetown, 2 and 1.

Tomorrow Beger will oppose Bannerot, Forrest will meet Moe, while McCarthy and Aycock, Bolstad and Jones will be opponents in the other matches, respectively.

Newman Starts Impressively.

McCarthy realized by the way Newman started out, what sort of a battle was coming, for the Yale boy, also a New Yorker, was two up over the first three holes. McCarthy had bagged a birdie 3 to begin with, but Newman was 3, 4, 2 on the following three, exactly two under par and although McCarthy was outdriving him continually Newman made up for this by fine work around the greens and a confidence that seemed to increase as he went along.

Newman was out in 39 and up as McCarthy took the ninth with a 4 for his 37. But for the rest of the match, Newman worked as hard as he could trying to stave off the eventual defeat. It was heroic work. Once, at the dog-leg thirteenth, Newman hooked his tee shot badly into the woods. The ball struck a tree well back into the rough, but Newman took a niblick and pitched the ball over the trees to the green seventy-five yards away and sank a 4 to halve the hole. He was still 1 up after that, but McCarthy holed a six-footer for a birdie 3 at the next hole to square the match.

Then Newman came right back. He pitched from the rough at the short hole, where he had hooked a tee shot again, and dropped a four-footer for a par 3, McCarthy failing to get his, after being trapped in front of the green. Following the 5 each tallied to halve the sixteenth. McCarthy drove to the green of the seventeenth, 240 yards away, holed his 3, since Newman was trapped on his tee shot.

Loses Chance to Win Match.

The Yale player had a chance to win at the eighteenth when he left himself a putt of only eight feet for a birdie 3, but he took a 4 as did McCarthy to send the match to the nineteenth. At that hole, he could also have saved himself a halve after being short in two but a four-footer did not go down for the 4. McCarthy's round was 37—39—76 and Newman's, 39—40—79.

Dunlap's elimination came as the result of some unsteady golf. He seemed to show the effect of the qualifying round and the extra hole battle with Princeton for team honors yesterday, in which he played an important part. Jones was 2 up over the first nine, and Dunlap couldn't make any headway the rest of the way. In fact he three-putted the tenth and was 3 down and then he knocked Jones's ball into the cup trying to get around a partial stymie at the twelfth, which gave Jones the hole with a 4.

Beger, one of Georgetown's fine match players, was all even with the long hitting Finlay for the first nine, which both played in 36, Finlay being stymied at both the eighth and ninth. Beger clinched the match at the seventeenth by sinking a thirty-footer for a 3 across the rolling green.

Newman was 5 up over the first nine against Hunter, who had a great deal of trouble with his drive, which was the chief cause of his defeat. Newman was out in 38 to Hunter's 42 and added the eleventh coming in for his 6 and 5 margin.

THE SUMMARIES.

First Round—Phillips Finlay, Harvard, defeated D. W. Murray, North Carolina, 3 and 1; J. H. Beger, Georgetown, defeated W. M. Swoope, Yale, 1 up; Fred McFawn, Detroit, defeated George L. Nye, Williams, 4 and 3; Fred Bannerot, Yale, defeated Rodney Coltart, Penn, 1 up; J. B. Stewart, Princeton, defeated R. Goldwater, Illinois, 6 and 5; M. R. Forrest, Yale, defeated Charles F. Sheldon, Lehigh, 1 up (19 holes); R. Wilson, Georgetown, defeated W. R. Ford, Princeton, 3 and 2; Don Moe, Oregon, defeated J. H. Beale, Union, 2 and 1.

Second Round—Beger defeated Finlay, 2 and 1; Bannerot defeated McFawn, 1 up; Forrest defeated Stevens, 1 up; Moe defeated Wilson, 2 and 1.

OTHER FAVORITES LOSE

Special to The New York Times.

Miss Helen Hicks of Long Island, who made almost a clean sweep of the Bermuda, Florida and Miami tournaments during the Winter season, bowed before Miss Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, Wis., while Mrs. Helen B. Stetson, former natonal champion; Miss Marion Turpie and Miss Ada Mackenzie suffered a similar fate.

Miss Peggy Wattles, Buffalo's district champion, and Miss Virginia Wilson of Chicago, who had the low medal in the qualifier, triumphed.

Miss Wattles defeated Mrs. W. C. Boggs of Pittsburgh by 6 up and 5 to play, while Miss Wilson scored almost as handily in subduing Miss Honor Bright of Niagara Falls, 4 and 3.

The Misses Hicks-Wall match attracted the largest gallery and it was not decided until the eighteenth green was reached. Miss Wall was 2 up at the turn and she held tenaciously to this lead until the seventeenth, where the Long Island player sliced the margin to 1 up. Miss Hicks had a brilliant opportunity to square the match on the eighteenth, where a three-foot putt would have given her the hole, but she missed it, while Miss Wall got hers down for a halve and victory.

Miss Wattles took the first five holes in her match with Mrs. Boggs. She reached the turn 6 up, after holding her chip shot from off the eighth green for a birdie 2, and might have finished it up on the twelfth but for the fact that she missed an easy two-foot putt.

The cards:

Miss Wattles	5	4	5	4	4	4	6	2	5—39
Mrs. Boggs	6	5	6	3	5	3	6	3	6—45

Mrs. Boggs	5	5	4	5

Mrs. Leo Federman of New York created a stir when she defeated Miss Turpie by 2 up. The Southern champion got off to a two-hole lead when Mrs. Federman's putter played her false, but the New Yorker won the eighth with a birdie, dropping her tee shot four feet from the pin and getting down her putt for a deuce. She also won the ninth to reach the turn all square, and then took the sixteenth and eighteenth.

MISS PARKER SETS NEW COURSE MARK

MRS. HUCKNALL ADVANCES

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 26.—Relegated to the background when she failed to qualify, Miss Martha Parker of the home club, one of the scratch players in the metropolitan district, forced herself to the front of the women's Westchester and Fairfield Golf Association championship tournament today over the Westchester Hills links by setting a new course record with a brilliant round of 78.

The strange part about Miss Parker's sensational scoring is that it does not help her in the slightest to retain her Westchester and Fairfield title. All it brought her was a victory in the second sixteen, which means not a thing as far as the championship play is concerned. On Monday Miss Parker unreeled a score of 95, which was not good enough to permit her to qualify.

By registering a 78, Miss Parker broke her own record, which has endured for five years. Prior to the record round of the home player, the old record of 80 was threatened by Mrs. Thomas Hucknall of Woodway, the Connecticut State champion, whose district handicap is 2. A pair of short missed putts deprived Mrs. Hucknall of equaling Miss Parker's 78, but she managed to tie the old record with an 80 a few minutes before Miss Parker came in with new figures.

Mrs. Hucknall Wins, 5 and 4.

Whereas Miss Parker's low scoring was unable to bring her closer to the title, Mrs. Hucknall's fine round enabled her to conquer Mrs. C. W. Breck of Siwanoy, 5 and 4. The Connecticut champion was scoring so well when the match round terminated on the fourteenth green that she continued on to the end of the round.

Mrs. Hucknall will meet Mrs. H. Arnold Jackson of Greenwich, another low handicap player, in one semi-final match tomorrow morning, while in the other semi-final Mrs. John Lapham of Woodway, a scratch player and former Westchester and Fairfield champion, will clash with Miss Catharine Singer of the Westchester Biltmore.

Mrs. Jackson advanced by means of a round of 84, which enabled her to triumph over Mrs. George Hitt, Jr. of Apawamis, 1 up. Mrs. Lapham was scoring in the low 90s when her match with Mrs. Basil Harris of Apawamis ended on the fourteenth green with Mrs. Lapham the victor, 5 and 4. In the other quarter-final encounter Miss Singer vanquished Mrs. Edward Stevens of Greenwich, 4 and 3. Miss Singer's medal card was 83.

Putting Is Excellent

In her record round Miss Parker was driving well and her putting was generally excellent. She did not have a three-putt green in her entire round, and except for her rimming of two short shots her work on the greens was beyond reproach. She had only had thirteen putts on the outgoing nine and only sixteen on the incoming trip.

Miss Parker's and Mrs. Hucknall's cards as contrasted to men's par:

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 26.—Wilbur Coen, Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory and Miss Marjorie Morrill were the only Americans to fall by the wayside on the Wimbledon courts today. Bill Tilden's 17-year-old protégé was defeated by the youthful Frenchman, Christian Boussus, after a bitter struggle, 6—4, 10—8, 7—5; Mrs. Mallory lost to the German women's champion, Fraulein Cecile Aussem, 6—4, 6—1, while Miss Morrill bowed to the English girl, Miss Eileen Bennett, in straight sets, 6—3, 6—3.

All the rest of the American contingent swept ahead with impressive victories. Flashes of Tilden's greatness appeared now and again in his defeat of the German champion, H. Prenn, 6—0, 6—0, 6—6. John Hennessey disposed of the British player, J. H. Frowen in a businesslike manner, 6—2, 6—1, 7—5, while George Lott romped past the Italian, L. Bonzi, 6—1, 6—0, 6—3.

Among the women Miss Helen Wills had little more than a practice session in overwhelming Mrs. K. Schomburgh of Germany in two love sets.

British Get Lion's Share.

To two young British players went the lion's share of the day's glory. Fresh from his grueling struggle in defeating Francis T. Hunter yesterday H. W. (Bunny) Austin rose to even greater heights in eliminating the Frenchman, Jacques Brugnon, by the decisive margin of 6—3, 6—4, 6—0.

Not to be outdone by Austin, Nigel Sharpe upset the Italian, Baron De Morpurgo, 6—2, 6—4, 4—6, 6—3. The result is that whatever may happen in the next round nothing can prevent a British player from entering the last eight days, and that's something that hasn't happened in British tennis for seven years.

The French contingent had far from a happy day. For a few breathless moments it seemed that Henri Cochet might meet with disaster before the sweeping strokes of the tall Irishman, G. L. Rogers. The crowd which packed the stands around No. 5 court watched incredulously while the great Cochet was extended to five sets by an obscure outsider. Cochet was clearly off his form—some said he was not well. The lanky Celt with an enormous reach gave him a stern battle in all parts of the court, with Cochet finally winning, 6—4, 6—0, 6—7, 4—6, 6—3.

Austin Provides Big Thrill.

But it was Brugnon's decisive defeat and Austin's triumph which gave Wimbledon its greatest thrill. Brugnon always has been the mainstay of the French team although he has never been as great as Lacoste, Cochet or Borotra. His defeat of John Van Ryn yesterday raised his stock enormously. As for Austin he had come through his long, wearing match against Hunter and the crowd was ready to forgive him if he should lose.

Austin came on the court fresh as a daisy. His control was shrewder and cleverer, if anything, than yesterday when he bewildered Hunter by his cross-court smashes. His variation of pace and direction left Brugnon hopelessly perplexed. Although his tempo was not swift than the Frenchman's and his drives from deep court less powerful Austin remained master of the situation. He seldom was wild or puzzled. He placed his shots just where he wanted them—often far out of Brugnon's reach.

Brugnon Fights in Vain.

Against the English youth's generalship, Brugnon put up a resourceful struggle through most of the first eight and eight games of the second. Then he went to pieces. All his experience, his varied store of strokes were unavailing against his young opponent who won eight games in a row at the end of the match. Brugnon crashed returns into the net, sent them flying out of court and generally gave a sorry exhibition.

There were honest-to-goodness cheers not often heard at Wimbledon when Austin trotted off the court, yet it may be that in the first flush of pleasure at having a British winner in England is building up extravagant hopes for Austin. He is only 21 years old and lacks the stamina of such veterans as Cochet and Lacoste. He has not yet been tested in a stiff five-set match with a sturdy opponent. Despite his resounding victories yesterday and today it would be surprising to see him reach the semi-finals.

MAX RULES 6-5 FAVORITE

Basque Due to Arrive by Plane From Albany This Morning—To Weigh In at 1:45 P. M.

CROWD OF 40,000 EXPECTED

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

The stage is set for the annual Milk Fund charity boxing carnival. Tonight at the Yankee Stadium ten heavyweights are to battle in a program which includes forty-five rounds of boxing.

Paulino, powerful product of the Pyrenees, is to battle Max Schmeling, sturdy young German, in the principal bout of this all-star heavyweight card. They are scheduled for fifteen rounds, in a clash which will open the gates of fame and fortune to the winner and relegate the loser to the background.

In a ten-round semi-final, Otto Von Porat, Chicago heavyweight, will tackle K. O. Christner, Akron (Ohio) boxer, who proved something of a ring sensation on his last visit here. Another ten-round bout will bring together Angus Snyder, Canadian prospect, and Johnny Grosso, tried and true Italian heavyweight of Mount Vernon.

Then there will be a six-round bout between Roy Wallace and Primo Uvaldo and, completing the card is the opening preliminary of four rounds, in which Jackie Saunders will face Jerry Pavelec.

Bouts to Start at 8 o'Clock.

The program is to start at 8 o'clock. The main bout will begin at or about 10 o'clock. In the event of rain causing a postponement, William F. Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, who is directing the show as his first important local ring enterprise since the death of Tex Rickard, announced the proceedings will be scheduled for tomorrow night.

However, Carey declared positively that it wouldn't rain, with more confidence in his ability as a weather forecaster than assurance. Watching the Schmeling-Paulino fight and the four other battles, it is expected, will be a crowd of some 40,000 persons in a gathering which will include the regular fight fan, the mildly curious and those who wish to do something for charity and have no objection to viewing a ring tilt in the fulfillment of this impulse.

Men and women prominent in every walk of life have purchased tickets at $50 each, which is the ringside price. Some have paid even more, when disappointed in obtaining the tickets of their choice at the box office in the Garden and subsidiary distributing points, they have turned to the unscrupulous speculators.

Thousands of others are to be at the stadium on tickets they purchased at $25, $20, $15, $10, $7, $5 or $3, which is the scale of prices, ranging from the ringside section and extending to the far-flung bleachers.

Large Gate Is Indicated.

It has been predicted by the more enthusiastic assistants of President Carey that the fight will attract a gate of $750,000. Joe Boyton, chief of the Garden box-office staff, is the most insistent on this figure. But Carey, more conservative, emphasizes that he does not guarantee this estimate.

It is more probable that the receipts will aggregate between $400,000 and $500,000, a figure which will place the carnival among the great financial successes of an exciting boxing era from the financial side, and at the same time produce a handsome profit for the Milk Fund.

Schmeling and Paulino each have signed for 20 per cent of the receipts. A generous estimate of other expenses accounts for 20 per cent more, so that the Milk Fund is assured of at least 40 per cent of the receipts.

Tickets to the capacity of the Stadium, totaling 90,000, were printed at the various prices when the match was signed, interest running high at the time, it had been predicted the carnival would attract the much-sought million dollar gate.

Waning interest reduced the original estimates on receipts and brought a reduction in the number of $50 tickets. Originally there were 7,000 of these rather high-priced pasteboards, but when they didn't attract a demand, the prices were reduced to $25 for tickets back of the seventeenth ringside row.

Four Thousand Tickets at $50 Each.

The cut of top-priced seats left about 4,000 $50 tickets. At the box-office yesterday, Manager Boyton stressed the fact that plenty of tickets are still available at the various prices. They will be on sale all day today at Madison Square Garden and at ticket booths at the Yankee Stadium, elaborate plans having been made for accommodating late demands in a closing-day flood of fight enthusiasts.

Paulino and Schmeling will arrive in the city today. Taking a leaf from the book of Gene Tunney, Paulino is to fly from Albany in a twin-motored Sikorsky plane, piloted by Captain Harry W. Rogers, especially engaged by the Garden Corporation. Paulino's journey to Albany from Hoosic Falls, N. Y., will be made by auto.

Schmeling has arranged to motor from his camp at Lakewood, N. J., this morning. At 1:45 o'clock this afternoon the boxers are to weigh in at the Yankee Stadium. Then each will go to his quiet retreat, where protected from the annoyance of well-wishers and the idly curious, the summons to the ring will be awaited.

On the eve of the battle Schmeling was generally a favorite to win. Betting on the bout, however, has been quiet. At the race track yesterday Schmeling was quoted the favorite at odds of 13 to 10. Fred Schumm, veteran Brooklyn betting commissioner, said last night that the odds were 6 to 5 in favor of Schmeling, but with little or no action because of a dearth of Paulino money.

Independent investigation revealed that in some parts of the city Schmeling was the favorite, while in others Paulino was favored. But in no instance was a sizable bet discovered, the general trend being for modest wagers. This can be accounted for by the fact that the object of speculation is a contest between two foreigners.

There is not the keen, controversial interest invariably manifested in a match between a homebred and a foreigner, a condition which, undoubtedly, has contributed in no small measure to the disapointing advance sale as compared with enthusiastic original forecasts. Only a terrific last-day demand will bring the receipts up to $500,000, according to well-informed authorities, and in anticipation of this demand elaborate precautions have been taken for policing the Stadium.

Inside and outside the grounds will be stationed close to 1,000 policemen, including one inspector, one deputy inspector, six captains, thirteen lieutenants, sixty-seven foot sergeants, one mounted sergeant, forty-one mounted patrolmen, 699 foot patrolmen, all assigned to duty from 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

In addition hundreds of special policemen have been engaged for the occasion, as well as the customary army of ushers. Admittance gates to the bleacher sections will be thrown open at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The main gates will be opened two hours later.

SCHMELING VICTORY PREDICTED BY MOTHER

'I Feel Positive My Son Will Win,' She Declares—Bout Odds Even in Berlin.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 26.—There is at least one maternal heart in the fatherland which is beating confidently in regard to the outcome of the Schmeling-Paulino bout. "In the secret folds of my heart I feel positive that my son will win," Max Schmeling's mother said, in answer to a question as to what chances she gave her son for tomorrow's contest.

Sitting before her writing desk, she held in her hands the last letter received from her son, in which he told her that he was confident. "Max told me before leaving that the hardest fight of his life had been against Johnny Risco and that he considered Paulino less dangerous and—you see, he ought to know." And looking smilingly up to one of the many pictures of Max lining the wall, she added, "All my thoughts and best wishes will be with him all the time."

American tourists are offering odds on Schmeling, but are unable to find takers. While betting on the bout has been very light in Germany and odds are even, there is a prediction in favor of the German boxing idol. "The entire German boxing world hopes, nay, is 100 per cent confident, that Max will win," President Koslowsky of the German Boxing Union declared. "Max has seldom found an opponent who suits him as well as Paulino, who is a 'coming man,' and Max is at his best at countering."

Germany's boxing veteran, Samson Koerner, declared laconically: "Max will certainly win because the German Dempsey cannot lose. He is able to hit hard and has learned immensely from Manager Jacobs." On the other hand, there are some pessimists who point out that Schmeling was easily knocked out by Gipsy Daniels and might meet the same fate at Paulino's hands, but these are by far in the minority. The sporting papers favor Schmeling, who is "less experienced and did not rise like a regular fighter but went up like a rocket. He has quicker legs, brains, youth, a longer reach and—knows exactly what he's about."

The eyes of the German boxing world will also turn toward Turin, Italy, where Hein Mueller, Schmeling's successor as German champion, will attempt to wrest the European title from Bonaglio, who was knocked out by Schmeling two years ago.

Al Singer moved a step nearer to the top of the junior lightweight heap when he outpointed Dominick Petrone of Harlem in a spirited ten-round battle which featured the card at the Queensboro Stadium last night. Some 9,000 fans attended.

With telling blows, Singer's superior boxing ability earned him the verdict. The Bronx sensation feinted his rival out of position a number of times during the ten rounds and availed himself of these opportunities to reach Petrone with crushing rights.

One of these punches in the third round opened a cut on Petrone's nose, which bled profusely for the remainder of the bout. Petrone staged his usual long-range attack, and though he bothered Singer in the early rounds with this style, the latter soon found a defense and evaded the greater part of Petrone's attacks. Each boxer weighed 129½ pounds.

Patsy Ruffalo of Mount Vernon defeated Georgie Day, New Haven, in the ten-round semi-final. The bout was marked by much hauling and tugging, each boxer endeavoring to wear the other down with a body attack. Ruffalo staggered his opponent on one occasion but could not score a knockdown.

Day fought at a rapid pace in spurts but his rallies were smothered by Ruffalo. Day, weighing 137 pounds, was five pounds heavier than Ruffalo.

HAMMOND'S CENTURY WINS FOR GLOUCESTER

LONDON, June 26 (Canadian Press).—Scoring his fourth century in his last five appearances, Wally Hammond, England batsman, placed his county, Gloucestershire, in a strong position in the cricket match with Glamorganshire at Swansea today. Other five innings were played by Taylor, the South African, who scored 170 against Norfolk at Norwich; Barnes, who made 133 for the Marylebone Club against Cambridge University; George Geary, the England bowler, who turned in 102 for Leicester against Lancashire; Sutcliffe, who was 119, not out, for Yorkshire against Northamptonshire, and Woolley, who got 108 for Kent against Somersetshire.

In the earlier part of the match the wickets favored the bowlers and some fine performances were recorded, Dennis's five wickets for 12 runs for Yorkshire against Northamptonshire being the best.

BAKER IS VICTOR IN LEVINE MATCH

Sammy Baker, Mitchel Field welterweight, outfought and outslugged Georgie Levine of Williamsburg in carrying off the decision in the feature ten-round bout at Dexter Park last night before a crowd of 3,500 persons. The judges were Jim Brooks and C. W. Dingee. Danny Ridge was the referee.

The first two rounds were uneventful, neither boxer taking any chances or leaving any openings. In the third Baker got in several hard blows to Levine's body, and toward the end of the round he stung Levine with a right to the head.

Baker rocked Levine in the fourth with another hard right to the face and a moment later put over a hard left. During this round Referee Ridge warned Levine about the continual holding in the clinches. Levine opened the fifth with several well-timed left hooks to Baker's face, but just before the bell Baker made his knees sag with a solid smash to the jaw.

The soldier-boxer continued to send snappy jolts to Levine's head through the sixth and seventh rounds, occasionally sending in hard rights to the body. Levine assumed the aggressive for a brief spell during the eighth round, but in the ninth and final rounds Baker swarmed all over Levine, scoring heavily with hard lefts and rights to the face and body.

Joe La Bate, Greenwich Village lightweight, exhibited a rare quality of courage in earning a draw with Martie Ross in the first six-round bout. Badly battered in the first minute of the first round, during which he suffered a badly cut lip, La Bate fought back stubbornly and willingly traded punches with his opponent. La Bate weighed 135¾ and Ross was a pound lighter.

Plan to Make Life-Size Bronze of Man o' War; Statue Would Be Placed at Churchill Downs

FRANKFORT, Ky., June 26 (AP).—Plans to immortalize Man o' War by having made a life size bronze of the famous race horse were disclosed here yesterday by Governor Flem D. Sampson, following an exchange of letters with Frank C. Reilly of New York, who conceived the idea.

Mr. Reilly saw Man o' War at Lexington during a tour of the Kentucky Bluegrass as a member of the Governor's party on the Sunday after Derby day this year and recently wrote Governor Sampson. Mr. Reilly said he has obtained the consent of F. G. R. Roth, a sculptor, to model Man o' War.

Mr. Reilly wired the Governor that the consent of Samuel D. Riddle, owner of Man o' War, has been obtained subject to arrangements being made with Miss Elizabeth Daingerfield, who has charge of Man o' War, as to the time the modeling is to be done.

It is planned to have the bronze cast from the sculptor's model by Bertelli, and to place it at Churchill Downs, the course over which the historic Kentucky Derby is run annually. Man o' War is now in stud at the Daingerfield farm near Lexington.

The cost of the casting, delivered in Louisville, would be $7,600, Mr. Reilly advised the Governor, adding that he would head the subscription list with a contribution of $250. The commission of the sculptor will be borne by Mr. Reilly personally, he said.

NINA PLACED FIRST IN YACHTING RACE

ACTUALLY SECOND ACROSS

Finishes 6 Hours and 50 Minutes Astern of Metcalf's Boat—Sloop Nautilus Is Third.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 26.—The staysail schooner Nina, owned by Paul Hammond and Elihu Root Jr. of New York, with a ten-hour time advantage over the schooner Sachem, scratch boat in the New London-Gibson Island yacht race, unofficially is the winner in its class, according to computations made by the racing committee at Gibson Island, where the competing vessels have crossed the finish line at the mouth of the Magothy River.

The Nina, winner of the New York-Santander transatlantic race last year, and of the Fastnet race, the British classic, sailed across the line 6 hours and 50 minutes behind the Sachem of New York, owned by Rowe M. Metcalf. The Nina competed in the Class A for yachts between 53 and 75 feet long.

The actual time of the class winners and the official winner of the entire race will not be known until the time allowances made to the various yachts are computed.

The Sachem made the 475 miles from New London in three days and three hours. This is considered good time and surprised the Gibson Islanders, who did not expect the first vessel until today.

MAYS PUT OUT BY UMPIRE

By WILLIAM E. BRANDT.

Our interborough feud's June chapter wound up with an eleventh-inning tussle yesterday at the Polo Grounds, a tight battle all the way. Strong pitching on both sides devitalized the lively ball most of the afternoon. At the end of the ninth inning the totals were tie, 2-2.

Jack Scott, who shared with Carl Mays the timid honor of outpitching Dazzy Vance, collected the victory credit in the pitching records by driving home the winning run of the 3-2 score with a noisy single to centre.

Two were out in the eleventh and the bases empty when O'Farrell fired a liner to left centre and slid safely to second ahead of Johnny Frederick's fast retrieving. Scott had singled off Vance in the ninth, so the percentage was all against him in this pinch.

Blow Ends the Battle.

Gaunt Jack incurred two strikes before connecting with the ball. Then came one swishing swing that decided the day's issue. The moment of impact settled the fate of the game. Jack's drive over second was a hit all the way out through the grass to Frederick, who did not even bother to throw to the plate when the ball reached him.

Even though the five-straight Brooklyn winning streak over the Giants was cut short by the ultimate decision, the mystic spell of the Robins over the Giants held good right up to this happy combination of battery batting in the eleventh. About 8,000 watchers saw the Giants out hit their Flatbush rivals, 9 to 4, in the regulation nine innings without getting any better than a tie for their batting.

The Robinsonian jinx looked deadliest in the second inning when Andy Cohen's double against the left field stands was closely followed by Jackson's single to right. Cohen set out for home plate, but developed more momentum than he could manage when he reached third. Andy had speed without control. He took a wide sweep. Coach Schalk tried to get out of the way. Cohen and Schalk did a football soil. Cohen was up first, but fell again trying to scramble back to third. Vance cut off the outfield throw and nailed Cohen at third.

Mays Put Out of Game.

The Giants took a 2-0 lead in the third. Leach's long double in back of Roush's infield single put one run over. Ott's single and Cohen's sacrifice fly forwarded Leach home. Mays pitched strongly as long as he stayed, departing by umpirical request after a close play at the plate in the fourth. May's control wobbled a bit to create the baseline congestion in this inning, but the Robins did not reach him for any damaging drives.

Mays walked Hendrick for a starter, then Bissonette's roller went to centre field just out of Jackson's reach for a single. Mays hit Bressler with the ball, filling the bases. Bancroft tapped lightly toward third. Mays pounced on the ball but threw it to the plate so high that O'Farrell had to stretch to catch it.

Hendrick's scored. Mays and O'Farrell staged a storm scene on the close decision which ended with Mays marching to the bench. Jack Scott answered the emergency call and struck out Rhiel. Then the base lines broke into the story again. On DeBerry's fly to Ott, Bancroft roamed too far from first. Jackson made a beautiful cut-off of Ott's homeward throw and nailed Banny near first base.

The only scoring between the fourth and the seventh was Brooklyn's tying run in the seventh. Bancroft opened with a walk. Rhiel got a double on his long fly over Leach's head. DeBerry bounced to Jackson. Bancroft held third. Jackson tried to nail Rhiel off second, but the ball got away from Cohen at the bag and Bancroft scored.

Pitching Is Excellent.

With these few exceptions the pitching was brilliant on both sides. Vance looked best in the fourth when he reared up on his toes and fanned O'Farrell, Scott and Roush in flattening succession. But the great Homosassan couldn't do that to them again in the eleventh and therefore lost a hard-fought mound duel.

It was Babe Herman's twenty-sixth birthday. He hated to celebrate it on the bench and the first base coaching lines, but such is life.

Giants-White Sox Are to Tour In Spring Exhibition Series

The Spring exhibition series between the Giants and Washington, an annual feature since 1925, will not rage next year. Secretary James J. Tierney of the Giants yesterday announced that the Chicago White Sox will be the traveling companions of the Giants on their way North next Spring. The Sox expect to train somewhere in Texas, so that the two teams can hook up for their series as soon as the Giants break camp at San Antonio. A trip to Mexico may be arranged before the teams start pointing for Chicago, where their series will terminate with two games at Comiskey Field.

Five-Hit Attack on Kremer Nets Five Runs—Pittsburgh's Lead Cut to One Game.

PITTSBURGH, June 26 (AP).—Pounding out five of their eight hits in the sixth inning, the Reds defeated Pittsburgh, 6 to 4, today, in the first game of the series here. The attack on Kremer netted Cincinnati five runs. The Pirates' defeat reduced their first-place lead over the Cubs to a single game.

Luque pitched good ball in the pinches. All of the Pirates' counters were accounted for by extra base blows. Paul Waner hit a home run in the first inning and Grantham had two triples and a double.

RUTH CLOUTS 13TH HOMER

By JOHN DREBINGER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 26.—The world's champion Yankees engaged in a long work-out today as their final preparation for their return engagement with the Athletics tomorrow, but failed to impress anybody, least of all the Senators, who behaved not at all as sparring partners should. The Senators lost the first game of the double-header, 7 to 0, but seemed to forget their lines in the second bout and knocked the champions down, 4 to 3.

This half a step forward and half a step backward cost the Yankees another half game to the Athletics, who by trouncing the Red Sox managed to widen their margin over the champions to ten and a half games on the eve of the series in Philadelphia.

From any viewpoint the first encounter was a pleasure to behold. Babe Ruth cracked his thirteenth homer of the season, and even more superb than this was the magnificent left-handed pitching by Herb Pennock, who blanked the Senators on seven hits.

But another southpaw, named Lloyd Brown, rubbed the day for the Yankees in the nightcap. This fellow pitched with rare adroitness, and not even a pair of homers in the ninth by Tony Lazzeri and Bob Meusel were sufficient to shake him loose from the idea that he was out to beat the Yankees.

Yanks Score in Fourth.

The Yanks did a deal of plain and fancy hitting during the early rounds of the second encounter, but it was not until the fourth that they broke through for a run to take the lead.

With one out, Ruth cracked a single to left, and though he was forced on the next play by Lazzeri the latter reached second base when Myer threw wild to first in trying for a double play. Then Meusel, who up to this moment had been in a fearful hitting slump, lashed a single to right and Lazzeri counted.

This margin Heimach lost in the fifth after being saved in the fourth only through a phenomenal catch by Ruth. Rice had just singled and, after Goslin had fouled out, Myer sent a line drive to right centre that looked good for any number of bases. But the Babe, tearing over the turf with an amazing burst of speed, dove headlong for the ball and caught it with his gloved hand just as it was about to hit the ground. The Senators, however, declined to let this stop them. In the fifth Bluege doubled and a pair of sacrifices by Cronin and Ruel tied the score.

In the sixth Washington scored twice and bounded gayly ahead. Judge tripled, Rice singled and one run was in. Goslin forced Rice, but Myer singled to put the Goose on third, and a sacrifice fly by Flagstead put him over the plate.

Sherid Replaces Heimach.

This brought about Heimach's evacuation for a pinch-hitter in the seventh and Roy Sherid replaced him on the mound. Roy did excellently in the seventh, but lost a run in the eighth that proved costly. Judge walked and Rice sacrificed him to second. Gehrig retired Goslin, but Myer lifted a high fly down the left field foul line and got a two-bagger out of it chiefly because Meusel gracefully declined to hustle for it. The hit, of course, scored Judge with what proved to be the winning run.

The Yanks in the meantime had suddenly stopped hitting. They had collected seven blows off Brown in the first five rounds, but they got none at all in the sixth, seventh and eighth. It was, therefore, quite a shock when Lazzeri opened the ninth with a home run into the left-field bleachers.

Meusel, doubtless endeavoring to make amends for his indifferent play in the previous inning, followed with another in the same spot. But Brown quickly effaced the next three and the Yanks finished a good second.

Probably nothing Huggins has seen this year brought him as much cheer as Pennock's exhibition in blanking the Senators in the opener. After the poorest start this season he has ever had in the majors, in which he was able to chalk up only a single victory against six defeats, the Pennock of other years seemed to step out on the mound to pitch masterful ball.

Seven hits, carefully distributed and well surrounded by outs, was all the swatting the Senators were able to do against the tantalizing twisters that came spinning from Pennock's astounding left arm. The veteran Joe Judge alone seemed unimpressed with what Herbie served up and cracked the ball for four hits, one a triple, but the rest of Walter Johnson's cast were utterly helpless.

Four successive singles by Robertson, Gehrig, Ruth and Lazzeri sent the Yanks away to a two-run lead in the first frame. They wasted two hits in each of the second and third innings, but there was no wastage of the two blows they got in the fifth. Gehrig singled and Ruth lifted a homer to the bleachers in dead centre.

A single by Gehrig, followed by a pair of doubles by Ruth and Lazzeri, gave the champions two more in the seventh, and in the eighth they picked up their last tally on an error by Cronin, a sacrifice and a long two-bagger by Combs.

BOSTON, June 26 (AP).—The Phillies went back into sixth place today by taking a double-header from the Braves, 6—0 and 5—2. Claude Willoughby held Boston to three scattered hits in the second game after Ray Benge had allowed them seven in the first.

Sothern, Philadelphia centre fielder, got seven hits in ten times at bat, including a home run with the bases filled in the second inning of the first contest. O'Doul got a home run with Sothern on base in the first inning of the second game.

Jersey City gained an even break with Montreal in a doubleheader at Jersey City yesterday, capturing the closing struggle by 1 to 0 after dropping the opener, 4 to 3.

The second game, carded for seven innings by agreement, went to nine innings for a score, Lee Head's double driving Wera across the plate with the lone and deciding tally after two were out.

Shoffner emerged the victor over Nichols in a mound duel to blank the Royals. Shoffner stopped Montreal with four hits against five totaled off the delivery of Nichols.

G. H. Bostwick Pilots Devilkin, 6-to-1, Home First in Winfield Chase at Aqueduct

DEVILKIN, 6 TO 1, FIRST IN WINFIELD

G. H. (Pete) Bostwick Adds to Laurels, Piloting Hitchcock Jumper to Easy Victory.

ST. HENELL WINS CARBUNCLE

By BRYAN FIELD.

The steeplechasing laurels of the Bostwick family are in danger of passing from the head of the mature A. C. Bostwick to that of his younger brother, who, although only 19 years of age, added another victory to his growing string when he rode Thomas Hitchcock's Devilkin in the Winfield steeplechase at Aqueduct yesterday.

The younger brother, G. H., familiarly known as Pete, already has outstripped A. C. as a flat rider and has him lashed to the mast as a polo player. This has been rather easy for Pete because his brother is too heavy for flat riding and has decided to forego polo playing as a possible interference with his race riding.

However, the struggle for the steeplechasing honors is going to be harder, as A. C. is generally acknowledged to be the foremost gentleman rider around these parts. But that may not prevail for long if Pete continues to ride as he did yesterday, when he won by five lengths from Rubigny and Rooney, while Volunteer, Lizard, Arc Light and Father Holt trailed at varying distances. Devilkin was a 6-to-1 shot.

Devilkin Closes Fast.

Pete Bostwick took his time with Devilkin in the early stages and did not move up until the last half mile of the two mile route, and then he went so fast there was no holding him.

The time was only 4:00 for the distance, but the prize at the end was $4,590 and the manner of the victory was in Pete's best style, which has become familiar since he took to the jumps last Fall.

The younger Bostwick has been riding in steeplechases only two years, although he has been in the saddle since he was five years old. Last year he had eight mounts, winning with five, placing with two and being out of the money only once.

This topped some high class flat riding and it is not generally remembered that Pete rode Broomwhisk in the Belmont Stakes of 1928 when Vito won. He is planning even now to ride on the flat again, and will essay the rather difficult task of riding jumpers and flat runners at the same time.

Thus far this season, Pete Bostwick has had almost a score of mounts and has won with about half of them, perhaps the most notable victory being in the Chambley Memorial at Brookline, when he outrode his older brother.

Schools Own Horses.

Pete comes by his skill by dint of earnest effort as he arises early every morning, galloping horses for Thomas Hitchcock or schooling his own two horses, which he expects to bring out shortly. The best of these is Road Agent, well known as a flat runner a while back and now developing into quite a steeplechaser.

Bostwick's ride on Devilkin gave him his first victory of the Aqueduct meeting, but he has never been worse than second except when he has been unseated. It is interesting to note that aside from spills, Pete has been out of the money on only two occasions all this season.

The best flat race of the afternoon was the Carbuncle Handicap, which proved to be a pleasant gallop for Mrs. Sydney J. Smith's St. Henell, which started in front and finished in front. In between times St. Henell just kept going.

There was nothing to the race until just at the end, when Mrs. Victor Emanuel's Sun Forward put on that last minute jump of his and came past a lot of horses to be second. St. Henell stood the drive gamely. The winner was a 4-to-1 choice.

One of the shortest priced favorites of the meeting was an easy winner when Frisius, at 11 to 20, was first by four lengths in a mile and a sixteenth test against nine others.

AGINCOURT FIRST AT LATONIA TRACK

RUTH MAYES IS A VICTOR

LATONIA, Ky., June 26.—Agincourt furnished a big surprise today when she ran to a two-length victory in the Owls Nest Park Purse and negotiated the mile in the fast time of 1:38 2-5.

Second to the Light Brigade filly was Vesta, and Uptime was third. The heavily played and much fancied Clog Dance, which ruled the odds-on favorite, was badly beaten and finished last in the field of five.

Agincourt broke behind Boris at the drop of the barrier and Clog Dance came up quickly to be a contender for the first half mile. Agincourt took command in the first quarter, went to the front and saved a lot of ground and cut out the pace to the finish. Clog Dance seemed to be a contender until he had run half a mile, when he stopped badly. Agincourt paid $25.48 for $2.

BRITISH STARS LOSE IN COLLEGE TENNIS

DE RICOU IS ELIMINATED

By ALLISON DANZIG.

HAVERFORD, Pa., June 26.—The rivalry for the intercollegiate singles championship lost its international aspect today when the three remaining members of the Oxford-Cambridge tennis team were eliminated from the play at the Merion Cricket Club.

Seligson's forehand and backhand were functioning in their best fashion, and Young, in spite of his activity and gameness in standing up under punishment, had neither the length nor the severity to trade blows with him, yielding forthwith at 6—1, 6—1.

Avory Close to Victory.

It was an altogether different story in the case of the two other international matches. De Ricou's defeat was not encompassed, at 3—6, 6—1, 6—1, until he had cleanly outplayed Coggeshall in the opening set, while Avory came so close to winning from Mangin that the slightest bit of faltering on the part of the Georgetown youth would have resulted in dire consequences for him.

It was not until the Cambridge leader had led at 5—4 and 15—0 in the deciding set, with the gallery on pins and needles to the last point, that his cool-headed, uncompromising young adversary gained the victory that he deserved through the superiority of his backhand and his ability to capitalize his net attack in the pinches. The score was 6—1, 4—6, 7—5.

This match was the most gripping struggle of a day of play that saw all of the favorites come through to the quarter-finals in one stirring engagement after another. Not often has an intercollegiate championship produced tennis of so high a quality on the third day as was seen today, with the logical winners extended to resist the challenge of newcomers to this tournament in almost every instance.

Strachan's Victory Unexpected.

The only result of the eight singles contests that might be set down as unexpected was the convincing victory of Donald Strachan of Princeton over Donald Cram of Vanderbilt. As Cram had put out Bradshaw Harrison of Oregon, one of the seeded men, on the opening day, he was given at least an even chance of beating Strachan, but the young Princetonian had too much dynamite in his racquet for the Southerner and established his superiority beyond question at 6—4, 6—1.

Eddie Jacobs of Pittsburgh, Berkeley Bell of Texas, Ben Gorchakoff of Occidental and Emmett Pare of Georgetown were the other survivors of the fourth round of competition. Jacobs will meet Coggeshall and Mangin will face Strachan in the upper half tomorrow, while Seligson will oppose Gorchakoff and Bell will play Pare in the lower section.

Seligson Favored to Win.

The match between Seligson and Gorchakoff will bring last year's finalists together. Gorchakoff has been runner-up for the last two years, losing to Wilmer Allison of Texas in the 1928 final. Seligson, on the improved form he showed today in faultlessly mowing down Young, is favored over Gorchakoff, but if the Californian can produce the control and speed that he showed today in defeating Stanley Almquist at 8—6, 6—4, Seligson is likely to have much more of a job on his hands tomorrow than he did a year ago.

THE SUMMARIES.

AUTEUIL, France, June 26 (AP).—Largo, 4-year-old son of Ecouen, out of Largesse, and owned by the Armenian millionaire, Dikerian Kelekian, captured the Grand Hurdle Race today from a field of ten starters.

The youngest thoroughbred in the field, Largo sprang a surprise on the thousands who braved the chills of the threatening weather to watch the mid-week feature of the French "big week" of racing. The season culminates with the running of the Grand Prix Sunday. Largo, ridden by the British jockey, Hudson Rowe, paid 4 to 1.

Three seeded players were eliminated from the Eastern junior singles championship in the second and third rounds of play at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, yesterday. Included among the upsets was the defeat of Sid Seligson, seeded No. 4 and brother of the intercollegiate champion, by Roy Smith, in straight sets, 6—1, 6—3, in a third-round match.

Ray Donovan, local seeded player, was forced out of the tournament by a muscle injury. It was an old wound and caused him to default to M. Adelsberg in the second round.

MISS SACHS ADVANCES IN COLLEGE NET PLAY

Defeats Miss Jaynes to Enter Semi-Finals—Miss Gladman Also Gains.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 26.—All of the seeded players in the first girls' college invitation tennis tournament reached the singles semi-finals today at the Longwood Cricket Club, all except one of the matches being settled in straight sets.

The great court covering of Miss Nancy Jaynes, manager of the varsity team, came near eliminating Miss Marjorie Sachs, who is seeded second and who captained the Radcliffe freshmen last year. Miss Jaynes studied Miss Sachs's style in the opening set and dropped it in love games.

It was a different story in the second set, when Miss Jaynes opened up a very diversified attack and outstroked Miss Sachs to win the set at 6—3. Miss Jaynes, playing to Miss Sachs's backhand strokes in the final set, was greatly surprised at the ease with which Miss Sachs returned her strokes to all corners of the court, with the result that Miss Sachs, after trailing 3—1 in games, came back to enter the semi-finals.

Miss Marjorie Gladman of the University of Southern California returned to singles play and defeated Miss Fanny Curtis of Smith in straight sets, 6—0, 6—2. Miss Gladman will oppose Miss Dorrance Chase of Simmons in the first semi-final tomorrow. Miss Chase, who is seeded No. 3, went into the semi-finals when she beat Miss Polly Palfrey of Smith in straight sets, 6—1, 6—1.

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

WITH the start of the national open championship and the start and finish of the Paulino-Schmeling encounter scheduled for the same day, the situation becomes a trifle complicated. One volunteer prophet dropped around yesterday to give the inside information that Paulino will lead the field at the Winged Foot course, and Walter Hagen will get the decision at the Yankee Stadium. It must be the heat.

Taking one thing at a time and the easiest first: Paulino is the known quantity in the Yankee Stadium debate, and Max Schmeling, the Hammer of Hamburg, is the mysterious Mr. X. It all depends upon how good or how bad Max turns out to be. The wild woodchopper of the Pyrenees is a rough, scrambling timber trimmer with a stubborn disposition. He fights like a man elbowing his way through a thicket, but he keeps coming in, and he is hard to stop.

If Max can bring him down, it will be a real feat. Paulino was in there scrambling around with most of our leading heavyweights, and they did him no particular damage. Herr Schmeling, the Hammer of Hamburg, tipped over Joe Monte, and Johnny Risko in neat style, but Paulino, the fighter with a heart of gold and teeth to match, is a different and tougher proposition. Most of the early emphasis has been laid on the heavy right that Max throws in his malicious moments, but Paulino's left would never be mistaken by the recipient for a light flick with a feather duster.

Max has promised to knock out Paulino, and Paulino has promised to knock out Max. That leaves them even as they start into the ring. When they get in there, they can use their own judgment.

Scanning the Field.

No man's choice can finish worse than second at the Stadium, but in the battle of the bunkers at Mamaroneck it's another story. In most sports the slogan is: "Stick with the champion until he is beaten." But that doesn't go in golf. It has been seventeen Summers since a national open golf champion conducted a successful defense of his glittering crown.

Johnny Farrell is the reigning champion, and Johnny knows the course if that's any particular help. He can play a mashie from his own Quaker Ridge fairway to the fifteenth green at Winged Foot, but that isn't the shot that will decide the championship.

The favorites for the three-day struggle include Bob Jones, Johnny Farrell, Walter Hagen, Joe Turnesa, Gene Sarazen, Mac Smith, Horton Smith and Leo Diegel. No one can complain of any shortage of favorites just now, but there will be a big shrinkage by night.

The First Round.

The first round and the last whirl around the course are the big tests due to the nervous tension of the players, yet there's an odd thing connected with first-round scores. Going back as far as 1919, Jim Barnes is the only player who led the first round and was still leading when the 72-hole scores were totaled up.

Charley Hoffner led the first round at Brae Burn in 1919 with a 72, and Walter Hagen was six strokes back, but Hagen won the title in a play-off with Mike Brady.

Jock Hutchison had a first round of 69 at Inverness in 1920, but big Ted Ray, five strokes back, won the title. Barnes led off with a 69 at Columbia in 1921 and stayed in front all the way. Hagen whirled around Skokie in 68 on his first trip in 1922, but Sarazen, four strokes back at 18 holes, was three strokes ahead of the Haig to win at the finish.

It is much the same all the way down to last year's scramble at Olympia Fields, where Frank Ball and Henry Ciuci topped the first day's play, each with a 70. Johnny Farrell took a 77. There's something to weigh and consider when trying to pick or guess at the ultimate winner. Seven strokes behind two good golfers in one round, Farrell was far ahead of them when it came time to hand out the big prize. Harrison Johnston's 74 for his second round left him leading the field at the halfway mark at Oakmont in 1927. His third round was 87, thirteen strokes worse. More matter for a madhouse argument.

Casual Comment.

When things like that can happen on the links, and they happen with deadly frequency, there's nothing to do except stand and wonder. Francis Ouimet came from nowhere to beat Vardon and Ray at Brookline in 1913. Sarazen was unnoticed at Skokie until he scooted around the course for a 68 on his last round to grab the open crown. Joe Turnesa was waltzing to an easy triumph at Scioto, but he exploded in the stretch. Roland Hancock, with two holes to play at Olympia Fields, had a clear road to victory, but he staggered, tripped and stumbled off the road.

In the last resort there is always the old and scientific system of picking the winner, which is to write the names on a hat and pick one out blindfold. The trouble is to find a hat big enough to hold 150 names.

The names could be cut down, but the first cut might slice the ultimate winner off the list. Up at the Winged Foot course the other day a bystander insisted that he could name five players, and that the winner would be among them. He was urged to take ten and then look over his list.

Futile Figuring.

Then, as advised, he looked it over. He had left out Willie Macfarlane, who won the double-barreled play-off at Worcester from Bob Jones. He had left out Harry Cooper, who tied at Oakmont in 1927 and lost to Tommy Armour in the play-off. He had left out Bobby Cruickshank, who tied at Inwood and lost to Jones in the play-off. He had left out Roland Hancock, who should have won last year, and George Von Elm, who has been close-up in open championships here and abroad. He had left out Ed Dudley, Willie Klein, Bill Burke and John Golden, good enough to be named for the Ryder Cup team.

Perhaps the ultimate winner won't be on the list or among the other names mentioned above. Willie Macfarlane wasn't on anybody's list at Worcester, nor Sarazen on anybody's list at Skokie, except Tom McMahon's official starting list.

The only prediction made here is that the winner's name will start with some letter of the alphabet. Beyond that deponent saith not.

Triumphs Over Far Rockaway High by 4 Matches to 1 in Final of School Series.

The De Witt Clinton High School team, champion of Manhattan, annexed the P. S. A. L. tennis title of the city by defeating Far Rockaway High School, 4 matches to 1, at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, yesterday. The match was the last of a triangular series which also included Erasmus Hall High School, the Brooklyn championship combination.

Captain Leonard Hartman, Queens scholastic champion, and Alfred Oshinsky met in the hardest fought match of the day. After three sets Oshinsky finally won, 2—6, 6—4, 11—9. After battling even in the first two sets, with both scoring heavily on steady driving tactics, the players kept apace in games throughout the final set. Each took their own service games with monotonous regularity. It was not until the score stood 9—8 in Hartman's favor that any change took place.

Oshinsky captured his own service game and then came through with a desperate effort to take his rival's service and to lead 10—8. His steadiness won for him the final game and the match, 11—9.

The Clinton doubles team, consisting of William Laurie and Harold Freedman, also were forced to extra games to take the match from Julie Rosen and Seymour Levy, 12—10, 6—2. The winners went into a 5—2 lead, but were unable to repel the Rockaway return spurt, and the set went to 5-all. At 10—9, in Rockaway's favor, the winners came back to take the remaining three games for the first set. Clinton took the second set without difficulty.

The only Rockaway victory came in the fourth singles match, when Arthur Stein defeated Joe Chiaramonte, 6—4, 4—6, 6—2.

Singles—Alfred Oshinsky, De Witt Clinton, defeated Captain Leonard Hartman, 2—6, 6—4, 11—9; Marco Hecht, De Witt Clinton, defeated Jesse Ozdoba, 6—1, 6—1; Captain Bernar Baron, De Witt Clinton, defeated Charles Sorentse, 6—4, 6—1; Arthur Stein, Far Rockaway, defeated Joe Chiaramonte, 6—4, 4—6, 6—2.

Doubles—William Laurie and Harold Freedman, De Witt Clinton, defeated Julie Rosen and Seymour Levy, 12—10, 6—2.

LEWIS LOSES IN UPSET IN KINGS COUNTY PLAY

Orcutt Puts Out Seeded Player, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4—Onda and Kurzrok Gain Quarter Finals.

While the results of yesterday's play in the Kings County singles tennis championship tournament at the Ridge Club showed six seeded players in the quarter-finals, an upset was scored when Richard Lewis, seeded fourth, was defeated by Selwyn Orcutt, a young local player.

Lewis, who was runner-up in the tourney last year, won the first set, 6—4, continuing the set from 5—4, the point where it was interrupted by rain the day before. Orcutt, whose most notable achievement hitherto had been to reach the semi-finals of the Brooklyn tourney at the Terrace Club recently, took the next two sets, 6—4, 6—4, after some hard play.

The seeded men to enter the quarter-finals are Sadakazu Onda, last year's winner; Lawrence Kurzrok, Greater New York champion; Russell Phillips of Staten Island, Alfred J. Cawse, former national veterans champion, and E. Ralph Martin, champion of the Ridge and Crescent clubs. Percy Kynaston, also seeded, was idle yesterday, having advanced to the select eight on Tuesday.

Onda's victom was Seuchi Hemmi, who is Onda's own pupil. Hemmi has been showing fine progress lately, and gave his instructor an interesting battle before he was downed, 6—4, 6—3. Pederson was no match for Kurzrok's smashing overhead game and clever net play, and succumbed, 6—2, 6—2.

Phillips defeated Edward H. Burns, 6—2, 6—3, after having eliminated Edward W. Burns, the former's son, the day before. Cawse, relying on placing rather than speed, put out Ted Ernst after a close contest, 6—4, 6—4. Martin eliminated Reggie Talmadge, 6—2, 6—4.

THE SUMMARIES.

Third Round—Selwyn Orcutt defeated Richard Lewis, 4—6, 6—4, 6—4; John K. Hawkins defeated George B. Lilly, 6—2, 6—3.

Fourth Round—Sadakazu Onda defeated Seuchi Hemmi, 6—4, 6—3; Lawrence Kurzrok defeated Arnold Pederson, 6—2, 6—2; Russell Phillips defeated Edward H. Burns, 6—2, 6—3; E. Ralph Martin, defeated R. Talmadge, 6—2, 6—4; Alfred J. Cawse defeated Ted Ernst, 6—4, 6—4; T. J. Le Gros defeated Max Jacobs, 6—1, 6—0.

MRS. LAMME VICTOR IN APAWAMIS TENNIS

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., June 26.—Mrs. Agnes J. Lamme Jr. and Miss Virginia Rice reached the final round in the annual invitation women's singles tournament of the Apawamis Club today, on the Apawamis clay courts, by winning their respective matches in the semi-final round. Mrs. Lamme, a member of the home club, triumphed over Miss Charlotte Miller of the University Heights Tennis Club of New York, 4—6, 6—4, 6—4, while Miss Rice vanquished Mrs. Arthur G. Deane of the Montclair Athletic Club, 6—2, 6—3.

The battle between Mrs. Lamme, seeded No. 2, and Miss Miller, third seeded player, was close throughout. Both drove hard and played the baseline well. At no time during the first two sets did either player have an advantage greater than one point and all three sets were deadlocked at four games all. In the third set with the score tied, 4—4, Mrs. Lamme broke through Miss Miller's service and took the lead at 5—4. She gained the victory with her own service.

Although Miss Rice was favored to eliminate Mrs. Deane, the latter was expected to extend her opponent a bit in view of the fact that yesterday Mrs. Deane put out Miss Clara Greenspan, ranked eleventh best woman player in the country. However, playing a fast and accurate game, Miss Rice, holder of the Massachusetts junior championship, conquered her rival in straight sets. The victor is seeded No. 5 in the tourney.

The second round in the doubles tournament was completed with two matches being contested. The first seeded team, Miss Rice and Miss Rosamund Newton, both of Boston, defeated Mrs. Theodore Johnson and Mrs. Deane in straight sets, 6—1, 6—3. The victors encountered little difficulty in disposing of their opponents.

In the other second round match Miss Greenspan, paired with Mrs. W. Pritchard, bowed to Mrs. Lamme and Miss Marion Morss of Boston. The scores were 6—2, 6—4.

parts of the court trying to reach his sweeping backhand. In the second set Tilden tantalized Prenn with cat-and-mouse tactics, drawing him to the net, then lobbing over his head.

Prenn took it all good-naturedly and seemed to enjoy the trouncing until the last set, when his good service helped him draw even at 5—all. Tilden finally broke through Prenn's service to win the set, 8—6.

Jean Borotra faced a similar task in defeating the Englishman O. G. N. Turnbull, who was easy in the first two sets, but succeeded in capturing the third. The final score was 6—2, 6—3, 5—7, 6—4.

Wilmer Allison, the last of the American "dark horses," continued his march, conquering J. D. P. Wheatley of England, 6—1, 6—1, 6—1. The Dutch champion, H. Timmer, scored a minor upset in eliminating the Frenchman René de Buzelet, 2—6, 4—6, 6—3, 6—2, 6—3.

Miss Wills swept onward in the women's competition and in two days of play has not lost a single game. The American girl came onto the court wearing a yellow sports jacket over a white tennis costume, and her opponent, Mrs. K. Shomburgh, was so easy that Miss Wills did not have to take off the jacket until almost at the end of the first six love. A crowd of 5,000 flocked to the outside court in the hope of seeing Miss Wills in action, but was disappointed that the match was not keener.

Meanwhile women made their first appearance of the year on the centre court, where Senorita de Alvarez met Señora Serpieri of Italy, better known as Mademoiselle Vlasto. Señorita Alvarez lost the first two games, but won the next six and captured the match handily. Her shots were a joy to see, especially the swift half volleys from the baseline, which just skimmed over the net.

Mrs. May Sutton Bundy won a three-set match from Miss E. H. Harvey twenty-four years after she first played at Wimbledon. The Misses Elizabeth Ryan, Betty Nuthall and Bennett had little trouble advancing to the next round.

In the first day of the doubles competition Tilden and Hunter defeated the Englishmen Malcolm and Robbins, and Crocker and Wright, Canada, defeated Ashton and Crawford, England. The start of the mixed doubles and women's doubles is scheduled for tomorrow.

THE INTERNATIONAL BANK.

Not only the American experts at Paris, but the French, the German, the English, regarded the creation of an International Bank to have charge in general of international settlements as the most important —indeed, the vital—part of their agreement. With this view the Washington Government may or may not agree, but it continues to emphasize its strict aloofness from the whole project. Thus Secretary STIMSON announced yesterday that no American officials are to have anything to do, directly or indirectly, with the proposed International Bank. This decision had been made public more than a month ago. Perhaps the State Department felt it necessary to reaffirm it, for fear some might think that the visit of Mr. YOUNG and the other American delegate had led to a change of attitude.

It might have been well for the State Department to call attention to the fact that its objection had been understood and fully provided for in the plans of establishing an International Bank. First of all, they provide for setting up an "Organization Committee." Its members are to be appointed by the governors of the central banks of seven countries, two from each. But it is carefully stipulated, obviously with an eye on the United States:

"If for any reason the governor of any of these central banks shall be unable officially or unofficially to designate members of the Organization Committee, or refrains from doing so, the governors of the remaining central banks shall invite two fellow-nationals of the governor not participating to act as members of the committee.

It is added that members so chosen shall be in all respects on an equality with the others. Thus it is a fair inference that in addition to America's already long line of unofficial observers it will soon be having some unofficial bankers. But if the ostrich keeps his head in the sand perhaps he will not see anything.

THE DWELLING LAW.

The course of tenement house reform never did run smooth. The fate of the multiple dwelling law is but the latest example of the difficulties which the reformers have had to meet. Advocates of improved housing conditions pinned high hopes to the bill drafted by the commission in 1927, but those hopes were dashed when the real estate interests succeeded in defeating that measure at the session of 1928. Undaunted, its advocates formed their lines anew, met some of the objections entered by the real estate men and laid before the Legislature of 1929 a bill which, without seeking to establish the millennium, was designed to bring about better housing conditions generally in New York City. By great effort they succeeded in getting both houses to approve the measure, and Governor ROOSEVELT signed it. Now, just as it was about to go into effect, a judge has declared the new law unconstitutional.

It fell afoul of home rule. Some argument on this score had been made before the Governor. Members of the commission which drafted the bill, however, were confident that it did not usurp the powers granted to the cities by the home rule amendment of 1923, as interpreted by the home rule act of 1924. They relied on the explicit provision of that act reserving to the State control over the tenement house law. They realized that the opposition might argue that the multiple dwelling bill, which in its terms applies to all cities with a population of 800,000 or more, was in effect a local law, New York being the only city in the State now falling in that classification. But they thought that the Court of Appeals had dealt with that contention when, in McAneny vs. Board of Estimate, it held similar reasoning "plausible but fallacious." Justice LYDON, however, takes a different view of the measure. He holds that it is in effect limited to New York City and that it applies to the "property, affairs and government" of the city in such a way as to make the home rule amendment applicable.

Already the advocates of the law have indicated their intention to appeal from the decision of the lower court. It is eminently desirable that they should do so. Municipal home rule is a comparatively recent venture in the government of this State. The amendment itself is general in terms. Between the powers reserved to the State and those delegated to the city there is a gap which, in the absence of further legislation, can be narrowed only by judicial construction. The multiple dwelling act is so important a piece of legislation that no effort should be spared to establish its constitutionality. If they fail in that effort, the advocates of the bill have the recourse of resubmitting it to the Legislature next Winter. But with the New York delegation in opposition the prospect of securing the necessary two-thirds vote of both houses is none too bright.

SQUELCHING A "DRIVE."

Publication in last Sunday's TIMES of the plan of The National Republic to raise a lot of money in order to fight "radicalism" has had some curious results. First of all, several prominent Republicans who had written letters in perfunctory approval of this unofficial monthly of their party hurried to disavow knowledge of the scheme. Some of them protested against the use of their names in the appeal for funds sent out. In fact, the whole thing was so transparent an attempt to get funds out of innocent subscribers that it needed only to be seen in print to be judged for what it was. Thereupon most of its alleged sponsors promptly ran away from it.

Now the President himself, whose name had been used without the slightest authorization, has let it be known that he dislikes and repudiates the entire project. He is not aware of the need of making a huge effort to head off radicalism or "Bolshevism" in this country. What appears especially to have displeased Mr. HOOVER was the statement in a letter by Representative MURPHY of Ohio, intended to help on the grand crusade, to the effect that "the "President is doing his part splendidly." Anyhow, he is doing his part in putting an end to a "drive" which was ridiculous on its face. If this sort of thing keeps on it will be necessary to ask for money to conduct propaganda against absurd propaganda.

DR. DORAN'S COLD FEET.

With happy expectation the country approaches the beginning of a great Dry educational campaign, religious and secular. Dr. MCBRIDE of the Anti-Saloon League has designated next Sunday as "Loyalty Sunday" and called on pastors and Sunday school teachers to preach and teach on that day "the patriotic lessons of loyalty and respect "for [the Prohibition] law." Tomorrow the National Education Association meets at Atlanta. At some point in its proceedings a statistician from the Bureau of Prohibition will submit the course of study in prohibition contained in a pamphlet issued by the Bureau. This is one of a number of publications of similar content emitted by this reliable house. The little book entitled "Shall We Teach the Eighteenth Amendment?" is particularly helpful.

What could be better, for instance, than the suggestion that schoolrooms be ornamented with prohibition posters and cartoons? Subjects to stir heroic youth crowd upon the imagination. Even a mediocre artist could carry off such themes as "The Slaying of Jacob Hanson," "The Sinking of the I'm Alone" or even a simpler, almost domestic, genre, "A Prohibition Agent Swallowing Evidence; or, A Week of Wild Nights in a Night Club." It is true that some of the "slogans" proposed seem a little curious in view of their source. One might almost suspect that that chief of sinners, the moderate drinker, was working for the Bureau:

Let us use alcohol, not waste it.
Use, not abuse, should be our slogan. No one now wants to be a slave to appetite or habit.

Why did Dr. DORAN have to qualify the zeal of his subordinate? Why did he deem it necessary to explain that the Bureau's booklets were not to be forced upon the schools? How could they be? Congress allowed the Bureau only a beggarly $50,000 for these incipient educational activities. Next year, it is said, a larger sum will be asked. The limited editions of instructions for teaching prohibition in the schools are at the service of school authorities who send for copies. The Bureau is not trying to use the school as a focus of propaganda. It is furnishing that "accurate information" and those peculiar "facts" for which it is noted.

These are treasures that shouldn't be denied to teachers who want them. We hope, but are not certain, that the late Reverend JOSEPHUS COOK's once famous "experiment," showing the deterioration of eggs under the influence of alcohol, is included in these official textbooks. Our only fear is that the wiser youngsters of today know more than their teachers about some of the effects of prohibition.

It is idle to say that education should have come before prohibition. The cart-before-the-horse aphorism doesn't apply to the water-wagon. Since prohibition consists chiefly of propaganda, Dr. DORAN is mistaken in supposing that any new "stunt" would cause surprise or wrath. He must have been cowed by the politicians. He didn't make his lukewarm and apologetic statement until after conferring with Assistant Secretary of the Treasury LOWMAN and Under-Secretary MILLS. The latter is rank with heretical pravity. The former must be depressed by the reluctance of the prohibition executioners to obey his repeated orders. "Is Prohibition a Success?" Ask the bootleggers.

AVIATION GAINING.

The time is approaching when TENNYSON'S "Vision" of the heavens filled with commerce, "pilots of "the purple twilight dropping down "with costly bales," will be a reality. The United States Army sends 200 planes into the air for manoeuvres. Mail air services cover the country. Air-rail lines to avoid flying by night are becoming a regular accommodation. The West Indies from Cuba to Trinidad are linked by airplanes. Shortly the system will be extended through South America to Buenos Aires.

There is a growing demand for planes of all sizes and speeds. Motoring in the air will be the vogue when the safe machine sought by the Guggenheim Foundation has been designed. President SETH LOW of Roosevelt Field says that 2,000 persons were taken up in the first two weeks of June, 95 per cent of them enjoying their first ride. Five of its pilots have flown planes 1,500,000 miles "without accident of any kind." He declares that a passenger in an inspected machine driven by a licensed pilot is probably safer than he would be in a city taxicab. Fear of the modern airplane is a state of mind. The accident rate for reputable air services is now too low to furnish an argument against the security of flying.

The world air tour of the DE SIBOURS, husband and wife, confounds the doubter. Leaving London last September in a small De Havilland Moth biplane, a veritable "flivver" of the air, they flew across Europe, over North Africa to Asia Minor, and thence through Persia, India, Burma and Siam to Indo-China. "We have done practically all our traveling in the last three years," says Vicomte DE SIBOUR, "by plane "except for long journeys over "water." Coming to the Pacific Coast by steamship, they flew across the United States to New York. The cost was less than that of travel by steamship, railway and automobile. To promote aviation they should publish an account of their adventure.

To realize the importance of aviation consider the news of one day, the twenty-fifth of June. Colonel CHARLES A. and Mrs. LINDBERGH set off from Roosevelt Field on a transcontinental tour to inspect the terminals and landing fields of a transport company. Captain KINGSFORD-SMITH went up at Sydney, Australia, with three companions to fly to England. Peruvian army fliers who left New York May 27 arrived at Lima. A Canadian Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests started from Toronto to fly 2,200 miles to take over Indian lands acquired by the Dominion Government. JOHNSON and HAUGHLAND spent their third day in the air in an attempt to break the endurance record. Captain R. G. HOYT, U. S. A., was preparing to fly from Mitchel Field to San Francisco and back in thirty-six hours.

FRENCH DEBT PAYMENTS.

Tuesday's further postponement of the French Parliament's vote on the debt-funding agreement with America may have seemed to many readers of the news to make probable the cash payment of the "$400,000,000 maturity" on Aug. 1. That obligation, incurred through purchase by the French Government of American war supplies left over when the war ended, amounted actually to $407,341,145. France has paid interest regularly on it, although the as yet unratified Mellon-Bérenger agreement of April, 1926, included it with the rest of France's war indebtedness in a funding plan at a lower rate.

Last week both houses of Congress voted to permit postponement for nine months of this August maturity. The joint resolution was not signed by the presiding officer of either House or Senate, but both Congress and the administration appear to have assumed that it gave our government authority for such postponement. Obviously enough, the purpose is to allow time for ratification of the debt agreement before next May by both France and the United States. Our own Congress would presumably so vote when it reconvenes next Autumn, if the French Chamber of Deputies were first to accept the funding plan; but the Chamber has hitherto not been so minded. Many members were definitely instructed by their constituencies against it. M. POINCARE has repeatedly and forcibly urged ratification; but, as an alternative to what seemed a possibly hopeless effort, he lately produced the opinions of some eminent French constitutional lawyers that, in default of ratification by parliamentary vote, ratification by government decree would be wholly lawful.

On the face of things, therefore, it may be reasonably expected that the war debt will in due course be funded under the terms of 1926, including the $407,341,145 obligation for war supplies. Whether this was for France the best way to dispose of that particular debt is perhaps a matter of opinion.

France has both a large surplus in the Treasury and foreign credit balances greatly exceeding the sum which would have to be transferred against the maturing obligation. Payment in cash would have been at least an eloquent "gesture." On the other hand, the French market is disposed, in the present unsettled state of the international exchanges, to conserve its foreign credits. It is possible also that a cash payment at this time might have necessitated large shifting of French balances to New York from London, where the market has already been subjected to unexpectedly heavy drafts on its gold supply.

NOSTALGIA.

"I am homesick." In this confession Ambassador FLETCHER gives proof that he is still eligible in his attitude of mind and spirit to continue to represent his country abroad in any land. We say any land, for Italy offers one of the severest tests. Many a diplomat has gone to a foreign country and has so far lost his heart to the people and the landscape or climate of the land of the sovereign to whom he was accredited that he has become almost disqualified to represent his own people.

SYDNEY SMITH once observed that nostalgia must be a dreadful disease on the banks of the Missouri. That it should attack one in the land which has been called the "paradise of the earth," the land whose very name BROWNING said would be found graved inside his heart, is no reflection upon Italy. It only shows the strength of the devotion of the homesick one to his own country. Ambassador FLETCHER served as a soldier in the Philippines and as a diplomat from China to Mexico and Chile, and then from Belgium and Luxemburg to Portugal and Italy. He has played tennis with royalty, has been the companion of the great around the world and has won the admiration and good-will of every court at which he has presented his credentials. But he has not lost his filial loyalty to the democracy which entrusted him with its seal of State and sent him on many missions.

It seems unfortunate that such diplomatic wisdom as his long and varied experience has gathered should not be kept at the command of the government which he has served with such ability and distinction. Perhaps a few months at home will allow him to go abroad again for brief periods, for one would wish, not that he should be quite cured of a patriotic home-loving malady, but that it should not keep him from the service for which he has given new proof of fitness.

NEW PETS FOR OLD.

Those without household pets, or those desiring new ones for old, will have the choice of a wide variety if they attend the annual auction sale of superfluous animals from the Central Park menagerie to be held today. From young rams, aging rams and goats, the catalogue ranges to a couple of young lions, a lioness, a camel 15 months old, a red deer, a hyena and a zebu. Many of these animals would be useful as well as ornamental. The camel might be employed to carry its owner across the burning sands of Coney Island. And when grown up he might be made to furnish one of those good-looking polo coats.

The young lions present a more difficult problem. Although elderly Bostonians still tell of the exotic Mrs. JACK GARDNER and her drive up Beacon Street with a Felis leo cub under each arm, the pair offered at Central Park would be a little too large to occupy the seat with the chauffeur. Besides, he might object. If the Scotty or the chow is to be replaced by a lion, it should be at an extremely early stage of the latter's career. The red deer, being purely decorative, would add smartness to any penthouse lawn. The domesticated East Indian ox, or zebu, would probably have to be turned into steaks. But the hyena would be of distinct service to some struggling cartoonist, as it would assure him of at least one laugh a day.

Those who read recently Dr. HORNADAY'S advice to get a South American tapir if desirous of the really ideal household pet will be disappointed to learn that the sale does not include a specimen. Prospective purchasers at the Central Park auction should provide themselves with plenty of stout rope, and perhaps an iron-barred cage or two, for it will be a cash-and-carry sale.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Now Known by Another Name.

It will be hard to learn how to say Baron PASSFIELD, when one means a man so long familiar as SIDNEY WEBB. This scholar and historian has had a theoretical connection with the Labor party, which has now made him Secretary of State for the Dominions in the new Cabinet. As he had resigned his seat in the House of Commons, he had to be translated to the Lords under his new title.

There has been a lot of talk in recent years about reforming the House of Lords. One plan has been to dilute the hereditary principle by admitting to life peerages men famous in science and the professions. If plenty more could be found like SIDNEY WEBB to introduce into the Gilded Chamber, the question of reform might be regarded as already settled.

His work as a patient and incredibly industrious student of English social and economic history has given him a fame which runs beyond politics, and has conferred upon him a distinction both at home and abroad higher than any Parliamentary or official honor. Our tongues and ears may yet become accustomed to "Baron PASSFIELD," but it will be hard for him to displace the familiar and treasured name of SIDNEY WEBB.

Travels of Animals.

To trace the migrations of birds and the slow wanderings of turtles has been one of the fascinating and not too difficult tasks of naturalists. Land animals and winged creatures are visible to man in their travels, even when they seek cover in thickets or when they move at great speed from one continent to another. The life of the fish, the crustacean and the simplest water animals is more mysterious, but science is finding out about it by hauling them up.

A French investigator has been prying into the private life of shellfish in the neighborhood of the Suez Canal. Curiosity, the desire for a change of scene and diet or some other reason has impelled many of the crabs native to the Indian Ocean to move over to the Mediterranean. The professor estimated that it took a crab thirty years to make the journey.

It is easy to see that the estimate could be made by dredging over a period of years and through the length of the canal. But how did the savant know if a single individual made the trip? A bird may be ringed, and a tortoise carries a writing desk for the calculations of scientists. If the Oriental crab is like the American variety in his habits, he does not proceed in a direct line, but sidles along, tacking when convenient. Perhaps all crabs of one family look alike to the professor, and he simply meant that the descendants of the original Indian crab are now inhabiting Mediterranean waters.

Traffic Relief in Philadelphia.

Any advice from an organization which has succeeded in unifying street railway lines, subways and taxicabs in a great city is worth listening to. New York's transit and traffic problems are different from those of Philadelphia, but that does not make the latest survey by Mitten Management in the Quaker City less interesting.

One of the recommendations in the report is that coal deliveries, ash removals and so on in the central business district be performed outside business hours. That suggestion has been heard here, but the trucks would have to avoid residence districts or they would not be very popular.

Another proposal is that parades should be prohibited in the central business districts, except on Sundays and holidays. New York merchants have been grumbling a good deal lately about parades, but they are apparently a popular feature of city life and no one is anxious to censor them too strictly.

Mitten Management would prohibit the storing of building materials on the sidewalks or roadways. This is one of the reforms suggested by the traffic committee which has been reporting to Mayor WALKER.

The most drastic of all the plans of the Philadelphia experts is the total prohibition of daylight parking on business streets. A similar experiment appears to have been successful in Chicago. Many New York merchants are strongly opposed to "no parking," but as traffic congestion increases a further curtailment of the privilege in the midtown area is likely to prove necessary.

More Eggs From Fewer Hens.

If the latest report from the Department of Agriculture is incontrovertible, there is reason for the growing fears in Europe about American mass production.

It is not long since the effort of the Department of Commerce to bring about a high degree of standardization was regarded with special distrust abroad as tending to make the human race mechanical. More recently the decreasing hours of labor, coupled with the increasing production per worker, have been looked on as altogether subversive.

Now comes the news that the same principle has been successfully applied in the poultry business. During the current year the number of the nation's hens has declined 4 per cent, though their output in eggs is larger than last year. The trend toward mass production is too obvious to require comment. American hens appear to be determined to outlay the world. What Americans as well as Europeans would like to know, however, is how the hens have been so quickly inoculated with "Hoover efficiency."

WE DELIGHT IN ILLUSIONS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with interest THE TIMES editorial "Book, Song and Dance." Being concerned with musical shows, both an an author and producer, your sympathetic comments on their value as entertainment were gratifying. There is one point, however, to which I have given a great deal of thought, and which I should like to bring to your attention—the book of the musical comedy.

From my experience as both an author and producer, I can attest that it is the musical show with the simple, uncomplicated, direct plot that is usually a success. I don't mean that it should be stereotyped. I mean that the plot must be an interesting love story which will permit ramification into song and comedy, and which must be subservient to the music and the humor. Numberless authors have tried to write a so-called sophisticated, "intelligent" plot for a musical show. Those shows rarely succeed. A musical comedy that is all plot tends to blur, and sometimes completely blot out, the music, humor and even the actors.

A musical show with a sophisticated book may amuse and tickle the risibilities of a chosen few, especially in New York, but will often leave cold, if not offend, the general public throughout the United States. I don't include the revue, a form of entertainment that is more or less high-class vaudeville, each episode of song or skit complete in itself, but I do mean the operetta or musical comedy.

Audiences still want to believe in Cinderella and Prince Charming. They come to a theatre to believe and participate in the illusion. A book that belittles the love story destroys that sense of participation. If you look at the successful musical comedies of recent years, you will find that they have all been written by authors conversant with their jobs, and they all have simple, romantic stories: "Wildflower," "Sally," "Rose Marie," "No, No, Nanette," "The Desert Song," "Good News" and many others.

A Needed Philanthropy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In common with numerous of THE TIMES' readers I was thrilled with the announcement of the Guggenheim Foundation's plan for the establishment of dental clinics for children in various parts of the city. Far from looking upon this as an invasion of a legitimate field for private practice, I know the dental profession will hail this great project with enthusiasm and hearty cooperation.

For years the local dental societies have urged upon city authorities the vital need for such dental clinics. It does not minimize the greatness of the Guggenheim philanthropy to say that this is properly a field for municipal activity. The foundation's great project will blaze the trail here as the vision of Eastman along this line did in Rochester and Forsyth in Boston. These Guggenheim dental clinics will immediately establish their great worth and their crying necessity. This will doubtless stimulate activity among city authorities and the municipality will take up the work where Guggenheim's vision and humanity showed the way. MORRIS ZUCKER, D. D. S.

'Ware Poison Ivy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES articles on ivy poisoning and hay fever from ragweed are both timely. It is not uncommon to see picnickers gather these leaves for their wild flower bouquets. Apparently they are ignorant of their effects. Both plants are common in all the parks, vacant lots and elsewhere.

I would like to see the Bronx Botanical Garden place labels or name plates on all such plants, with a short description of their effects when handled. The city should make an appropriation to the Park Departments for this purpose.

By the way, I would suggest that the Bronx Botanical Garden uncover the freaks of nature hidden under the surface in the south side of the cliffs—namely, the Kettle Bottoms. As near as I remember, they were in the Hemlock Grove, west of the Bronx River, near the old Lorillard Mansion. They should be restored and posted.

TOMORROW.

Have you not heard the voice of Tomorrow calling?
She is the summoner of all striving ones;
Friend of the valiant. Never coward soul has heard
Her music. Loved is she of those alone
Who have known want and scorned its emptiness,
Who have known care and disdained its buffetings,
Who have known loneliness and dared its aching—
Having heard joy and its true wisdom calling,
Having felt in the blood the richness of a dream,
Being companioned of the Soul's immensity.

Tomorrow is the surge of many waters,
The sound of forests whispering;
A clear flute calling to the sun,
A harp intoning ecstasy,
A trumpet crying "Nike! Victory!"
Flute, harp, trumpet, violin—
In every spiraling note of every wind,
From throats of earth, air, water and fire
Let fall the fateful rhythms; let rise
The vaster melody of all throats that aspire:
"Tread into a greater and lordlier dawn,
Move to the vaster scale of a vaster music,

LEATHER GOODS AND CLOCKS

Higher Tariff Is Sought In Spite of Profitable Business.

In reference to the new tariff on leather goods it should be noted that for fifteen or twenty years the duty on novelty leather goods, handbags, luggage, &c., has been, on unfitted bags or cases, 20 per cent. and when fitted with two or more fittings, 45 per cent. Under the new tariff the duty is 35 per cent and 50 per cent. Yet I am informed that the committee of leather goods manufacturers appearing before Congressional hearing requested higher duties.

One firm in this city advertised in one of the trade papers that its volume of business last year was over $14,000,000. The entire city of Offenbach, the fancy leather manufacturing centre of Germany, does not do a volume of over 60,000,000 marks, or about $14,000,000. There is the further fact that in the last twenty years the total importations of novelty leather goods have never been over 5 to 7 per cent of the volume of business done in this country. It can, therefore, be inferred that the fancy leather industry has probably increased in the last fifteen years fivefold on a duty of 30 per cent, and yet it begs for a higher tariff.

The case of clocks also is interesting. The so-called "midget" clock with a two-inch dial, twenty-four-hour movement, was formerly sold at $3.75 to $4.50 a dozen under the 1913 tariff. Thus the consumer paid 50 cents each for these clocks. Under the new tariff the duty is 55 cents each and 65 per cent to $1.10 each ad valorem in foreign markets, so that the cost of importation alone rises to $1 each, consequently the same 50-cent clock cannot be retailed under $1.50 to $1.75, and our American manufacturers at present make no similar clock to retail under $1.50. Under the new tariff this price will be $2.

Protection is all right—it should be reasonable, not prohibitive, so that other nations may be encouraged to purchase our raw material and trade with us for the general welfare.

TAXICAB FARES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Here is a specific instance of the burden and evils of low taxicab rates, the authenticity of which I vouch for:

A cab driver at 11:30 P. M. on Fordham Road, June 17, had been on the job with his cab continuously since 5:30 A. M., and probably would not get into his garage until 1 A. M. His mileage for that day so far was 150, and his total receipts for the twenty hours were $22. This is an average of about 17 cents a mile, considering the so-called "dead mileage," in which time he was in transit without passengers.

He was driving a cab which he owned personally and had purchased eleven months ago at a cost of about $2,500. During these eleven months his total mileage was in excess of 38,000. You will see that a man driving a cab continuously for twenty hours is not a safe driver, particularly during the last third or fourth of the time indicated.

If this driver were to reduce his rate to 15 cents a mile he would then have $17.50 for a total day's receipts and, according to his own figures, averaging nine miles to the gallon of gasoline at the current price would make his gasoline cost alone $3.50. His insurance costs him an extra dollar and after deducting for wear and tear and depreciation, you can see that the cab business is not a gold mine.

I am citing this instance to prove a statement which I made recently that any lower cab rates are a great menace to public safety, and, while this may be an extreme case, it is quite evident that a shift from twelve to fourteen hours is not unusual.

Westchester Loses a Friend.

I recently drove through Westchester County on a Sunday afternoon and toward evening parked my car in the vicinity of Rye Beach. All around us the streets carried no-parking signs except the one in which we parked. After returning to my car, about a half hour later, I found a ticket summoning me to appear before the Rye court next morning for violation of the non-parking ordinance. I protested to the traffic officer that we had stopped on a street where no signs were displayed and only long enough to obtain something to eat. All this was to no avail, and the officer was discourteous and abusive.

At the hearing, in spite of explanations to the judge that there was no sign on this particular street, I was fined rather heavily as compared with fines meted out in New York.

What I cannot understand is why these Westchester towns, whose very existence depends upon the greater city, and in which a considerable number of people live who daily work in New York, should impose excessive parking restrictions and fines against the people upon whose very existence they depend.

Believe me, I am not going to stop at Rye or any other Westchester town if I can avoid it, to spend money there and be fined for doing it. G. W.

Advertising That Annoys.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is liberty in the air—too much of it.

Tonight, while listening to the Goldman concert on the Mall in Central Park, an advertising airplane annoyed the audience practically throughout the concert. The airplane would fly overhead and about the vicinity for a short while, the horrible sound of the engine interfering with the music, and then disappear, only to come back again.

Advertising by airplane may be a wonderful thing, but, like everything else, it has its limitations.

There should be a law against advertising by airplane in sections where such advertising will interfere with the liberty of others. FRANCIS VILLALONGA.
New York, June 24, 1929.

Another Annoyance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The hot weather is upon us. Suffering humanity has had an almost unbearable experience and its sufferings have been greatly increased by the noise created by push carts and delivery bicycles running up and down our sidewalks, creating almost as much disturbance as the largest trucks going through the streets.

This nuisance is a violation of our code. No one seems to pay any attention to this fact, not realizing that the chain stores and little stores are multiplying rapidly and that each one of these has at least one delivery vehicle of the kind referred to. Sufferings of the sick are increased and the lives and limbs of pedestrians are in danger, for these boys pushing these carts and riding these wheels have no regard for anybody.

WORLD CONVENTION OF LUTHERANS OPENS

CATECHISM IS EMPHASIZED

Archbishop Soderblom of Sweden Calls It Greatest Book for Common People.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, June 26.—In the presence of the Danish King and several members of the Cabinet, about 700 Americans joined the opening of the second Lutheran world conference at Copenhagen this morning. Bishop Ostenfeld in the opening address expressed the hope that the conference would help the poor. Hosannahs were then sung.

The impressive service was concluded by a speech by the Rev. N. C. Carlsen of Nebraska, president of the United Danish-American Church. Dr. John A. Morehead of New York then declared the convention opened.

The first session of delegates was held this afternoon. Dr. J. M. Reu of Wartburg Seminary lectured on the origin and significance of Luther's large and small catechisms. Tonight a reception was held in the town hall, at which the council welcomed the American delegates.

Americans' Efforts Praised.

COPENHAGEN, June 26 (AP).—Thousands of Lutherans from all parts of the world began today the first session of a nine days' Lutheran world convention in the presence of King Christian of Denmark.

Archbishop Nathan Soderblom of Upsala, Sweden, in an interview emphasized the importance of American initiative in bringing about the convention. He said the Lutheran churches in North America were among the first to aid Europe in the post-war years and that from this had naturally sprung the idea of an international convention working for the cooperation of Lutherans all over the world.

Archbishop Soderblom considered the movement especially indebted to Dr. John Morehead of New York City and Virginia, who is president of the convention. One hundred and seventeen American ministers arrived today aboard the liner President Roosevelt to attend the sessions.

Luther's Catechism Emphasized.

Dr. J. M. Reu, professor at Wartburg Theological Seminary, Dubuque, Iowa, called the attention of the delegates at today's session to the quadricentennial jubilee of Martin Luther's small catechism, which for four centuries has been the basis of the religious instruction of youth in Lutheran churches throughout the world. The convention devoted considerable time today and will continue the discussion tomorrow of the significance of this book in the present day.

"The gospel of Christ is the only remedy for a sin-sick world, and we Lutherans of America are not ashamed of it," said the Rev. Dr. N. C. Carlsen of Royal, Iowa, president of the United Danish Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, this afternoon, responding for the American delegates to the address of welcome of Bishop Ostenfeld of Copenhagen.

"We are present here," said Dr. Carlsen, "to assure the brethren of Denmark and other nations that the Lutheran Church of America is a Christ-centred Church, which we feel must be characteristic of the Church of the Reformation. We preach Christ, and Him crucified and resurrected, as the only Saviour of man. The Lutheran Church of America is orthodox and loyal to the Church of our fathers.

"The struggle between Fundamentalists and Modernists, which is extant in most of the Protestant Churches in America, shaking them to their very foundations, is practically unknown among American Lutherans. The few isolated cases which have come under observation have been but a ripple on the ocean.

"We trust that this second Lutheran world convention may contribute much to strengthen our bond of unity and increase the capacity of the Church to serve for the advancement of the Kingdom of God."

Two Kings Send Greetings.

Bishop Ostenfeld welcomed the delegates in Danish, German and English. Delegates from Germany, Hungary and India responded with thanks for Danish hospitality.

Archbishop Soderblom read a greeting from King Gustav, who reminded the delegates that his ancestor, Gustavus Adolphus II, laid down the principle that Church and nation must work hand in hand to attain happiness. The Swedish monarch expressed the hope that the gathering of spiritual leaders of so many nations would create mutual confidence among the countries and peoples and spread peace and love throughout mankind.

King Haakon's welcome was read by Bishop Lunde of Oslo.

"I pray your convention will help create peace and good-will among the nations," said Norway's sovereign.

Wearing the ruffled white starched mill wheel collar of the Danish clergy, Dr. Morehead delivered a sermon on the Epistle to the Ephesians, chapter ii, verse 19, emphasizing that the foundation of the whole New Testament rested on this message, which read: "Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow-citizens with the saints and of the household of God."

Archbishop Soderblom in opening the meeting declared that when Martin Luther nailed his ninety-five theses on the church door at Wittenberg he had no intention of forming a new church or of advocating separation from the Church of Rome, but was later forced into it by the ban placed upon him and his teachings. Instead, Luther considered himself as an evangel proclaiming the ancient faith taught by Christ and the early Church fathers, the Archbishop asserted.

Archbishop Soderblom said the founder of the Lutheran Church preached a message to the entire Christian world, the influence of which was moving outward in ever widening circles in every age.

Among the Americans at the convention are the Rev. S. Aasgaard of Minneapolis, president of the Norwegian Lutheran Church in America; the Rev. G. A. Brandelle, president of the Swedish Synod; Professor George Sverdrup of Minneapolis, of the Lutheran Free Church; the Rev. Hakon Jorgensen of Newell, Iowa, president of the Danish Lutheran Church in America; the Rev. C. C. Hein of Columbus, Ohio, president of the Joint Synod of Ohio, and the Rev. G. A. Fandrey of Chicago, president of the Iowa Synod.

SURVIVAL OF JEWS LAID TO RELIGION

RABBIS OF COUNTRY MEET

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, June 26.—Separation of Jews from their religion would bring about their destruction as a people, Dr. H. G. Enelow, rabbi of Temple Emanu-El of New York City and president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, declared tonight before the fortieth annual convention of that body at Temple Beth-El.

His address was the culmination of an all-day session at which reports of all phases of Judaism were read and discussed in the presence of 350 reform rabbis representing the country. The conference will continue until next Monday.

Dr. Enelow argued that in spite of the efforts of scientists, liberals and others to break down Judaism there still existed a demand for it. He averred that Jews survived as a group because of their adherence to their religion. But for that, he said, there would not be a single Jew in the world today.

He reviewed the progress of Judaism and attacked critics of reformed Judaism. He asserted that the reform Jew was interested in establishing Palestine as a home land merely to develop that country as a spiritual and cultural centre for the Jew. The rabbis favored the organization of the Jewish agency providing it be free from political alliances. He urged development of Jewish literature and advocated more rigid requirements in the training of rabbis.

In making a plea for more Jewish education for the Jew, Dr. Enelow asserted that proper literature was lacking on Jewish subjects in the English language. He said that other religious bodies produced thousands of books for their followers, while the Jewish output was extremely meager. He urged the body to undertake the publication of popular studies in Jewish literature, history and biography.

In regard to the ever-increasing number of rabbis in America in excess of the increase in houses of worship, he urged the retirement on a pension of all rabbis who had given their best efforts to propagating Judaism.

At the opening of the session a three-fold program was announced, to preserve Judaism in America, to define and fructify the principles of reform Judaism and to unify and to uphold the rabbis engaged in the tasks of reform Judaism.

Rabbi Solomon Foster dealt with proselyting in New York City and calendar reform. He said proselyting in New York concerned the Jews alone and no complaint would be made to Christian bodies concerning it. He asserted the synagogue council was opposed to any calendar reform that would "alter or interfere with the regular periodicity of the seven-day week through the insertion of a blank day in the year."

Dr. Enelow announced that a special gift of $5,000 had been presented to the conference by Lucius N. Littauer of New York to be used to aid scholars throughout the world in Jewish literary efforts.

PLAN DAY TO OBSERVE FREEDOM IN RELIGION

Foundation to Mark 187th Anniversary of Jefferson's Birth on April 13, 1930.

Preliminary plans for commemorating a "Religious Freedom Day" on April 13, 1930, the 187th anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson, were discussed yesterday at a luncheon at the Hotel Astor given by the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation. Stuart G. Gibboney, president of the organization, presided. The board of governors of the foundation will select a national committee of prominent persons to arrange for the celebration.

A. R. Holcombe, managing editor of The New York Herald Tribune, suggested that President Hoover be asked to deliver an address, besides issuing a proclamation for the observance of the day. He declared that the day was of such importance that no other person in the country could make the ceremonies fitting.

Dr. Frederick B. Robinson, president of the College of the City of New York, urged that churches of all denominations and creeds, colleges, schools, newspapers and the major political parties take part in the celebration. James Sullivan, Assistant Commissioner of Education of the State of New York, urging tolerance as well as religious freedom in this country, declared:

"We may have religious freedom in the United States, but we also have an atrocious amount of religious intolerance. We should try in this celebration to inculcate in the mind of the nation the spirit of religious tolerance, which was behind the famous Virginia religious freedom law which Jefferson so justly prided himself in having sponsored."

Other speakers were Mrs. William H. Purdy, chairman oft he finance committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs for the United States; Dr. George W. Ryan, president of the Board of Education, and Henry Alan Johnston, secretary of the foundation.

U. S. Grant 3d Abandons Plan for Peacock Colony

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The dream of Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, Director of the Office of Public Buildings and Grounds, of colonizing the park surrounding Mirror Pool in the shadow of the Lincoln Memorial with strutting peacocks hit the hard rocks of reality today.

A contract for the purchase of a dozen of the birds had been let tentatively, but it was recalled today when it was found no precedent for such a purchase existed. It was feared the stern hand of Controller General McCarl, who frowns on unauthorized expenditures, might veto the plan.

Not only were peacocks scratched off the list but swans as well. Colonel Grant found data which showed the swans would also be poor choices for adding a touch of color to the park and pool.

EXPERTS IN CLASH OVER BRIDGE BOOK

R. F. Foster Testifies in Suit That He Prepared a Volume for W. C. Whitehead.

CURT DENIAL BY LATTER

Federal Judge Thacher heard testimony yesterday in the injunction and accounting suit of the Whist Club against R. F. Foster and others who are charged with violating the copyright of the club's book, "Laws of Auction Bridge," in the book "Simplified Auction Bridge," written by Mr. Foster and published and distributed by the other defendants. Besides Mr. Foster the defendants are Greenberg Publisher, Inc., Stern Brothers and Ball & Brown.

The complaint explained that the club was organized to promote whist and to establish rules for it, that before 1926 the club had adopted a code of rules, generally accepted by players and approved by the Knickerbocker and American Whist Clubs. The value of this book, the complaint asserts, is more than $10,000.

Witnesses for the plaintiff included Charles P. Cadley, secretary of the club; William E. Talcott, a member of the club for twenty-five years and a member of the committee which revised the laws in 1926, and Bessie M. Stewart.

In this testimony it was explained that while the plaintiff had no objection to the use of its rules it insisted that credit be given to the club as the author, that they should not be used for exploitation and that the price of any publication containing them should not be less than 75 cents. It was alleged that all of these stipulations had been violated by the defendants.

Mr. Foster denied that he had violated the plaintiff's copyright, and to show that he was considered a expert on whist, said that he had written the first book on bridge published by the late Joseph B. Elwell, who was murdered June 11, 1920. He also said that he had prepared Wilbur C. Whitehead's book on the same subject. Mr. Whitehead is a recognized authority on bridge and is the editor of a magazine devoted to the game. He had been called as a witness for the defense, but counsel for the plaintiff called him to the stand to reply to Mr. Foster.

He was asked whether Mr. Foster had ever written a book for him, and he replied, "Positively not." Later Mr. Whitehead said that while he was in France he had written a brochure on whist, that when he returned to this country he had expanded it and that Mr. Foster was employed to edit it, for which he had been paid.

Besides asking for an injunction restraining the further sale of the book and an accounting, the plaintiff seeks damages of not less than $10,000 and the withdrawal of all of the publications of the defendants now on sale carrying the alleged violation.

F.W. ROCKWELL DIES; EX-REPRESENTATIVE

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., June 26.—Francis W. Rockwell, retired lawyer, who represented the old Twelfth Massachusetts District in Congress for four terms, from 1884 to 1892, died today at his home here, in his eighty-sixth year. He took his seat in the Forty-eighth Congress exactly forty years after his father, the late Judge Julius D. Rockwell, had entered that body.

Mr. Rockwell was a native of Pittsfield. He was graduated from Amherst College in 1868 and from Harvard Law School in 1871. He was elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1879 and served in the State Senate in 1881 and 1882. While in the Forty-first Congress he saved for Springfield its armory. He was a Republican.

His activities kept up even after he suffered a shock in 1916. Since 1898 he had been a member of the Greylock Reservation Commission, serving without pay. He was chairman for nineteen years. He established an automobile highway from Lanesboro, near Pittsfield, to the summit of Mount Greylock, the highest peak in the State. It is known as the Rockwell Road.

He was an organizer and a president for many years of the City Savings Bank. In 1924 he compiled the genealogy of the Rockwell family.

Mr. Rockwell is survived by a widow and six sons, the Rev. William W., of New York; Henry D., Samuel F. and Francis W. Jr., of North Andover, Mass.; Julius of Andover, Mass., and Lawrence D. of Rome, N. Y.; also a sister, Mrs. Charles P. Bowditch, of Jamaica Plain, Mass.

Mr. Rockwell was a close friend of the late Thomas B. Reed, having helped to manage the campaign which won for Reed the speakership, for which McKinley was a candidate. This friendship was responsible for Mr. Rockwell's visit to the House of Representatives once under unusual circumstances. He was recovering from the grip in 1890, but insisted on being taken to the House at the risk of his life to cast the one vote necessary to pass the rules which broke up the Democrats' c stom of leaving the hall to prevent a quorum.

He was descended in the eighth generation from Deacon William Rockwell of Fitzhead and Dorchester, England, who settled in Windsor, Conn., where he died in 1640 as a deacon of the Congregational Church, the first church organized in Connecticut.

At Amherst Mr. Rockwell was class orator and head of the Alpha Delta Phi chapter. While at Harvard Law School he was president of the student body.

LONG ISLAND FIGHTS DEBRIS ON BEACHES

MENACE TO HEALTH SEEN

Federal and city authorities have started investigations to discover the source of the garbage, rubbish and wastes which have littered the beaches on the south shore of Long Island during the last few days. The Long Island Chamber of Commerce and the authorities of Long Beach have asked the State Board of Health to make an investigation also.

Business men and residents of the Rockaways and Long Beach complain that the condition of these beaches constitutes a menace to the health and business of more than 300,000 persons who live in these communities.

The beach along the Rockaways and Long Beach was covered yesterday morning with débris. Alfred A. Taylor, Commissioner of the Street Cleaning Department, sent 100 men to the Rockaways to clean up the beach, promising that if necessary the men would work all night to collect the débris. At Long Beach a crew of forty men was employed to clean up and had to work overtime to collect the material that had drifted in.

Commissioner Taylor, after a trip to the Rockaways, said: "I cannot understand how the city scows, which dump our garbage out at sea, did this. All the scows have men in charge who must make out complete reports of when, how and where the garbage is dumped." Mr. Taylor said, however, that he was going to find out the cause of such conditions.

Representative William F. Brenner started the New York City investigation when he visited Mayor Walker in his office on Monday and told the Mayor of the Rockaway situation. Mr. Brenner also asked the supervisor of the Port and Coast Guard officials to make an investigation, prompting these Federal officials to start action.

Mr. Brenner said that he had discovered that the rubbish was often dumped some four or five miles from the shore. He said he would endeavor to have the rubbish conveyed far out to sea.

Long Beach, according to James J. Farrell, assistant to Mayor William J. Dalton, has been troubled not only by refuse, garbage, lumber and crates, but by a tar substance which has thickened and dirtied the water. This tar substance is said to come from the oil-burning ships, seven or eight of which pass daily about three miles out, on their way to or from New York harbor.

The Long Beach City Council adopted a resolution Monday night asking the War Department to supervise and investigate these oil-burning ships. Another resolution asked the State Board of Health to investigate.

Dr. John H. Barry, assistant sanitary superintendent of the Queens Health Department, said yesterday that he thought the rubbish and garbage came with the backwash from Coney Island. Dr. Barry said that he picked up cards and booklets bearing the names of Coney Island concessions.

The directors of the Far Rockaway Board of Trade adopted a resolution protesting against conditions and asking speedy action to eliminate the refuse.

BOY PATRICIDE IS HELD.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., June 26 (AP).—Waiving preliminary hearing, Otis Hankins, 14, was bound over today without bond to the Jefferson County grand jury on a first degree murder charge for slaying his father, Wes W. Hankins, 60, a planter.

After a night in jail the boy was brought before Municipal Judge S. A. Miller and asked whether he wished to waive preliminary hearing. He turned indifferently to his lawyer, H. K. Toney, and said, "Whatever you do will suit me." Toney waived the hearing.

He was taken back to the county jail to await the funeral of his father, which he attended in the custody of an officer.

When asked how he wished to spend his time in jail he replied he would like "to have some books with good stories in them."

The Speech a Man or Woman Makes When Mad

—does more harm than good. Anger is always a bad speech-maker. Brains have been pretty fairly distributed, but bad temper, at times, utterly defeats their proper use. Almost all wars of nations and of individuals are entered into hastily. There is only one sensible thing to do with mistakes, and that is to correct them quickly as possible, without smashing each other's face and bankrupting ourselves financially, as nations or individuals. CITY TRUST CASES GO TO GRAND JURY TODAY

Extraordinary Grand Jury Will Confine Itself to Defunct Bank's Affairs, Banton Says.

The Brooklyn grand jury will begin this morning to hear evidence of criminality in the failure of the City Trust Company last February. Louis Tavormina and George Ziniti, vice presidents of the Atlantic Avenue branch of the bank, were held on charges of third degree forgery by Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey yesterday morning and the witnesses whose depositions formed the basis of the charge received summonses in court to appear before the grand jury this morning.

The evidence against Frank H. Warder, former Superintendent of Banks, and any others arrested in Manhattan, will not go to the grand jury before July 22, when the special grand jury under Justice Tompkins in the special trial term of the Supreme Court ordered by Governor Roosevelt will convene. District Attorney Banton said yesterday that he would be ready to proceed immediately on evidence presented to him by Moreland Commissioner Robert Moses and gathered by his own office.

Refuses to Dismiss Complaint.

Tavormina and Ziniti came before Justice Cropsey, sitting as a committing magistrate, yesterday. Fortune Gallo was examined by Bernard Fliashnick, attorney for Tavormina, after which Mr. Fliashnick moved for dismissal of the complaint. Justice Cropsey denied the motion and held Tavormina for the grand jury. Caesar Barra, attorney for Ziniti, waived examination and his client also was held for the grand jury.

District Attorney Charles J. Dodd will present the evidence, assisted by Louis Goldstein, who has had much experience in bank cases. Mr. Moses is expected to appear at the grand jury room. Witnesses were Fortune Gallo, Roger [illegible], bank examiner who found the false entries forming the basis of the charges against Ziniti and Tavormina, and Salvatore Pino and Dr. Michael Iovino, whose accounts were juggled.

Justice Cropsey refused to accept the $15,000 bail bond for each of the men offered by the Equitable Casualty and Surety Company until he had conducted an impromptu investigation of the total outstanding liabilities of the concern and the amount of collateral on bonds outstanding. He ordered officers of the company to appear with their records and, when Fred Flatow, an attorney, appeared and could not answer the questions, the court said:

"I knew as soon as they did not send an officer of the company that something was wrong."

Officers of the company came to the court in the afternoon and informed Justice Cropsey that the figures he wanted could not be collected in less than two or three days' time. Justice Cropsey seemed surprised that no blotter was kept showing the amount of outstanding liability and announced that he had written to the State Insurance Department about the system.

Justice Cropsey brought out that there is no limit of liability which the company may assume fixed by law and that the company itself does not fix a limit. He was prepared to reject the bond when a certificate of solvency of the company, issued by the State Insurance Department, was presented and his attention was called to the State insurance law which says that this certificate "shall be conclusive evidence of the solvency of such corporation and of its sufficiency."

Justice Cropsey was plainly dissatisfied with the situation but could not go behind the law. His investigation of the relation of the liabilities assumed by the company and the amount of collateral covering the liability occupied most of the day. Meanwhile Tavormina and Ziniti had been in the custody of Detective Sergeant John Furlong and ate their lunch under his watchful eye.

Inquiry Limited, Says Banton.

District Attorney Banton, who will be in charge of prosecutions in New York County under the special trial term of the Supreme Court, does not consider that the action of Governor Roosevelt opens the door for a wider investigation of the Banking Department than that concerning the City Trust failure. His view is that the special grand jury will consider only City Trust matters and that the special trial term was called for the purpose of trying the City Trust criminal cases.

"The extraordinary grand jury will be limited to the City Trust investigation," he said, "unless, during the hearing, something directly pertinent to the City Trust which might involve some other bank or banks is introduced before that body."

So far Mr. Warder and Anthony Di Paola are the only persons arrested in Manhattan. Other arrests, however, are expected before the Moreland Commission completes its work. Charles A. Perkins, appointed by Mr. Moses to prepare criminal charges and who will assist Mr. Banton in the special trial term, has been at work for two weeks considering the evidence and preparing complaints. It has not been decided when these will be presented, but it is possible that they will be handed to Justice Cropsey tomorrow when Di Paola is arraigned.

EVANSTON, Ill., June 26 (AP).—When Miss Belle Korshak, 16 years old, was brought before Police Chief Freeman for speeding she wanted to know, first of all, whether the chief was a Democrat or a Republican.

"What difference can it possibly make?" inquired the police officer.

"Well," said Miss Korshak, "my daddy's a master in chancery and a Democrat. If you happen to be a Democrat you might be lenient."

The chief happened to be a Republican, but he said he would forgive her anyway.

DON'TS FOR BATHERS LISTED BY WYNNE

In Radio Talk, He Lays Most Drownings to Carelessness and Overconfidence.

WARNS THE CANOEISTS

That Sport Is Only for Persons Who Can Swim, He Says—Urges All to Learn.

Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, Health Commissioner, over WEAF yesterday afternoon, talked of the advantages to health of outdoor bathing in Summer. It is refreshing, he said, and induces complete relaxation and exercises all the muscles of the body.

Dr. Wynne also warned against bathing tragedies. "Every Monday morning," he said, "the headlines of the newspapers tell the sorry story that many deaths occurred over the week-end from drowning. This country loses 8,000 of its citizens—almost all of whom are boys and young men—from this cause every year. In New York City last year, 308 persons were drowned during the Summer months. The largest number of these accidents occurred in July.

"In most instances, it is carelessness and overconfidence that can well be charged with these deaths. Strangely enough, drowning very frequently comes to those who do know how to swim—because they have too high an opinion of their prowess. They want to show off. They get cramps, or they get chilled, or they become exhausted because they have attempted to swim too far."

Dr. Wynne gave a series of admonitions to bathers, in which he said:

Don't attempt to get a coat of tan all in one or two days.

Use the ropes, it is not safe to go beyond them.

Do not go swimming alone.

Persons subject to attacks of fainting or epilepsy should never indulge in swimming.

Persons having kidney or heart disease or high blood pressure may possibly be permitted to bathe, but only upon the advice of their doctors.

Dr. Wynne invites all who desire information on artificial respiration to write to him at 505 Pearl Street.

Lord and Lady Willingdon Will Meet Him at Quebec.

Special to The New York Times.

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 26.—Traveling on a special train, Prince Henry, Duke of Gloucester, left tonight for Ottawa, where he will meet Premier W. L. Mackenzie King.

The Prince still carries his arm in a sling, his collar bone not having completely united, although it is more than three weeks since he broke it while playing polo here. He was accompanied by a physician.

From Ottawa the Prince goes to Quebec, where he will be received by Lord Willingdon, Governor General, and Lady Willingdon, before embarking for England.

GLENARM CASTLE BURNED.

Historic Irish Seat, Built in 1636, Completely Destroyed.

BELFAST, June 26 (AP).—Glenarm Castle, the County Antrim home of the MacDonnell family, which has been associated with North Eastern Ulster for many centuries, was destroyed by fire during the night.

All that remained today of the historic pile, erected in 1636, were the blackened walls and the servants' quarters.

Valuable furniture and pictures were consumed. The Earl and Countess of Antrim, whose seat is at Glenarm, were away on a London visit.

BOARD DEADLOCKED ON SANITATION BILL

HEARINGS SET FOR TODAY

The Board of Estimate sat behind closed doors for two hours yesterday afternoon in an effort to reach conclusive action on several municipal problems that are expected to come up in this morning's special meeting of the board. It is desired to clear the calendar, so far as possible, before the Summer recess.

Among the topics discussed at length were the city's Sanitation Department bill and the relations of Controller Berry to that measure; the proposed contract agreement between the city and the New York Central Railroad Company for carrying out the terms of the enlarged west side improvement plan, the essential features of which plan have been already determined; the Mayor's model housing project in connection with the widening of Forsythe and Chrystie Streets, and the city's desire to build piers to accommodate ocean steamships 1,000 feet long or longer.

There will be this morning a public hearing on the west side New York Central contract, but, as certain details are still to be perfected in the agreement, its formal ratification will be deferred until another special meeting to be called by the Mayor, probably for Tuesday, which is expected to be the last meeting before the Summer recess.

Deadlock on Sanitary Commission.

In the executive session a strenuous but futile effort was made to reach an agreement on the amended local bill for the creation of a municipal sanitary commission. Action upon it also will have to go over, the Mayor thought, until the special session next week. The bill's present status is virtually that of a deadlock with small prospect of harmony. The majority of the board, it was learned, in opposition to the Mayor's desire, favors the amended bill sponsored by Aldermanic President Joseph V. McKee, which would give the proposed sanitation department substantially the status of any other city department amenable to the Mayor and the Board of Estimate, and would strip its commissioner of most of the autocratic powers with which he had been vested in the original draft of the measure.

"My position remains unchanged," said Controller Berry after the session. It is understood, however, that the Controller and Mr. McKee will confer further on the bill before the meeting next week.

Controller Berry had been slated for the chairmanship of the proposed commission at a compensation commensurate with his present $25,000 salary as Controller. In this way, it was thought, an opening would be made to permit Mr. McCooey, the Kings County Democratic leader, to name a Brooklyn man for Controller for this Fall's election. Mr. Berry, in a statement last week, bolted this program unequivocally. He declared that, as amended, the sanitation bill had so stripped the proposed commission of its vital features that he would not accept its chairmanship.

In the same statement the Controller added that his political future was "in the hands o his party leaders." One report yesterday, however, was that General Berry might yet consent to accept the post as head of the Sanitation Commission if the term of office should be made six instead of four years.

Hilly Consulted on Housing Plan.

In preparation for action today on the Chrystie-Forsythe Streets widening, which is coupled with the Mayor's model housing project, Corporation Counsel Arthur J. W. Hilly was called into conference by the board. How far that project may be advanced today will depend somewhat upon Mr. Hilly's opinion on several legal points. The board already has adopted the map for the proposed street improvement. For this morning there is scheduled a public hearing on a resolution for acquiring title to the land and property needed and also resolutions defining the proposed area of assessment and the apportionment of the cost of the street improvement.

In the board's discussion of the question of the 1,000-foot piers it was joined by William Barclay Parsons, engineer, who has been acting for the city's Dock Department in its effort to persuade the Federal War Department to permit an extension of the pierhead line on the North River. In this matter, as well as in construction of the second section of the west side elevated express highway, the Mayor said, nothing can be done until the War Department has given its decision.

"There are ten of these gigantic new ships about to go into commission under the flags of various lines," said Mayor Walker. "If we fail to accommodate them here they will seek quarters elsewhere. No matter what the cost to the city may be, nothing must be permitted to menace the supremacy of the Port of New York, an asset that has been one of the most potent factors in this city's growth and prosperity."

PROCLAIMS PULASKI DAY.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—President Hoover issued a proclamation today calling for the observance of the 150th anniversary of the death of Brig. Gen. Casimir Pulaski, Revolutionary War hero, on Oct. 11, with appropriate exercises and ceremonies in schools, churches and at other suitable places.

The President also directed that the flag be displayed upon all government buildings on that day.

The proclamation was issued as a result of a resolution of the special session of Congress. It recites that on Oct. 11, 1779, marks in American history the date of the heroic death of General Pulaski from wounds received at the siege of Savannah, and that Oct. 11, 1929, marks the 150th anniversary of his death. "it is but fitting that such date should be observed and commemorated with suitable patriotic exercises."

World Auto Output in 1928 Set a Record; 5,203,139 Vehicles Produced Was Million Gain

WASHINGTON, June 26.—World automobile production increased by more than 1,000,000 vehicles in 1928, as compared with 1927, and set a record total output for the industry, according to a report made public today by the Department of Commerce.

World production of automotive vehicles last year was 5,203,139, an increase of 1,044,173 over 1927. The United States and Canada, whose combined output in 1928 was 4,601,141 cars, or 88½ per cent of the total, contributed 1,020,761 of the increase, the remaining 23,412 being distributed among other producing countries.

Of the 1928 output in this country, 9½ per cent of the passenger cars and 26 per cent of the trucks were exported. Of Canada's total production, 55,612 passenger cars and 23,776 trucks were exported.

Eighty-five per cent of the passenger cars produced in the United States were of the closed type. That percentage has risen from 10 per cent in 1919.

More than 55 per cent of the total world production of automobiles was required for replacements, as compared with approximately 50 per cent in 1927, 37 per cent in 1926 and a like percentage in 1925.

Only three automobile manufacturing countries failed to show higher output last year—England, Spain and Denmark. British production declined from 231,920 to 11,677 vehicles. Spanish from 585 to 325 and Danish from 190 to 165.

Other countries—Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia and France, Germany, Hungary, Italy, Japan, Russia, Sweden and Switzerland—all showed gains. Largest percentage gains were registered by Hungary with 64 per cent and Russia with 55 per cent, while the greatest increase by number was made by France with a gain of 20,000 vehicles, followed by Germany with about 12,000.

Despite primitive road conditions in Paraguay, exports of automobiles from the United States to that country during 1928 numbered 264, as compared with a total of 147 in 1927, an increase of 80 per cent, according to a report from Vice Consul John B. Faust at Asuncion to the Department of Commerce.

WOULD RUSH APPEAL ON DWELLING LAW

Real estate interests and welfare organizations supporting the multiple dwelling law urged yesterday that the Appellate Division consider immediately the appeal from Supreme Court Justice Lydon's decision holding the law unconstitutional. Prompt settlement, it was declared, is necessary to clear up "confusion which has arisen in the building industry," especially regarding a considerable number of building plans filed here prior to the passage of the housing measure.

A statement issued by Corporation Counsel Hilly just after Justice Lydon's decision was rendered on Tuesday was interpreted to mean that Tenement House Commissioner Deegan will be guided by the building code and the old tenement house law, in effect before the passage of the multiple dwelling law, in the handling of building plans until a decision is reached in the higher courts.

Despite the desire of many organizations for early action, it was generally conceded that the appeal is not likely to get on the calendar of the Appellate Division before adjournment, in which case several months must elapse before the case can be settled.

Justice Lydon's decision, according to Harold Riegelman, special assistant to Attorney General Ward and counsel to the commission for the revision of the tenement house law, "has necessarily caused some confusion in the building industry which can be relieved only by speedy disposition of the case by the higher courts." Mr. Riegelman said he was ready to argue the appeal tomorrow.

"Acting for the Attorney General, I have done all in my power to expedite the appeal," he said, "and such an appeal will be vigorously prosecuted with all the speed which the cooperation of the other parties to the cause will permit.

"I am confident that the Appellate Court will sustain the multiple dwelling law."

CABARET MAN SENTENCED.

André Chatelan, 29 years old, 140 East Forty-sixth Street, a former partner of Evelyn Nesbit in an Atlantic City cabaret, was sentenced by Judge Levine in General Sessions yesterday to Sing Sing for from three to seven years on two forgery indictments.

He had pleaded guilty to the specific charge of forging the names of Ludlow E. Bretz and Walter Lee Weisbacher, officials of F. Hecht & Co., leather dealers, 10 Spruce Street, where he had been employed for nine years as an accountant, to a $500 check. He admitted, however, stealing $6,600 from the concern. A total shortage of $45,000 had been discovered in the books for the last four years.

Chatelan was for two years a student in Lausanne University in Switzerland. His father, according to a report to the court by Edwin J. Cooley, chief of the probation bureau, is a university professor. Chatelan defrauded his employers through altering his books, forging bank statements and raising checks.

He was recently freed on a homicide charge in the death of Catherine McDonald, a motion picture actress, who was killed when an automobile he was driving overturned near Woodcliff, N. J., after a party at a roadhouse.

BACKERS OF HYLAN NAME HIM TONIGHT

He Will Accept Nomination by "Better City Government League" at Cooper Union.

REST OF TICKET DEFERRED

John F. Hylan will be nominated as an independent candidate for Mayor tonight at a convention of the Better City Government League to be held at Cooper Union. Officials of the league, which is backing the Hylan candidacy, said yesterday that they expected an attendance of about 2,400 persons.

About 1,600 delegates will participate, according to George Julian Houtain, city chairman of the league. Selection of nominees for other places on the ticket will be deferred.

Mr. Hylan will make a speech of acceptance which will be broadcast from 10:30 to 11 P. M.

Mr. Houtain will act both as temporary and permanent chairman. The convention will open at 8:30 P. M. Speakers will include Mrs. Katherine Clivette and Orin L. Forrester.

The nomination speech for the former Mayor will be delivered by Henry Weissman. A platform will be prepared, the keynote of which is to be "common honesty in public affairs."

The object in not naming other members of an independent slate, it was said, is to leave the way open for Republican or fusion endorsement of Mr. Hylan without the complications that might be caused by the presence of other members on a ticket. Hylan supporters profess to believe that there is a real chance that the Republicans may swing to him, although Republican leaders have ridiculed this theory.

WOMEN SOCIAL LEADERS KILLED IN AUTO WRECK

Mrs. H. J. Crocker and Mrs. L. F. Monteagle of San Francisco Die in Collision.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Two women, prominent in the society of San Francisco, were instantly killed and a third was so seriously injured that she may die, when a roadster driven by a young man, who was later pronounced drunk, crashed into the automobile in which they were riding in Menlo Park this afternoon.

The dead are Mrs. Henry J. Crocker, widow of a San Francisco banker and member of the Ives family, pioneers of California, and Mrs. Louis F. Monteagle, wife of a San Francisco capitalist.

Mrs. Fannie Crocker McCreary, daughter of Judge Clark W. Crocker of Sacramento and a sister-in-law of Mrs. Henry J. Crocker, is at the Palo Alto Base Hospital, where physicians said she was probably fatally hurt.

The women were returning from a luncheon at Atherton in Mrs. Crocker's automobile, driven by her chauffeur, Percy W. Spencer. At an intersection, the roadster, driven by Carl Flanagan, 25, an attendant at the Palo Alto hospital, and said to have been going at a high rate of speer, crashed into the rear of the Crocker car, pushing it across the street and against a telephone pole, which was snapped clear.

Mrs. Monteagle was thrown out of the back seat and over a stone wall. Mrs. Crocker, also thrown out, was crushed between the pole, car and stone wall. Mrs. McCreary was pinned in the wreckage. The chauffeur was only slightly cut and bruised, and Flanagan was uninjured except for a few scratches.

Mrs. Crocker was active in philanthropic work. In 1922, she gave a twenty-bed unit to the Stanford University Hospital at a cost of $20,000. Before her marriage she Mary V. Ives.

FORD'S ROAD SOLD TO UNNAMED GROUP

VIEWED AS WABASH LINK

Cost Ford $5,000,000 in 1920 and He Turned Its Years of Losses Into Big Profits.

Control of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad was purchased yesterday by Charles D. Barney & Co. from Henry Ford and family for an unnamed buyer. It is believed in financial circles that the purchaser is the Pennroad Corporation, which will later turn the properties over to the Pennsylvania Railroad. Confirmation was lacking at the offices of the Pennsylvania.

The road runs north and south between Ironton, Ohio, and Detroit and Toledo. Although a heavy carrier of freight, most of its business emanates from the Ford factories at Detroit and River Rouge, while from the south ore is carried to the automobile plants in the north.

All of the principal Eastern Trunk lines cross the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton at some point. It is one of the most important independent short lines in the United States. Its value to the Pennsylvania, as pointed out by one authority yesterday, lies in the fact that it would enable the road to obtain a larger portion of the automobile traffic originating in Detroit.

Would Form Trunk Link.

Another factor to be taken into consideration, he added, is that with a heavy originating tonnage on the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton, the Pennsylvania would be in a position to obtain reciprocal agreements for the exchange of tonnage over other roads. Indirectly, it would also fit into the plans of a new fifth trunk line, sponsored by the Wabash.

The road was originally a steam-operated line, but shortly after being taken over by Mr. Ford, who decided that the method of operation was too expensive, it was electrified, with the exception of eighty miles of its 343-mile length.

It is construed in some quarters that if the Pennsylvania has purchased the road, it is a direct thrust at the Baltimore & Ohio. This is attributed to the fact that under the four-system plan, to which three of the large Eastern railroads agreed, the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton and the Wabash were to go to the Baltimore & Ohio, and under the individual plan submitted by the Baltimore & Ohio to the Interstate Commerce Commission those roads were incorporated as part of the Baltimore & Ohio system.

Ford Made Road Profitable.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, June 26.—For thirty years the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad limped along from one receivership to another. In July, 1920, Henry Ford bought it for 60 cents on the dollar for the income bonds, $4 a share for the preferred stock and $2 a share for the common stock, an investment of $5,000,000. Railroad men said he paid too much. In 1924 figures were made public showing that in the preceding two years he had made his investment pay him $4,201,883.

Mr. Ford performed the seeming miracle of making the dying railroad pay him handsome profits not by scrimping but by increasing expenditures for maintenance of way while other railroad executives were reducing them—by increasing expenditure for equipment and by paying the railroad employes higher than the union scale of wages.

All of the workers were made partners in the undertaking through the offering of Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad certificates, which by 1924 were paying interest at the rate of 12 per cent a year.

Purchase of the railroad was not a mere whim on the part of Mr. Ford. It was a shrewd business deal, not for the sake of profits the road might make but for vastly more important savings it would afford to the Ford automobile plants. Mr. Ford speeded up the road so that it cut the time between raw material to cash in the bank from twenty-two to fourteen days and reduced the amount of cash tied up in his manufacturing operations by $28,000,000.

Ford Protested 1926 Valuation.

In 1926 the Interstate Commerce Commission placed a tentative valuation of $11,826,300 on Mr. Ford's railroad. This, he protested, his attorneys setting forth that the proper valuation to be used for rate-making purposes and a "fair return" was $23,061,208.

Although employes of the railroad got higher than the union scale they had more to do than the ordinary railroad employe. Engines were equipped with miniature repair kits and the engine crews were expected to make all minor repairs without going into the shop.

Crossing watchmen were expected to keep crossings clean and in repair without calling for carpenters. But the crossing watchmen instead of working every day in the month worked twenty-six days and instead of $56 a month, the former scale of wages, they received $156 a month. As far as possible all Sunday work was eliminated.

Barney Firm Won't Comment.

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—Pennsylvania Railroad officials and members of C. D. Barney & Co. refused to comment on the purchase today of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad. Stockbrokers, however, saw significance in the fact that Jay Cooke, formerly a member of the Barney firm, is a member of the board of directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Mr. Cooke is also one of the voting trustees of the Penn Road Corporation, the subsidiary of the carrier recently formed to deal in securities.

"I am sorry I can't say anything about it," was the answer to the interrogation whether the Pennsylvania Railroad was the undisclosed principal in the transaction.

Will Rogers Compliments Lindbergh and Fletcher

To The Editor of The New York Times:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 26.—See the Lindberghs are flying West. They have their camping outfit with 'em. If somebody lands in your back yard and you smell bacon frying, it won't be a soul but Annie and Charley. He is the first aviator to carry his own cook.

Lucky for aviation that he picked that sensible girl. Where would we have been if he had married some girl that thought her husband was too valuable to fly?

See where Fletcher, our Ambassador to Rome, is retiring. He always struck me as being about the best man we had in that service. Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

DENIES FORD PLANS TO CUT TAXI RATES

15,000 LIMIT IS PROPOSED

Independent Would Cut Number of Cars by 5,000—Decision Is Promised in Ten Days.

The Ford Motor Company and the standard taxicab manufacturers staged another battle at Police Headquarters yesterday when Commissioner Whalen resumed his hearings on the application of the Ford company for permission to put its specially designed cabs into service in this city.

Several independent operators who were heard disagreed as to the advisability of cutting taxicab rates and permitting the Ford cars to operate. Some independents resented the idea of adding any more taxicabs to the 21,000 already in operation, declaring a reduction in the number of cabs was advisable in the interests of the industry and public safety.

The outstanding question, however, for Commissioner Whalen to decide was whether the Ford cabs, lighter in weight and said to be less costly to operate than the standard cabs, should be permitted to enter the New York field despite the fact that their inside dimensions do not conform to the city regulations.

William A. Francis, Eastern manager for the Ford Motor Company, supported by De Lancey Nicoll Jr., counsel for the company, read a supplementary memorandum in which were included exhibits tending to show that Paramount and Checker cab operating costs were approximately 6 cents a mile while those of the Ford car, exclusive of tires and repairs, were 1.4 cents to 2.7 cents a mile.

Under questioning of A N. Grill, counsel for the Checker Cab Company, Mr. Francis declared that the Ford Company was not interested in cutting taxicab rates and was concerned only with getting permission to put its cabs into service here.

"The Ford Motor Company does not intend to operate taxicabs," Mr. Francis said, recapitulating a former statement." It will have no interest, direct or indirect, in any company operating taxicabs. It is not interested in meters or rates charged. It does not and will not advocate any change in rates."

Mr. Grill asserted that to meet Ford competition the standard taxicab companies might have to put lighter cabs on the streets. Mr. Grill and A. M. Jackel, counsel for the Yellow Taxi Company, said the latter organization has ordered 1,000 Checker cabs to be added to its fleet of 1,200 cabs now in operation.

Philip J. O'Brien, representing the Independent Taxicab Owners' Association, with 1,000 cabs, declared that it would be impossible for independents to operate at a fifteen-cent rate. Maintaining that the saturation point in taxicabs had been reached in this city, he favored the curtailment of taxicabs in New York to 15,000.

Michael Donnella, vice president of the Amalgamated Taxi Owners' Association, operating 800 cabs, saw no reason why the Ford cabs should not be permitted to operate. He thought that these cars could be run at a profit on a 15-cent-per-mile rate, asserting that the reason the standard companies were unable to operate at this rate was because "they had to pay large dividends to stockholders."

Vigorous opposition to lower rates was voiced by Hugo Weber, business manager of the Broad Street Taxi Owners' Association, who declared the fifteen-cent rate was a financial impossibility for the independents.

Joseph Wolff of the Independent Taxi Owners' Association considered the fifteen-cent rate a danger to public safety. He favored the application of the maximum legal 40-50 cent rate for all taxicab operators.

Charles B. Clapham and E. A. Langdon, testifying as experts for the standard taxicab companies, declared that a reduction in the present rates would increase the accident hazard, compelling a corresponding increase in insurance charges. Mr. Clapham said that there were 30,000 accident claims, totaling $4,000,000, against taxicab drivers in New York City last year.

Mr. Whalen announced that he hoped to render his decision both on the application of the Ford Motor Company and on that of the White Horse Taxi Service, Inc., which has begun a suit to compel approval of its meter, within a week or ten days.

URGES ONE VETERAN AGENCY

DETROIT, June 26 (AP).—Establishment of a national agency to include all bureaus and departments concerned with veterans' affairs was advocated today by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans Bureau, in an address before the convention of Disabled Veterans of the World War.

He declared this would afford a less complex administration than is now obtained under the various bureaus. He also advocated a definite program of relief to veterans and dependents that would enable prompt settlement of claims in the event of another war.

No outstanding changes in law or policy affecting the Veterans Bureau within the past year were reported by General Hines, whose address was the main event on today's program of the convention.

CHANGES ORDERED IN SUBWAY STATIONS

ACTS TO EASE CONGESTION

BRONX CONTRACT IS LET

The Transit Commission issued orders yesterday for improvements at I. R. T. and B. M. T. stations in Brooklyn, Queens and the Bronx designed to relieve congestion. The improvements have been the subject of several public hearings in the past three months. At the same time the Board of Transportation awarded the contract for construction of the sixth section of the city's Bronx-Concourse subway line and set July 12 as the date for a public hearing on the form of contract for a three and one-half-mile stretch of the new Queens-Jamaica route along Broadway from Pettit Place to Union Turnpike and Queens Boulevard.

The improvements which the I. R. T. and B. M. T. were ordered to make included lengthening of station platforms, construction of additional stairways and opening of existing stairways not now in use.

Longer Platforms Ordered.

Kosciusko Street (Broadway line), Sutter Avenue and New Lots Road (Canarsie line) and Seneca Avenue (Metropolitan Avenue line)—platforms extended to at least 520 feet to accommodate eight-car trains now operating or contemplated. The platform lengths are now 508 feet, 497 feet, 482 feet and 515 feet, respectively.

On the I. R. T. these stations were ordered affected by the orders:

Rawson, Lowery and Bliss Streets (Flushing-Queens line)—all existing stairways now closed ordered opened. These stations are used by both the I. R. T. and B. M. T. lines.

Proposes Changes at 167th Street

In connection with the station at 167th Street on the Jerome Avenue line, used by east side subway trains and those of the Sixth and Ninth Avenue elevated lines, the commission suggested reconstruction as an express station, with an island platform. The station now has east and west platforms, which are taxed to capacity because of interchange of subway and elevated passengers. The proposal is to use the island platform for elevated passengers and the outside platforms for the subway traffic.

The commission approved the installation of speed control devices on the eastbound track of the Queensboro Bridge line between the centre of the bridge and Queensboro Plaza to restrict train speed to not in excess of thirty miles an hour.

The Board of Transportation award of the contract for the sixth section of the Bronx-Concourse line, extending along Grand Concourse from Kingsbridge Road to Mosholu Parkway, went to Di Marco & Retman, Inc., for $6,701,232. The award covers also the construction of the line westerly from Mosholu Parkway toward the new subway yards on the old Jerome Park Reservoir site and easterly through 205th Street toward Webster Avenue.

The contract which comes up for approval as to form on July 12 calls for the construction of three additional sections of the Queens line, a total of three and one-half miles. Their completion will extend the Queens-Jamaica route along Broadway in Elmhurst from Pettit Place to Queens Boulevard at Union Turnpike.

On July 12 the Board of Transportation will receive bids for construction of part of the Brooklyn cross-town route along Schermerhorn Street and Lafayette Avenue from Bond Street to St. Felix Street. This will be the only six-track section of the city's new subway system. It will link the Fulton Street route in Brooklyn with the Smith Street line.

LONDON, June 26 (AP).—Queen Mary had the unusual experience of being given a "lift" home by a passing motorist when the royal automobile broke down this afternoon in the shopping district near Oxford Street.

Her Majesty was on her way to Buckingham Palace from an early afternoon's shopping when it was found that the starter of her car was jammed and could not readily be fixed.

C. A. Harrison noticed the Queen's plight and immediately offered her the use of his car.

"Her Majesty had been recognized and a crowd was beginning to collect," said Mr. Harrison. "My car was very dusty and I apologized for that, but the Queen said it was all right and stepped into the car with her lady-in-waiting.

"We had no chauffeur in livery, but the Queen made light of that, too, and I took the wheel myself and drove her Majesty back to the Palace."

"A LEADER AMONG DAILIES"

The New York Times is today a leader among dailies—a leader in point of public service—and a leader in influence. It has justified its own dictum, which best expresses the goal of the modern newspaper, in that it truly gives "All the News That's Fit to Print."

NO MILK FUND BOUTS ON THE AIR TONIGHT

STADIUM BROADCASTS CUT

WOR Says It Can Send Out Only One Symphony Concert a Week Because of New Contract.

No broadcaster was to be found yesterday prepared to put the Milk Fund bouts on the air tonight at the Yankee Stadium, although some fight fans expected that almost at the last minute arrangements would be made to send out a microphone description of the event.

"We were offered the fights for $25,000," said a representative of the Columbia Broadcasting System. "We could find no client willing to sponsor the affair on the air, so it will not be broadcast by the Columbia network."

The National Broadcasting Company said that neither of their networks would handle the bouts.

"We will not allow the bouts to be broadcast, because not to do so is better for the gate receipts," said William F. Carey, who heads the Madison Square Garden management. "Several broadcasting concerns wanted to get the event, but we declined. We have no intention of allowing the bouts to be put on the air, regardless of reports to the contrary."

Mr. Carey added that the Laughran-Braddock benefit bout planned for July 18 would not be broadcast, and for the same reason, but that boxing events further in the future "must take care of themselves," so far as the radio is concerned.

The Philharmonic-Symphony concerts at the Lewisohn Stadium face practically the same radio difficulties this Summer as the Goldman Band, being curtailed on the air because of commercial programs. The Stadium concerts were scheduled for two broadcasts a week over WOR beginning July 5, one on Sunday night and the other on Thursday, but only the Sunday concert will be broadcast, since the Marmon Motor Car Company has arranged to sponsor a program over WOR and its associated stations, WLW, Cincinnati, and WBBM, Chicago, beginning July 4, thus crowding out the Thursday Philharmonic concert.

"We regret that we can broadcast only one Philharmonic-Symphony concert a week," said a representative of WOR yesterday. "If some favorable development comes later we will do our best to broadcast another stadium concert."

The quarter final of the National Open Golf Tournament at the Wingfoot course at Mamaroneck is scheduled to be described tonight at 7:30 o'clock over the WABC network. The story of the day's playing, as well as that of the semi-final, which is to be broadcast at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow night by the same station, will be told by Joe Williams from a microphone installed in the locker room of the Wingfoot Clubhouse.

WARD IMPOUNDS FUNDS OF STOCK OPERATORS

Attorney General Adopts New Weapon in Alleged Fraudulent Sale of Securities.

Instituting a new procedure to protect purchasers of securities in transactions where fraud is suspected, Attorney General Ward impounded yesterday bank deposits of more than $85,000 under the names of Warren C. Carter, operator in stocks, and various companies which he is alleged to control.

Mr. Carter, who lives at 420 Riverside Drive, was served on Tuesday with the complaint in an action brought by the Attorney General against Mr. Carter, The Market Reflector, Inc.; Charles Minton, its editor, and William A. Alber & Co. They are the object of an injunction proceeding to restrain them from continuing alleged fraudulent practices and misrepresentations in stock sales.

In addition to impounding the bank deposits of the defendants the Attorney General yesterday added to their list the Massapequa Resale Company, said to be another Carter corporation, used as a reservoir, according to Mr. Ward, for the funds obtained in the sale of stock. Supreme Court Justice Faber in Brooklyn signed an order restraining it, like the other Carter concerns, from fraudulent practice.

PRESERVE PERRY HOME.

Rhode Island Will Commemorate the Exploits of Two Commodores.

WAKEFIELD, R. I., June 26.—Commemorating the exploits and lives of Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry, the "Hero of Lake Erie," and Commodore Matthew Calbraith Perry, who opened Japan to American commerce, the farm house near here in which the former was born and the latter spent much of his boyhood will be opened as a museum, June 29. Three hundred special invitations have been issued to notables in the navy and in private life.

The house is now the property of Mrs. Perry Tiffany, widow of Commodore Matthew Perry's grandson. It has been restored in the same style and with many of the identical materials of the first home, built on the site more than 200 years ago by Benjamin Perry, the great-grandfather of the commodores. Restoration has been in charge of Colonel Carl F. Hartman, retired.

Driver Crashes Into Lamp-Pole to Avoid Hitting Auto—One Severely Hurt.

Seven persons were injured, one severely, when a northbound Fifth Avenue bus crashed into a lamp-post yesterday afternoon at Fifth Avenue and Sixty-fifth Street. The crash occurred when the bus swerved to avoid hitting an automobile.

Mrs. Nettie Hartley, 60 years old, of 170 West Eighty-first Street, was taken to Reception Hospital. She may have internal injuries. The six others injured were treated at the scene and permitted to go home. They were:

SYLVIA SIEGEL, 29, of 1,534 Popham Avenue, the Bronx.

Timothy Curry of 324 East Ninetieth Street was the driver of the bus, and Peter Snyder of 2,724 University Avenue, the Bronx, operated the machine in front. An automobile cut across in front of Snyder causing him to swerve to the right to avoid a collision. Curry swerved to avoid hitting Snyder's machine. The bus crashed into a lamp-post on the east side of the street, snapping it from its base.

5 HURT IN TROLLEY CRASH.

Twenty-two Passengers Escape Injury in Brooklyn Collision.

Five persons were injured last night in a head-on collision between two trolley cars on Utica Avenue at Avenue L, Brooklyn. All are in Unity Hospital, Brooklyn.

The injured are Constantine Andryusky, 44 years old, of 464 Berriman Street, motorman of the northbound car; Michael Carabella of 590 Ashford Street, motorman of the southbound car, and Miss Madeline Rispoli of 1,640 East Forty-ninth Street, Joseph Caruso of 1,100 Blake Avenue and Leonard Brattling of 1,576 East Thirty-seventh Street, passengers. Twenty other passengers escaped injury.

Andryusky received severe injuries on the head and Carabella was hurt internally. Caruso's right arm was fractured. Brattling's jaw was broken and Miss Rispoli's left leg was hurt.

ITALY LOSES SUIT FOR ESTATES HERE

PUTS LAW ABOVE TREATY

Place of Domicile Is Deciding Point in Determining Rights to Property, Surrogate Says.

An attempt by the Fascist Government to gain possession of certain estates of Italian residents of the United States failed yesterday when Surrogate Foley dismissed the claim of the Italian Consul General to the $900 estate of Antonio Cominclo, a laborer who died here in 1926, and granted control of the property to James F. Egan, Public Administrator of New York County.

Under United States law, the estates of aliens who die intestate and without known heirs, become the property of the State in which they resided. The Italian Consul General contended that under the Italian civil code the King of Italy is held to be the sole heir of such decedents. The claim was unprecedented and if it had been upheld, New York State would have been deprived of an annual income of about $100,000 from Italian residents of this city who die in similar circumstances.

The Mussolini Government tried to strengthen its claim by citing the Most Favored Nations Clause in a treaty between the United States and Italy and another clause in the treaty between the United States and Persia. The court overruled both contentions and upheld the assertion of N. Joseph Slicklen, counsel for Mr. Egan, who argued that the Public Administrator was entitled to the estate because Cominclo had resided here for thirty-eight years prior to his death.

"It is an elementary rule of the laws of estates," Judge Foley decided, "that the succession of personal property left by a decedent is governed exclusively by the law of the actual domicile of the intestate at the time of his death.

"Citizenship and nationality on the one hand, and domicile on the other, involve different principles, but succession to personalty is based on the finding of domicile only. It is beyond comprehension that the treaty between the United States and Persia ever contemplated any abrogation of this basic rule of law. An examination of the provisions of the Persian Treaty and the treaty with Italy compels the interpretation that the consular rights were strictly limited to the receipt of the property of nationals of Italy dying here but domiciled in that country.

"In this proceeding the rights granted by the treaty must be held to be subordinate to the statutes of our own State. Cases may and do arise where nationals of the Kingdom of Italy, temporarily residing here, but domiciled in that country, may leave personal property which passes under its laws. But in each case the question of domicile, when disputed, must first be determined. I hold, therefore, that the intestate law of Italy has no application to the present estate."

DENY SCHOOL CLASH.

Christian Scientists Explain Unvaccinated Child Will Be Tutored.

The committee on publication of the Christian Science Church of 342 Madison Avenue announced yesterday that there was no conflict between the Lynbrook, L. I., education board and the parents of a child who was not allowed to attend school because she had not been vaccinated.

"The child is being tutored at home and the education law of the State is being complied with in full," it was said. The child is the 8-year-old daughter of an attorney and a Christian Science reader, who objected to the vaccination requirement.

"Christian Scientists are obedient to the law," the church's announcement said. "The parents in question did not refuse to have the child vaccinated because they are Christian Scientists, and there is a perfect understanding and cooperation between the parents of the child and the authorities of the Board of Education on all points in this instance."

Superintendent of Schools C. D. Vosburgh had been advised to prosecute the parents unless the law was complied with. This was unnecessary, however, as the parents arranged at once, it was said, to provide private instruction for their child.

BRINGS GIANT APE FROM EAST INDIES

BEAST HAS HUGE APPETITE

Aswas, a gigantic member of the ape species from Sumatra, in the Dutch East Indies, and known by the natives as the "wild man" of the jungle, arrived yesterday on the Leviathan of the United States Lines accompanied by his owner, Moe Aarons, a New Yorker, who said he obtained the simian during a year's expedition in the interior of the island where Winter is unknown.

Mr. Aarons said that Aswas was a cross between the gorilla and the orang-utan and had the chef characteristics of both. He stands 5 feet 10 inches on his hind feet, measures 12 feet across from tip to tip with arms outstretched and weighs 390 pounds. The hand or forepaw is 12 inches long and the head is surrounded by heavy rolls of bristles.

Aswas is said to have tremendous strength and the hardiest members of the Leviathan's crew kept clear of the little red wooden wagon where he was confined on the main deck near their quarters.

Mr. Aarons invited Captain Harold I. Cunningham, master of the ship, and Captain C. A. McAllister, a first cabin passenger, down to see the strange-looking beast on Monday and told them how docile and affectionate he was.

"Aswas is crazy about me," he continued. "You will see how he loves me when I give him his food. I want you both to meet him and shake his hand."

The owner spoke to his big pet and then stooped down to get some bananas from a case of fruit. As he did so Aswas thrust out one of his long arms, grabbed his master by the left leg and bit it in the calf.

Captain McAllister said while he could see that Aswas loved his master he did not care to meet the fierce-looking denizen of the jungle, as the animal might "regard it as an intrusion." Captain Cunningham also declined to shake hands with the combination gorilla and orang-utan, which was then walking up and down in the wagon, grasping a young bamboo tree in his powerful right hand.

Aswas eats seventy-two bananas for breakfast and fifteen apples and twenty-two oranges for supper, his owner said.

Mr. Aarons, a native of New York, was accompanied by his wife, Marie, a Rumanian. She had to go to Ellis Island to appear before a special board of inquiry. Her husband accompanied her after locking his pet up securely to await his return.

CAPONE ASKS RETRIAL; ASSAILS COURT ACTION

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—Alphonse (Scarface Al) Capone, Chicago gang leader, opened a fight in the courts today to obtain his release from the Holmesburg prison, where he is serving a sentence of a year for carrying a concealed deadly weapon, imposed after he had pleaded guilty to the charge on May 17.

A plea to review the case was filed by Representative Golder, counsel for Capone, and a hearing will be held Saturday.

The action taken by Mr. Golder is said to establish a precedent in Pennsylvania in misdemeanor cases. It provides for a review of the case based on errors of trial, and if the court deems advisable a new trial by a jury may be ordered.

Capone in an affidavit that accompanied the petition declared that he was "compelled to submit to a trial before a judge who had predetermined his guilt and had stated he would help convict the defendant."

The gang leader was indicted by the grand jury and placed on trial before Judge John E. Walsh in the criminal division of Municipal Court less than twenty-four hours after his arrest with Frank Cline, his bodyguard. Cline is also serving a year's sentence. No action was taken by Capone's counsel in his case.

The eight assignments of error stated are denial of permission to subpoena witnesses for his defense; trial before a prejudiced jury; insufficient time to prepare his defense; trial before a judge who had predetermined his guilt; trial in a court room crowded with people prejudiced against him; compulsion to enter a plea of guilty by "the hostile and theatrical display of numerous and unnecessary police officers"; assurance that the trial judge intended to give him the limit of the law and denial of the right to properly present his case to the court and his counsel.

FOUR CONVICTED IN KILLING.

Found Guilty in Death of Girl in Jersey City Election Fight.

Four men of Jersey City were found guilty early this morning in the death of Catherine McGee, 8 years old, of 385 Grove Street, Jersey City, by a jury in the Court of Over and Terminer in that city. The killing of which they were accused took place on election night, Nov. 6, 1928, in a street fight between rival political factions. In the trial, which began Monday, testimony was brought out to show that one of them threw the baseball bat which struck the girl and fractured her skull.

Two of those on trial were found guilty of second degree murder. These were Frank Donato, 25 years old, of 59 Terhune Avenue, and Vincent O'Keefe, 21, of 174 Academy Street. The others, George Ormsby, 27, of 741 Jersey Avenue, and Frank McNally, 32, of 26 Jones Street, were convicted of manslaughter.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Call money on the Stock Exchange again brought a uniform 10 per cent rate yesterday, but the stock market appeared to be uninfluenced by it. There was evidence, however, of greater disposition to realize on advances, and in some of the stocks whose early rise was largest there were substantial late reactions. As is apt to happen under such circumstances, the amount of business done increased rather heavily; transactions went above the 4,000,000-share mark for the first time in June.

The New York rate for sterling did not change, but the Bank of England lost $7,300,000 more gold on German account, making $16,400,000 thus taken from the Bank's reserve this week, in addition to $3,400,000 bought by Berlin on the open market. The Bank has lost in the last fortnight very nearly one-third of the gold accumulated by it in the fourteen weeks after the February outflow had been checked by the higher bank rate. Continuance of the German requisitions, together with the probable withdrawals for New York, might conceivably bring the London gold reserve to the lowest figure since the resumption of gold payments in 1925. There does not appear to be any serious talk at London of a higher bank rate. The difficulty all this season has been that, notwithstanding the 1 per cent advance of last February, the New York and Berlin markets continued to bid far higher for money than London. It would not be practicable for the Bank of England itself to match those bids, and if it did so it could not carry the open London market with it.

Railway reports on gross and net earnings for May were again a noteworthy part of the day's financial news, particularly in regard to the large reduction of operating costs. Something like thirty companies reporting to date show last month's net results to have increased 16 per cent over 1928 while gross earnings increased only 4¼. The contrast was even greater in the complete reports for April, February and January, in which months gross revenue ran only 4 to 8 per cent over the preceding year while net results increased 21 to 36 per cent. Sometimes so great a disparity means that comparison is made with months in which operating costs were abnormally high and net proceeds correspondingly low. But the early months of 1928 were not of that character; on the contrary, their operating ratio was uniformly lower than in either of the two preceding years. The only reasonable inference is that the economies in operation, which were thought in 1927 to have approached their limit, have been extended on an unexpectedly large scale in the transportation industry of 1929.

None of the midweek reports indicated any noteworthy change in the industrial situation. Loadings of railway freight, as reported for the second week of June, again ran beyond all precedent for the period; it is now more than two months in which the car-loadings have exceeded the figures both of 1927 and 1926. In the steel trade, output of the mills is still reported as pressing close on rated capacity. The Iron Age reports slackening in orders for farm equipment, and ascribes it partly to the uncertain agricultural situation. But the really remarkable fact is that this branch of manufacture should have continued highly active during so long a period of falling grain prices, and the present decrease in that direction is reported to be offset by evidence of increase in requirements for railway and construction enterprises.

WILLYS SAYS TRADE IS IMPROVING ABROAD

John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland Company, returned yesterday from London on the Leviathan accompanied by Sir William Letts, managing director of Willys-Overland Crossley, Ltd. Both were optimistic about business in England and the outlook for the automobile industry.

Mr. Willys said that the 1929 automotive exports from the United States were shattering all records and expressed the opinion that more than $700,000,000 worth of American automotive products would be shipped abroad during the present year, as compared with about $500,000,000 worth in 1928.

"Wherever one goes in Europe it is evident that the products of the American motor industry are in high repute," said Mr. Willys. "Furthermore, general business conditions are improving so rapidly in many sections that the people have money to buy cars and trucks far more than previously. In view of the fact that the automotive export trade has shown a steady increase each year for five years, I think that by 1931, and possibly in 1930, the motor industry will be shipping a billion dollars worth annually of American products to foreign countries."

"As for the Willys-Overland Company's position in the industry, I am thoroughly satisfied with present conditions and future outlook. Sales will approximate 200,000 cars for the half year."

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

A considerable number of stocks that had the benefit of strong market sponsorship moved forward yesterday, giving the whole Stock Exchange list an appearance of strength. As a matter of fact, however, the market's movement was irregular. There were notable advances in certain parts of the list, particularly among the utilities and industrial specialties. Leading issues showed net gains of from 2 to 10 points, but these advances were partly offset by weakness in other parts of the market. The buying movement was confined largely to "trading favorites" such as General Electric, Hudson Motors, Pirelli Company, Wright Aero, Curtiss Aero, United States Steel, Commercial Solvents, Public Service of New Jersey, United States Smelting, Timken Roller Bearing and Vanadium. The call-money rate held at 10 per cent all day, but funds were more plentiful than on the day before.

4,000,000-Share Market Again.

Transactions on the Stock Exchange exceeded 4,000,000 shares yesterday for the first time since May 27 and for only the twelfth time since March. Brokers were made happy by the expansion in trading interest, and professionals declared themselves to be impressed by the "character of the buying" and by the fact that the stocks which advanced were in most instances high-grade railway utility and industrial issues.

The turnover in the listed bond market yesterday amounted to $14,458,000, which was not only the greatest this year but the largest since June 12, 1928, when the aggregate was $16,523,000. The business was not at all evenly distributed, however. American Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4½s accounted for more than $4,500,000 of this amount, with Atchison convertible 4½s and other convertible issues figuring prominently in the day's dealings on the Stock Exchange. Public Service of New Jersey convertible 4½s rose 12½ points to a new high record at 238. International Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4½s reached a new top at 142, up 3¾ points.

Investment Trusts Listed.

Additions to the Stock Exchange list announced by the governing committee yesterday included securities of two investment trusts, a class of securities which only recently were made eligible for trading privileges on that exchange. The two trusts, Sterling Securities Corporation and General Public Service Corporation, happen to be the first to obtain listing since the Exchange recently announced that such securities would be admitted provided rigid requirements were complied with. The listings in question are a novelty in one sense—that the applications reveal the trusts' security investments. Many other trusts have shown interest in the listing privileges, but some of them have hesitated, it is understood, to make public such information.

No Change in Money Rates.

Conditions in the money market yesterday remained in statu quo, and the more hopeful spirits in the banking world predicted that the rate of 10 per cent for call money, which has been maintained since Monday afternoon, would be the maximum attained over the July settlements. While funds coming into the market were insufficient to bring easier terms, the withdrawals were far lighter than those on preceding days. As yet, however, the full force of the midyear strain has not appeared. It should normally begin today and tomorrow, as the banks call in funds to furbish up their statements in response to the call of the Controller of the Currency as of the last business day of June.

The International Settlements Bank.

While reluctant to express opinions contrary to the stand taken by the State Department, a number of prominent bankers yesterday admitted their disappointment at Secretary Stimson's announcement that there would be no official American participation in the International Bank of Settlements. It will be impossible, in the opinion of these bankers, for the Federal Reserve Bank to avoid entering into relations with the International Bank, and to make these relations informal will be to place this country at some disadvantage, it was said.

Norfolk & Western Convertible 6s.

A single transaction of five bonds of Norfolk & Western convertible 6s, due Sept. 1, 1929, the first since March 20, set a new record in this issue and one for the current market as a whole, with a net gain of 42 points. As a matter of fact, the issue is closely held, with less than $720,000 outstanding. The bonds are convertible into common stock at any time, being originally offered to the holders of the road's common and adjustment preferred stock of record of Dec. 18, 1918, at par to the extent of 12½ per cent of their holdings. This rise matches the rise in the stock, which touched a low of 191 when the bonds were selling at 192, so that with the stock now selling at 236 the present price of 234 for the bonds is approximately in line.

Concerning Security Advertisements.

The investing public has long become accustomed to reading the legend, "The information contained herein, although not guaranteed, is obtained from sources we believe to be reliable," appended to advertisements of new stock and bond issues. It has been left, however, to a real estate bond house to change this procedure by announcing that "The truth and accuracy of the statements contained in this advertisement are guaranteed."

SECURITIES AT AUCTION.

Fifty-three and one-third shares, Schenker Figures, Inc., common; $5 lot.

Five thousand shares, American Shale Reduction Company; five shares, Hartmann Coal Mining Corporation; sixty shares, Parkway Coal Corporation; ninety-eight shares, Stuyvesant Coal Company, Inc.; $41 lot.

MONEY.

Wednesday, June 26, 1929.

Although the call-money rate remained at 10 per cent throughout the day, withdrawals from the market yesterday were lighter than those seen on Monday and Tuesday and there was no difficulty in supplying the demand at the previous day's figure. Time money continued to display an easy tone with very little activity reported.

EXCHANGE TRADING BIGGEST THIS MONTH

MANY ISSUES RISE SHARPLY

With public interest in the market revived, many active issues on the New York Stock Exchange rose sharply yesterday in the heaviest trading witnessed in a month. Sales aggregated 4,029,740 shares, representing the largest turnover since May 27. It was the first time that business on the Exchange had crossed the 4,000,000-share mark this month. All of the averages of The New York Times were lifted to the highest levels of the year. The combined averages, embracing fifty representative stocks, touched a high of $263.08 and closed at $260.12 with a net gain of $1.49. The industrials, covering twenty-five stocks, advanced to a high of $387.67, closing at $382.53 with a net gain of $2.20. The rails, also covering twenty-five stocks, went to a high of $138.50 and at the close stood at $137.72, up 79 cents on the day.

The most striking gains were recorded in Wright Aero, which made a net advance of 7½; General Electric, which was up 4¼; Atchison, up 3⅝; International Telephone and Telegraph, up 3½; Commercial Solvents, up 6⅜; Motor Products, up 8¾; North American, up 4; Worthington Pump, up 5½; Pirelli Company, up 2⅝, and Timken Roller Bearing, up 5½.

RAILROAD EARNINGS.

Financial Statements Issued for May and the First Five Months of the Year.

The first twenty-five railroads to report earnings for May had net railway operating income aggregating $35,550,000, compared with $29,826,000 in the same month a year ago, an increase of 19.1 per cent. Their net in April was $30,234,000. In May the gross revenue of these carriers was $175,452,000, against $167,779,000 in the same month of 1928, a gain of 4.5 per cent. In April their revenue was $164,728,000.

Net income of the Southern Railway Company for the five months ended May 31 is estimated at $6,787,000 after taxes and charges, equivalent after allowing for 5 per cent preferred dividends, to $4.22 a share earned on 1,300,000 shares of common stock. This compares with $6,266,400 or $3.86 a share on the common in the first five months of 1928. Net income in May is estimated at $1,391,000 after taxes and charges, compared with $1,288,000 in May, 1928.

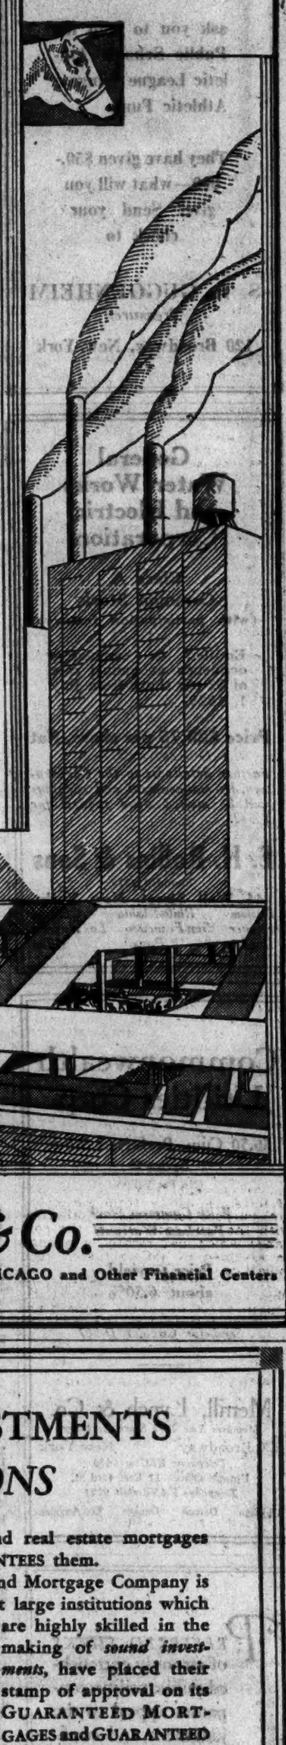
SOUND CORPORATE FINANCING



FOOD FOR A GREAT NATION

Seventeen billion pounds of meat were produced last year. Present per capita consumption calls for an annual increase of two hundred million pounds. Here is a business of gigantic proportions.

In the heart of the Corn Belt, where two-thirds of the hogs and one-fourth of the beef cattle of the country are raised, John Morrell & Co., Inc., has its packing headquarters. The business is more than a hundred years old. It has been very successful because of the strategic location of its plants, the unusually high quality of its products and the efficiency of its methods of distribution.

Earnings in the year ended March 31, 1929, were equivalent to $9.06 per share of the Company's Common Stock. The dividend is $3.60 per share per annum and there are no other capital requirements because there are no bonds and no preferred stock outstanding.

We recommend John Morrell & Co., Inc., common stock for investment at present prices because of the Company's successful record and promising future.

DEPENDABLE INVESTMENTS for INSTITUTIONS

Some investors—even the most conservative—may, at times, "take a chance." But Institutions cannot. Investments they make must be safe, sound and wholly dependable at all times. For the reason that they are in actuality trustees of funds which must be invested safely.

Institutions such as Life Insurance Companies, Educational and Religious Organizations, and the like, know more about dependable investments than anyone else. For the reason that they have been in existence longer, have larger funds to invest, and consequently have had wider and greater experience.

Their experience has taught them that, for absolute safety and dependability, nothing can excel sound real estate mortgages. Especially so when these mortgages are sponsored by an amply financed institution that specializes in sound real estate mortgages and GUARANTEES them.

Life Insurance Companies
Fire Insurance Companies
Savings Banks
Trust Companies
Educational, Religious and Fraternal Organizations

State Title and Mortgage Company is gratified that large institutions which are highly skilled in the making of sound investments, have placed their stamp of approval on its GUARANTEED MORTGAGES and GUARANTEED CERTIFICATES by buying, and continuing to buy, them in substantial amounts.

These Institutions are of all types and classes, notably Life Insurance Companies, Savings Banks, Educational, Religious and Fraternal Organizations, Trustees and others.

THREE LINES RESIST WABASH PROPOSALS

WABASH OWNERSHIP CITED

Van Sweringen and Taplin Roads Join In Condemning Proposed Eastern Grouping.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—In a brief filed today with the Interstate Commerce Commission the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad called upon the Wabash line to reveal what part, if any, the Pennsylvania is playing in the Wabash's attempt to break into Eastern territory with a new fifth trunk system.

This demand was embodied in the Baltimore & Ohio's protest, filed with the commission, against the Wabash brief urging that the commission combine all major consolidation cases now pending before it and permit the Wabash to file its own plan for a new Eastern trunk line grouping.

At the same time like protests were submitted by the Van Sweringen-owned Nickel Plate road and the Taplin-owned Pittsburgh & West Virginia road, which, like the Baltimore & Ohio, have separate consolidation cases pending before the commission.

The three protestants join in the declaration that the net result of granting the Wabash's request for combining all consolidation cases would be to delay further the distribution of the territory east of the Mississippi and cause increased confusion in the already confused situation.

Asks for Full Details.

The Baltimore & Ohio insinuated that the Pennsylvania might be behind the Wabash's movements and said the commission ought to learn the full details of whatever relationship there may be before granting the Wabash request.

The Pennsylvania, it was recalled today, was held responsible for the collapse of negotiations among the members of the so-called four-party plan—involving the Pennsylvania, the New York Central, the Baltimore & Ohio and the various lines comprised in the Van Sweringen group—to distribute peaceably the Eastern territory.

"It is a matter of public knowledge," the Baltimore & Ohio protest said, "that nearly 50 per cent or more of the capital stock of the Wabash is owned or controlled by the Pennsylvania Railroad or interests closely allied with it. It is said on page four of the Wabash petition, in connection with the statement that the Wabash is developing this competitive plan, and apparently with reference to the fact that so large a portion of its capital sock is owned or controlled as aforementioned:

"'It takes this course without any embarrassment from the personnel of its stock list or from any collateral purpose (consistent or otherwise with the true interests of the company) which may rightly or wrongly be assumed to have actuated accumulations of its stock.'

"It is submitted," the Baltimore & Ohio continued, "that the complete situation as between the Wabash and the Pennsylvania with particular reference to the proposed plan should be more clearly, fully and frankly stated."

Attitude of Directors Sought.

The Baltimore & Ohio asked what Wabash directors voted in favor of the Wabash submitting a fifty system plan, what directors favored the petition for consolidation of all hearings and what stockholders approved it.

"It appears," said the protest, "the Wabash proposes to suggest not a plan for a system desirable from the standpoint of its own interests or those of its security holders or the public which it serves, but proposes to develop a plan for 'one or more additional independent systems.'"

All three of the protesting railroads declared the Wabash request should not even be considered until the Wabash submits to the commission the fifth system plan which it has been talking about submitting for several weeks. The Wabash said the plan is being formulated and will be filed in short order.

The Baltimore & Ohio protest further argued that if the Wabash wanted to offer a "general solution" it should be forced to wait until the commission completes the final plan for consolidation of carriers which it has been working upon for years.

"The purpose of the Wabash petition," the protest contended, "is, and if granted, in effect, to circumvent the action of the commission in denying leave to the Wabash to intervene in the finance docket 7450 and submit its plan for consolidation therein." Finance docket 7450 is the Baltimore & Ohio's consolidation application.

Request Called Irregular.

W. A. Colston, vice president and general manager of the Nickel Plate, protested that the Wabash's request was "dilatory and irregular; seeking, contrary to the commission's rules of practice, to unduly broaden the issues upon intervention," and was contrary to the requirement of Congress that the commission shall conduct its hearings with dispatch.

The Pittsburgh & West Virginia protest said that if the hearings were to be combined, the Pittsburgh's application for control of the Wheeling & Lake Erie and the Western Maryland for a Great Lakes-to-tidewater route would not receive a fair hearing.

Specifically the cases which the Wabash seeks to combine are:

Application by the B. & O. for authority to acquire sole or partial control of the Reading and fourteen other carriers, including the Wabash.

Application by the Chesapeake & Ohio, acting for the Van Sweringens for authority to acquire sole or partial control of a number of lines of major importance, including the Erie, Nickel Plate, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and the Wheeling & Lake Erie.

Application by the Pittsburgh & West Virginia for authority to acquire control of the Wheeling & Lake Erie and the Western Maryland.

The Seaboard Air Line Railway Company's principal problem at the moment is not to have earnings sufficient to meet fixed charges, but the necessity of providing funds for the large debt maturities of the near future, particularly those of 1930 and 1931, according to Robert L. Nutt, chairman, in a letter sent yesterday to holders of the road's common and preferred stocks and 5 per cent adjustment bonds.

Saying there is danger that the encouraging increase in operating revenues being reported by the company might affect some holders of the company's adjustment bonds, Mr. Nutt adds that it may lead them to believe a continuation of this increase so assures the road's prosperity as to remove the need of carrying through the program proposed under the reorganization plan. A careful consideration of the pertinent facts, he argues, will show this to be a mistaken attitude.

Urging adjustment bondholders to help the plan by depositing their securities promptly, Mr. Nutt says there can be no question that the desirable method of solving the problem of early debt maturities is to eliminate the adjustment bonds by exchanging them for other securities, to provide not less than $7,500,000 from the sale of common stock and to arrange for the extension of substantial debt maturities, all of which are provided under the plan.

"The company," he adds, "has been able to arrange the extension of maturity of $13,229,208 principal debt now falling due from 1931 to 1935 inclusive, only conditional upon consummation of the plan."

DROP BY NORTHERN PACIFIC

Donnelly Says June Earnings Will Be Smaller Than Year Ago.

June gross revenues and net operating income of the Northern Pacific Railway will be somewhat smaller than last year, due to heavy washouts in the early part of the month which interfered with traffic movement and increased expenses, according to Charles Donnelly, president.

"The outlook for our earnings in the third quarter will be fully as good as last year," he said, "and the only unfavorable factor is the low wheat prices, which, if maintained, will affect the purchasing in our territory this Fall.

"Conditions of crops in our territory is good. The wheat acreage is probably somewhat less than last year. As far as can be foretold at this time, crop conditions in our territory this year should compare well with 1928. As we have had heavy rains this month, moisture conditions are good."

SOUTHERN PACIFIC DEFENDS RATE PLEA

REDUCTION KEENLY FOUGHT

Marine Interests at I. C. C. Hearing Say Railroad Wants to Attract All Their Business.

The question of how much business the proposed reduction of freight rates on the Southern Pacific's Sunset-Gulf rail-water route to the Pacific Coast would take from the all-water route via the Panama Canal was discussed yesterday at the hearing in the Hotel St. George in Brooklyn on the Southern Pacific Company's application to the Interstate Commerce Commission for the reduction. Representatives of the railroad told William A. Disque, attorney-examiner for the commission, that they had no expectation of getting as much as 50 per cent of the traffic away from the ship companies, but opponents of the reduction said the foundation laid for the railroad's case at the hearing was "to take it all."

The avowed purpose of the railroad in seeking the reduction is to recover a share of the intercoastal freight traffic which it claims it had before the opening of the Panama Canal. To do this, the railroad would reduce its rail-water rates to a point 10 per cent higher on the average than the all-water rates.

Shippers Non-Committal.

The question of the amount of business which the new rates would draw from the all-water route came up in the testimony of S. C. Childs, general agent of the Southern Pacific. He testified that shippers, when questioned, would not say how much of their business would be drawn away from the canal steamship lines by the new rates. Shippers told him, he said, that the time advantage of the rail-water route was not enough to draw their business if the rail-water rates were higher than the all-water routes, and a shipper would say how much business the proposed rates would draw.

On cross-examination, Frank Lyon, attorney for the canal shipping companies, asked Mr. Childs if the latter's testimony did not show that shippers felt the proposed rate would not be favorable enough to draw a substantial amount of the canal traffic. A "substantial amount" he described as 50 per cent.

Expects Less Than 50 Per Cent.

"I have no expectation of getting 50 per cent of the business you have," Mr. Childs said in reply. "I would be happy with less. The rates would draw some business, but I could not say what per cent."

Later on Mr. Lyon declared that "the foundation you have laid here would be to take it all."

Discussion of the time advantage of the rail-water route also came up in Mr. Childs's testimony and cross-examination, and in the cross-examination of H. C. Hallmark, assistant freight traffic manager of the Southern Pacific. Figures on the sailing schedules and sailing time of various steamship companies and on the transit time of the rail-water route were put in the record.

Mr. Hallmark was also cross-examined by H. W. Prickett, counsel for the Intermediate Rate Association; Charles E. Blaine, traffic counsel representing Arizona organizations, and Amos A. Betts of the Arizona State Corporation Commission. The questions of these men concerned principally the rates to intermediate points in the Western States over the rail-water route, and the basis for comparing these with rates to intermediate points on other routes. Many of the questions were objected to by J. A. Bell, counsel for the Southern Pacific, on the ground they were irrelevant to the case.

Vetoes Anti-Machine Gun Bill.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 26 (AP).—A bill to forbid the sale, possession or use of machine guns was vetoed today by Governor Emmerson. The measure had the support of the Police Department. The Governor pointed out that gangsters would own the machine guns, while police officers, obeying the law, would be forbidden them, and that, consequently, police officers without machine guns might be forced to fight gangsters who employed the weapons.

Lafayette Safe Deposit Elects.

The Lafayette Safe Deposit Company has completed its organization by the election of officers. Jeremiah J. Dalton was elected president, John R. McDonald vice president and Harry M. Lewis secretary and treasurer. The vaults of the company, which will be operated in connection with the Lafayette National Bank, have been practically completed and it is expected that they will open within a few weeks.

His Excellency, Carlos G. Davila, Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the Republic of Chile to the United States, summarizes his letter of June 26, 1929, copies of which may be obtained from the undersigned, as follows:

"The Bonds are to be unconditionally guaranteed as to principal, interest and sinking fund, by endorsement, by the Republic of Chile, and are to be issued in accordance with the Law of the Republic of Chile, dated August 29, 1855, establishing the Caja, as amended by Decree Law No. 743, dated December 15, 1925, which was duly approved by the Commission appointed for that purpose by both Houses of Congress, and with Law No. 4074, dated July 27, 1926, as amended by Law No. 4327, dated March 26, 1928, and with the Decree of the President of the Republic of Chile, No. 2694, dated June 25, 1929.

The Bonds will be redeemable through a cumulative sinking fund beginning November 1, 1929, calculated to retire the entire issue by May 1, 1962, to be applied on each semi-annual interest date to the redemption of Bonds by lot at par. The Caja will have the right to increase the amount of any sinking fund instalment for the redemption of additional Bonds on any interest date and in any such case appropriate reductions may be made in subsequent sinking fund instalments.

The Caja de Crédito Hipotecario was created for the purpose of making available credit facilities on reasonable terms for the development and improvement of real property in Chile. The Board of Directors, the President of the Board, the Chief Counsel, the Cashier, the Controller and the Secretary are appointed by the President of the Republic.

During its entire existence of over seventy-three years, the Caja has operated successfully and has never failed to meet its obligations. The record of its loan collections is very satisfactory. The losses incurred by the Caja on property foreclosed under its mortgages have not exceeded $40,000 in the aggregate for the last 15 years.

The Caja has no capital stock and is not operated for profit. It has power to charge a commission to provide for its expenses and for a reserve fund, as additional security for its bonds and notes, but having accumulated a sufficient reserve, which now amounts to approximately $5,022,900 at gold parity of exchange, the Caja has discontinued charging such commission.

On December 31, 1928, the Caja had outstanding various issues of bonds aggregating $143,606,682 at gold parity of exchange and an issue of $10,000,000 of notes due December 31, 1931. The Caja is not permitted by law to have its bonds outstanding in an aggregate amount exceeding the aggregate amount of loans made by it. Such loans may be repaid by the borrowers in cash or in bonds or notes of the Caja at par. All loans are secured by first mortgages or pledges registered in the name of the Caja. They are made on a conservative basis and the risk is greatly diversified. On December 31, 1928, the Caja had made 11,839 mortgage loans against its outstanding bonds, being an average of less than $12,130 per loan, and these loans aggregated less than 25% of the aggregate appraised improved value of the properties mortgaged as security therefor. Against its notes the Caja had on that date made 2,356 loans, being an average of less than $4,250 per loan.

Of the present issue of Bonds $10,000,000, principal amount, are to provide for loans secured by agricultural products or farm machinery and implements, which loans may not exceed 50% of the appraised market value of such collateral, and $10,000,000, principal amount, are to provide for the redemption of bonds of the Caja which it deems advantageous to retire.

The bonds and notes of the Caja are legal investments for savings banks and trust funds in Chile. In 1911 and 1912, three issues of 5% Bonds of the Caja not endorsed with the guaranty of the Government, were made in Europe, at prices ranging from 96¼% to 99¼%. These issues are listed on the Stock Exchanges of Paris, Berlin and Zurich.

The present debt of the Republic of Chile, including the present and all other obligations guaranteed by it, aggregates about $460,600,000 at gold parity of exchange. The proceeds of the Government loans have been largely used for the construction or improvement of railways, harbors and other public works. The Government owns 3,390 miles of railroads, telegraph lines and other property, of an estimated value of approximately $650,000,000 at gold parity of exchange.

Chile is a mining and agricultural country. Its mineral products are largely raw materials for essential industries. Practically the only nitrate deposits in the world are located in Chile and their exploitation forms its major industry. The largest known copper deposits in the world are in Chile. They occur near the surface and are of exceptionally high quality, resulting in the lowest cost production of any large scale copper producing area in the world. These deposits are being extensively developed, mainly by American capital. Exports consist chiefly of nitrates, by-products of the nitrate industry, copper, iron ore, borax, wool and a limited amount of agricultural products.

The trade balance of Chile is favorable. Imports for 1928 totaled $142,303,000 at the present gold parity of exchange while exports totaled $239,181,000 resulting in a favorable trade balance for the year of over $96,800,000. Since 1915 imports have exceeded exports in only one year.

Chile is on a gold basis. Its currency is the Peso, equivalent to U. S. $0.12166. Currency notes are issued by the Central Bank of Chile which is similar to the Federal Reserve Banks of the United States. The gold and gold exchange held by the Banco Central de Chile on May 17, 1929, amounted to $64,224,000, providing a ratio of gold cover to notes outstanding and deposits of over 98%.

Application will be made in due course to list these bonds on the New York Stock Exchange."

THE UNDERSIGNED WILL RECEIVE SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR THE ABOVE BONDS, SUBJECT TO ALLOTMENT, AT 92% AND ACCRUED INTEREST TO DATE OF DELIVERY, TO YIELD ABOUT 6.60% TO MATURITY.

The undersigned reserve the right to close the subscription at any time without notice, to reject any application, to allot a smaller amount than applied for and to make allotments in their uncontrolled discretion.

The above bonds are offered if, when and as issued and received by the undersigned and subject to the approval of counsel. In the first instance, interim certificates of Guaranty Trust Company of New York will be delivered against payment in New York funds for bonds allotted, which interim certificates will be exchangeable for definitive bonds when prepared.

General Public Service did not disclose the cost price of its holdings. Its largest investments in any one company amounted to 4.47 per cent of the total assets based on market values, it was said.

Other investment trusts have taken steps to list their securities in the near future. The Stock Exchange has applied rigid rules to the listing of such securities, particularly in requiring that the investments of such trusts be detailed in the listing Applications. The listing of investment trusts represents a departure in the Stock Exchange policy. Thus far it has listed no securities of companies that were organized as investment trusts, although certain companies that were originally formed for other purposes and which listed their securities on the Stock Exchange have become investment trusts in the general sense of the term. These include the Adams Express Company and the American International Corporation.

PORTUGAL TO PAY DEBT.

Nation Will Wipe Out $2,500,000 Owed Abroad.

LISBON, June 26 (AP).—The Minister of Finance announced today that Portugal's floating debt abroad will be paid off by the end of this month. This consists principally of two advances obtained in London amounting to £500,000 ($2,500,000).

The government hopes that this indebtedness will be eliminated without impairing the credit balances in Portuguese banks abroad amounting to £400,000 (about $2,000,000).

After July 1, the Portuguese floating debt will not exceed £100,000, all owing in Portugal, which will be reimbursed in due time according to the Finance Ministry.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

LONDON, June 26.—The export of £1,540,592 in gold to Germany today, making a total withdrawal of £3,414,000 from the Bank of England within two days, had a disturbing effect on both the money and the stock markets. Exchange on Berlin at 20.34½ marks is 1¾ pfennigs below the gold export point and is under considerable pressure. This is mainly because the German Government has obtained dollar credit in the United States amounting to $50,000,000 and a considerable portion of it is being transferred to Germany via London. The settlement of insurance claims arising out of damage to the liner Europa also resulted in considerable sums being transferred to Germany, while the potash syndicate has just sold bonds for $15,000,000 in the London market. Meantime New York exchange, which closed at $4.83¼, remains near the gold export point from London and discount rates in Lombard Street now are within ⅛ of 1 per cent of the bank rate.

On the Stock Exchange the gilt-edge market was a centre of depression today. The 5 per cent war loan fell ⅛ to £100⅝ and the 3½ per cent conversion loan ⅛ to £75⅛.

In the industrial share market Argentine railway stocks were dull, Buenos Aires & Pacific falling 2 points to 104. Oil shares were quiet with Royal Dutch and Eagle issues firmer. In the American group International Nickel rose 1¼ to $54 and Columbia Graphophone ⅞ to £12½. His Master's Voice Graphophone closed at £16⅝. Vocalion fell to £1⅛. Lower prices prevailed for leading tobacco and margarine shares.

Owing to the further large amount being borrowed from the Bank of England money conditions were easy in Lombard Street. Overnight loans were obtainable at 3⅝ per cent and renewals at 4 per cent.

French Market Improves.

PARIS, June 26.—There was a slight improvement in conditions on the Bourse today. Despite considerable selling at the opening of business prices remained slightly higher than at yesterday's closing. It is believed that the heavy drop in prices in the last few days has begun to attract purchasers, especially those seeking to cover. Whatever the reason, purchasers were available today, although the amount of business was small. Improvement in the political situation seemed to be somewhat responsible for today's better tone, for it is now felt that whatever the difficulties the debt settlements will have to be ratified and that the Young plan eventually will be adopted. French rentes for the most part gained a point or two and the market closed satisfactorily.

Market in Berlin Advances.

BERLIN, June 26.—For the first time in several weeks the Boerse today was optimistic from the outset and the firm tendency lasted through tht greater part of the session. Trading was comparatively brisk. More confident reports of Germany's economic and financial prospects recently published by financial and industrial circles, further improvement of the situation in the Ruhr district, especially in the iron market; the international agreement between the producers of artificial nitrogen and the Chilean nitrate interests and the conclusion of a $3,000,000 loan to the Ruhr Chemical Corporation, which is regarded as the forerunner of an influx of American capital, had stimulating effects.

Interest in the market again was dominated by mining stocks, with Mannesmann and Otto Wolff shares leading. The greatest gainer of the day, however, was Mix & Genest stock, which advanced eleven points. Reichsbank shares and shipping company and brewery shares, including Schultheiss, were especially sought, and improved several points. The Boerse closed firm and brisk.

MERRICK NEW HEAD OF WESTINGHOUSE

Has Been Vice President and General Manager Since 1926 — Directed Canadian Subsidiary.

Directors of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company elected Frank A. Merrick president yesterday to succeed E. M. Herr, president since 1911. Mr. Herr, who was elected vice chairman, resigned as president to take an extended vacation. The announcement was made by A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board.

Mr. Merrick, who has been vice president and general manager of Westinghouse, is a native of New Jersey and received his technical education at Lehigh University. Soon after his graduation he was employed by the Steel Motor Company, a subsidiary of the Lorain Steel Company, where he made several electrical inventions and was manager and chief engineer.

When Steel Motor was acquired by Westinghouse, he became associated with the latter. He prepared plans for a plant in Canada, and when the Canadian Westinghouse Company, Ltd., was formed in 1909, he became its superintendent. He later became manager and ultimately vice president and general manager.

During the World War he organized the operations of the New England Westinghouse Company for the manufacture of rifles for the Russian Government. Later he organized and equipped the factory to fulfill American war contracts and completed an order for 60,000 Browning machine guns within eleven months after operations began.

After the war Mr. Merrick spent two years in London as special representative of the Westinghouse Electric International Company, later returning to the Canadian company. In January, 1925, he was appointed vice president and general manager of the parent company at Pittsburgh.

CHINA GETS BRANCH OF GENERAL MOTORS

Operations of the General Motors Corporation in China are to be concentrated in a new subsidiary known as General Motors China, Inc., which has just been organized under the laws of Delaware. The company will operate as a wholly-owned subsidiary of General Motors.

Formation of the new Chinese company marks an important expansion of the overseas interests of General Motors. Heretofore the company's business in China has been conducted through another subsidiary in the Far East, General Motors Japan, Ltd. From now on the Chinese business will be directed from the headquarters of the new subsidiary in Shanghai.

General Motors China, Inc., has a nominal capitalization of $200,000, all of which will be held by the parent company. The organization of the new subsidiary, it was explained at the General Motors offices here yesterday, does not foreshadow any immediate expansion of the company's manufacturing operations in the Far East. It does, however, indicate a recognition by General Motors of the growing importance of the Chinese field in the automobile industry.

Heretofore General Motors was represented by its Japanese subsidiary in Japan, Korea, China and Manchuria. The company has an assembly plant at Osaka. Other Far Eastern subsidiaries of General Motors include General Motors India, Ltd., with headquarters at Bombay, and N. V. General Motors Java, with headquarters at Batavia, Java. There are also foreign subsidiaries at London, Copenhagen, Stockholm, Warsaw, Antwerp, Berlin, Paris, Madrid, Alexandria, Buenos Aires, Sao Paulo, Brazil; Montevideo, Uruguay; Port Elizabeth, South Africa, and Melbourne, Brisbane, Sydney, Perth and Adelaide, Australia.

The General Motors investment overseas in plant, equipment, inventories and working capital is placed at $65,000,000. In 1928 the wholesale value of General Motors sales overseas was about $252,000,000, or 17.3 per cent of the total business of the corporation.

CORPORATION REPORTS.

American Car and Foundry.

The American Car and Foundry Company reports a net income of $2,715,174 for the year ended on April 30, compared with $3,754,555 for the preceding fiscal year. After deducting preferred dividends of $2,100,000, the balance is equivalent to $1.15 a share on the 600,000 shares of no par common outstanding. This compares with $2.76 a share earned last year. The regular dividend of $6 a share was paid from the reserve set aside for this purpose.

W. H. Woodin, president of the company, in his report to stockholders, explains that although equipment buying by railroads was very light during 1928 the company enters its new fiscal year with equipment orders on its books considerably in excess of the amount a year ago.

"It would seem that the recent decision of the Supreme Court in the O'Fallon case should have a favorable effect upon the general railroad situation," said Mr. Woodin. "One of its results, therefore, should be a stimulation of the interest of the railroads in the acquiring of new equipment.

"Fortunately, the company's earning capacity is not entirely dependent upon its manufacture and sale of railroad equipment. Unceasing care has been given, and is being given, to the expansion of its business in the manufacture and sale of miscellaneous products. That branch of its activities is now one of very considerable magnitude and produces a substantial proportion of its earnings."

Consolidated working capital on April 30 amounted to $27,716,339, compared with $27,717,392 on April 30, 1928.

Federal Screw Company.

The Federal Screw Company reports net profit for the five months ended on May 31 of $546,658, after all charges except Federal taxes. This compares with $161,502 in the same period last year. After deducting estimated Federal taxes, the earnings for the period were equivalent to $3.35 a share. May was the greatest month in the company's history, with the net for that month, after all charges except Federal taxes, amounting to $125,561, comparing with $26,281 in May, 1928.

United States Dairy Products.

The United States Dairy Products Corporation reports sales of ice cream in the five months ended on June 2, of 7,293,933 quarts as compared with 6,550,589 quarts in the first five months of 1928, an increase of 11.3 per cent.

National Trade Journals.

The National Trade Journals, Inc., report that earnings for the first five months of 1929 available for dividends amounted to $182,994, equivalent to $1.66 a share. According to an official statement the directors have determined to take no dividend action at this time in view of cash requirements for the development of the corporation's publications.

Motor Products Corporation.

The Motor Products Corporation for the first quarter of 1929 reports net income of $932,474, equivalent to $6.86 a share on the common stock outstanding. This compares with $2,643,749 for 1928 and $482,879 in 1927. The company reports that earnings for the first six months of this year will be $9.10 a share on the common stock, the preferred stock having been redeemed on May 18, 1929.

Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies.

The Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies Company reports for April a net income of $241,846 after taxes and depreciation, compared with $130,295 for the corresponding month of 1928. For the first four months of 1929, net income was $1,065,190, compared with $781,951 in the corresponding period of 1928.

Utilities Power & Light Corporation
Traded on New York Curb Market

The prevailing public enthusiasm for Common Stocks of Public Utility Companies is predicated upon a deep-seated confidence in the increasing prosperity of this industry, a growing appreciation of the stable nature of the business and, in special cases, the favorable prospects which a few companies face due to the strategic position of their properties in merger plans.

Utilities Power & Light Corporation controls a well-established group of properties not only in the United States but also in Great Britain. While the properties are well diversified, certain important groups are situated in a most favorable position with regard to any comprehensive merger plans. Its earnings record has been very impressive, net income for the twelve months ended on March 31, 1929, being 14% greater than that reported for the calendar year 1928.

These factors would seem to indicate that the Utilities Power & Light Corporation will share fully in the future prosperity of the industry. The Corporation's Common Stock has been placed on a dividend basis which is equal to an annual rate of $1.00 per share. Stockholders, however, have been given the privilege of applying their dividends to the further purchase of Common Stock at a price which makes the dividend return equivalent to a 10% stock yield.

STOCK-SPLIT IN VIEW FOR TRANSAMERICA

Giannini Holding Company Said to Be Considering 4-for-1 or 5-for-1 Division.

BONUS FOR BANK OF AMERICA

Plans for a split-up in the shares of the Transamerica Company, the holding company for the Giannini interests, are under discussion, it was learned yesterday. The form which the split-up will take has not yet been decided upon, but a four-for-one or five-for-one division has been mentioned as a likelihood in Wall Street circles. The latter is regarded as a more logical move, since the par value of the present shares is $25 and an even reduction of par value would thus be effected.

The Transamerica Corporation was organized last year to be a central holding company for the widespread interests of A. P. Giannini. Stockholders of the Bank of Italy in California, the Bank of America here and other institutions in this country and abroad received the opportunity to exchange their stock for shares in Transamerica, and in this way control of the various Giannini enterprises was vested in the holding company.

Shares of the corporation, of which there are approximately 9,000,000 outstanding, are listed on the New York Curb Exchange and closed last night at 138¼.

Control of the Bank of America, which has recently arranged four separate mergers, the latest of which, that with the Chatham Phenix National Bank and Trust Company, was announced on Monday, rests with the Transamerica Corporation as a result of a recent offer for exchange of shares.

In connection with its merger with the Chatham Phenix, the Bank of America is expected to declare a special distribution to stockholders. Whether this will take the form of a stock dividend or a cash payment has not yet been decided, it is understood. The distribution will be voted in order to equalize the shares of the two banks, it is said.

Bank of America shares have a par value of $25 and are currently quoted at about $230 a share in the over-the-counter market. Shares of the Chatham Phenix Bank are of $100 par value and are quoted at about $880. A plan to split the stock on a five-for-one basis, reducing the par value of shares to $20, has already been approved by directors of the Chatham Phenix Bank and will be voted on by stockholders in August.

In connection with the announcement of the proposed merger with the Bank of America, it was said that the plan for reducing the par value of the Chatham Phenix shares would be adhered to. Further details of the proposed merger are to be given out in the next day or so, it is understood, and at that time, it is believed, the capital changes decided upon to prepare the way for an exchange of stock may be indicated.

BOND FLOTATIONS.

Mortgage Bank of Chile.

New financing for the Mortgage Bank of Chile to the amount of $20,000,000, is announced for today in an offering of an issue of guaranteed sinking fund 6 per cent bonds by a syndicate comprising Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the Guaranty Company of New York and the National City Company. The bonds, which will mature on May 1, 1962, will be placed on the market at 92 and interest, to yield about 6.60 per cent.

All loans are secured by first mortgages or pledges registered in the name of the bank.

WALL ST. AWAITS OIL EXPORT ACTION

But Members Refuse to Comment Beyond Admitting "Difficulties" in Formulating Program.

A meeting of the recently organized Petroleum Export Association is scheduled to be held today, at which it is expected that plans for its activity in the foreign petroleum markets will be considered. According to reports in oil circles yesterday, a committee which has been considering the question of export gasoline prices will make a report.

An official of the association who was asked yesterday about possible action on the price question said that, so far as he knew, the meeting would be routine and he was not sure, he said, that a quorum would be present.

It has been reported in Wall Street for some time that some of the oil interests represented in the association were in disagreement over the plans, particularly in relation to the prices at which American oil products are to be exported. Members of the association, however, have declined to discuss the matter and have discredited reports of dissension.

The association was organized under provisions of the Webb-Pomerene act to coordinate the export activities of American oil companies. Most of the principal companies are represented in the organization. Although offices have been opened, the association has not started operating actively. It was patterned after other export bodies formed in this country, such as the Copper Export Association.

It was reported in oil circles yesterday that the Royal Dutch-Shell interests in this country were out of sympathy with some of the plans of the export body. Oil executives, however, declined to comment. Sir Henri Deterding, managing director of the Royal Dutch, is understood to have encouraged the movement that brought about the export association, but is said recently to have shown less interest in the plan. As one of the largest factors in the oil industry abroad, the Royal Dutch is deeply interested in the exporting plans of American oil producers, it was pointed out. Sir Henri is reported to have indicated through his representatives here his opposition to some of the features of the export association's program.

Other European oil interests, it is understood, have been taking an interest in developments here, with the idea apparently of resisting any unusual encroachment upon their markets. According to one report in Wall Street yesterday, some representations on the subject have been made to Washington from abroad.

American oil executives interested in the export association, while maintaining their usual reticence yesterday with respect to that body's plans, indicated that its program had met with some difficulties which were not anticipated. They did not believe, however, that these difficulties would prove serious, they said.

SEEK FUND FOR STRIKERS.

A delegation of 200 strikers of the textile mills in North Carolina have arrived in this city to agitate for a fund to establish a new tent colony to house the strikers in place of the one which they charge was destroyed several weeks ago "by unscrupulous police and thugs employed by the mill owners."

A mass meeting will be held tonight at 7 o'clock at the Irving Plaza, Fifteenth Street and Irving Place, by various labor and trade organizations to consider plans to relieve the strikers. On Saturday and Sunday of this week tag days will be held in districts to raise money to aid the North Carolina workers.

EXPANSION PROGRAM FOR MARSHALL FIELD

Merchandise sales records in the West and Middle West are ahead of the figures for 1928 in spite of adverse weather conditions, James Simpson, president of Marshall Field & Co., of Chicago, said yesterday before sailing aboard the Berengaria for a vacation in Europe. Mr. Simpson said his summary of conditions was based upon figures reported from the wholesale and retail divisions of his company.

Encouraged by the present general situation and the favorable prospects for the future, he said, his company is planning a great expansion of its present merchandise operations, mentioning as part of the program the Merchandise Mart, intended to be the largest building in the world, which Marshall Field & Co. are now building in Chicago. The opportunity for the efficient wholesale distributer of merchandise is improving, Mr. Simpson claimed, and his company is planning increased wholesale facilities because of this fact.

The company has purchased a number of general merchandise stores in smaller cities and towns in the Middle West, he added. The recent purchase of Frederick & Nelson, Seattle department store, and the erection of branch department stores for Marshall Field & Co. in Evanston and Oak Park, two of the principal suburbs of Chicago, were other activities mentioned by Mr. Simpson. He said his company has met with success in operating branch dry goods stores outside the shopping centres of big cities.

Mr. Simpson, who is chairman of the Chicago Plan Commission and a director of the Federal Reserve Bank at Chicago, talked of the city's plans for the Century of Progress Exposition to be held in Chicago in 1933, but declined to discuss banking matters. He said the proposed exposition will be unique in the fact that progress in processes of manufacture rather than the products themselves will be featured.

STEEL OUTPUT CUT BY HOT WEATHER

UNFILLED ORDERS LARGE

Trade Reviews Report Them to Be Bigger Than Ever for Mid-Year —Prices Practically Unchanged.

While activity in the steel industry eased off slightly last week, the recession was caused more by the hot weather than by the seasonal decline in the demand for steel, according to the weekly iron and steel reviews. New high records of production for June are assured, however, the reviews report, and no general decline in demand has developed. Contracting for requirements for the third quarter of the year has been active and most mills have more orders booked than in any other June in their history.

The market summary of Iron Age says:

"Summer is bringing a recession in the activity of the steel industry, but thus far hot weather and the physical limitations of equipment have affected mill operations more than market conditions.

"While open-hearth steel output has apparently diminished, with a larger number of furnaces reported down for repairs, Bessemer steel production has gained. The recent hot wave has chiefly restricted the production of sheet and tin plate mills and has not materially relieved the demand for crude steel. Meanwhile total ingot output remains at close to 100 per cent of rated capacity, with little prospect of dropping more than 2 or 3 points before July 1.

Unfilled Business Large.

"Improvement in mill deliveries is more general, now being reported from Chicago, where producers' commitments are largest, but unfilled business is still heavy and a high rate of production next month is assured. The automotive industry has further curtailed operations and some motor car builders, in preparing to bring out new models, have made a 50 per cent reduction in steel tonnage on order and in stock. The trend is not all in one direction, however, since a few instances of increased specifications for automotive steels are reported.

"Tin plate specifications continue to taper, reflecting in part the prospect of reduced packs of canned goods.

"Farm equipment plants are taking less steel. Part of this reduction is attributed to seasonal influences, but some of it is ascribed to the uncertainty of the agricultural outlook. Northwestern implement manufacturers and tractor makers generally have made the sharpest cuts in production."

The Iron Trade Review says in its summary:

"Most steel producers are coming up to midyear with the best order books in their history for that period. Not since 1920 have so many departments of the industry embarked on the third quarter with July output substantially sold and considerable August tonnage earmarked.

"Specifications and shipments of finished steel continue to turn down moderately, under seasonal influences, but third quarter contracting is brisk, considering the generally stable price situation and the forerunning record six months. Compared with a year ago, third quarter commitments of many consumers show an increase.

"Contracting for third quarter pig iron is more active, many automotive foundries now being in position to foresee their needs more clearly. In some cases these requirements are within 20 per cent of the second quarter melt. Especially at Pittsburgh and St. Louis is more interest in iron manifest, and Southern producers to move their surplus are competing in Northern markets on an equal price basis for the first time in a decade.

Large Orders for Railroads.

"Railroads loom large in the steel news of the week. Southern Pacific has bought 33,864 tons of rails, Chicago mills look for heavy secondary buying of track material shortly, and the Pennsylvania is closing on 5,000 tons of fastenings. Rail mills at Chicago expect to go into August t their present high rate. New York Central has placed twenty-five locomotives, with the Wabash inquiring for twenty-five. Lackawanna is inquiring for 1,250 freight cars. Car awards approximate 875, not including repairs to 300 for Seaboard Air Line.

"Automotive requirements for bars, sheets and strip continue dominant, although ebbing slowly.

"June production statistics, available in another week, doubtless will reveal new highs for the month for most producers of iron and steel. A record second quarter also is forecast. This week Steel Corporation subsidiaries have eased off 5 points to 90 per cent, while independent producers are down 2 points to 92 per cent. The entire steel industry is averaging 95 per cent this week, against 96 last week."

Failure of semi-finished steel makers to hold their advance has lowered The Iron Trade Review's composite of fourteen leading iron and steel products 12 cents to $36.84. The high point recently was $37.13, late in May.

Cuba Grants Stay on New Rules.

The Cuban Government has postponed until Sept. 1 the enforcement of new consular regulations which had been scheduled to go into effect July 1, according to telephone advices received yesterday by the Merchants' Association from the Department of Commerce at Washington. In addition to retarding enforcement of the new rules, Cuba has also given shippers a period of fifteen days in which to offer objections to specific regulations, it was stated.

IMPROVEMENT SHOWN BY COUNTER STOCKS

Trading More Active, Prices Are Stronger—Bank Shares Irregular, Insurance Issues Steady.

Stocks in the over-the-counter market displayed more activity and strength yesterday than during the previous session. Bank and trust shares were irregular. Insurance issues were inclined to hold steady. Industrials generally were in a better position. The chain store stocks held firm. Sugar stocks were quiet and unchanged, while bonds held steady.

Among the bank and trust company shares, gains were shown by National City, Farmers' Loan and Trust, Hibernia, Lefcourt, Broadway National, Corn Exchange and New York Trust. There was an easier tone to County, Chase, Equitable, Guaranty and Park.

Niagara and Fidelity and Casualty of New York were the leaders in the insurance division, while Globe and Rutgers and Home were lower.

In the industrial section, Newport and United States Finishing common scored substantial advances. There was a better demand for Technicolor, Rolls-Royce common, Kari Keen and Draper. Declines were marked against United Business Publishers preferred, Central Distributors common, Douglas Shoe and Bowman Biltmore issues.

Neisner Brothers and Metropolitan Chain new were the only active spots in the chain store division. G. C. Murphy common, Bohack and Diamond Shoe dropped slightly.

OLD COINS AUCTIONED.

Numismatists of this and other cities attended the opening session yesterday of the sale of the extensive coin collection of the late Dr. George Alfred Lawrence at the Elder Coin and Curio Corporation, 8 West Thirty-seventh Street.

The first coin put up was a gold stater of the early British chieftain Cunobelinus, better known in history as Cymbeline, who reigned early in the first century, brought $67.50, the second highest price of the day.

The highest price was $75 paid for a sharply minted gold aureus of the Roman matron Faustina I., issued about 141 A. D. For a similar gold coin of Diocletian, 284 A. D., $67.50 was paid and a fine aureaus of Tacitus, 275 A. D., sold for $37.50.

One of the rarest of the early Egyptian gold coins, an octodrachm, sold for $60, and a rare electrum coin of Lesbos, 480 B. C., sold for $57.50. A one-third stater, gold, of Lydia, about 610 B. C., one of the oldest coins known, sold for $50. A rare silver tetradrachm of Demetrius, one of the successors of Alexander the Great, 308 B. C., brought $50. A beautiful Syracuse tetradrachm, about 466 B. C. brought $33, while one of later date, in the reign of Agathocles, 317 B. C., with the head of Persephone surrounded by three dolphins, sold for $45.

Several fine silver coins of Judea brought fair prices, $51 and $50 being paid respectively for shekels of the period of Simon Maccabeus, 139 B. C., and $44 for a half shekel of that period.

DENIES SHORTAGE OF GRAIN IN RUSSIA

SEES FARMING BOOM THERE

2,250,000 Acres Will Be Sowed Next Year He Declares—"Giant Farms" Described.

Denying that there is any shortage of grain in Russia at the present time, M. Y. Kalmanovich, head of the Soviet Zernotrest, or Grain Trust, said yesterday in an interview at the offices of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, 261 Fifth Avenue, that the Spring crops in Russia were in good condition early in June and predicted that within three or four years the country will be exporting grain.

Mr. Kalmanovich, who left Moscow on June 3 for a business visit to this country, explained the operations of the Zernotrest and how its activities are not only increasing the grain crops but helping the small farmer. The grain trust, he said, is a Soviet agency which operates more than forty large farms in Russia, using land that heretofore has not been cultivated. This year, the Zernotrest cultivated about 350,000 acres of the "new" land. Next Winter and Spring, the trust plans to sow 2,250,000 acres. In 1931, the trust will cultivate nearly 6,000,000 acres and by 1932, 10,000,000 acres, according to Mr. Kalmanovich.

The grain trust, said Mr. Kalmanovich, was formed last year to organize and operate large grain farms entirely by machinery, and among the sixteen out of a total of forty-four farms cultivated this year is the so-called "Giant Farm" in the Northern Caucasus, with a cultivated area of 120,000 acres. The other farms controlled by the trust range from 50,000 acres up to 125,000 acres. These farms are located at various points from the Baltic to the Pacific.

With all its activities, however, the grain trust will not hurt or supplant the small peasant farmers, according to Mr. Kalmanovich. At the present time, he said, the bulk of the grain crop comes from land tilled by the peasants. The Soviet Government helps the peasants to reduce their costs of production in various ways, such as by selling them tractors and other machinery at cheap prices and supplying them with good seed.

Mr. Kalmanovich said the peasants are taking favorably to the use of tractors in the modern farming methods. In connection with the work of assisting the peasant farmers, Mr. Kalmanovich explained that the Soviet Government has set up a special organization, the Machinery and Tractor Service, with a capital of $25,000,000, to maintain a series of stations which will operate a fleet of tractors to cultivate peasant land.

In denying that there is any grain shortage in Russia, Mr. Kalmanovich said the government recently resorted to the use of bread cards by which consumers are guaranteed a certain amount of bread. The principal purpose of these cards, he continued, is to fight against speculation. He explained that before cards were issued small traders bought up large quantities of bread then sold it at high prices. By the use of bread cards, he said, speculation of this sort is eliminated.

Mr. Kalmanovich was formerly connected with the Commissariat of food administration. For two years he was head of the Industrial and Trade Bank in Moscow, the second largest bank in Russia, and for a time he was head of the Soviet sugar trust.

GOLDMAN SACHS BUYS CHICAGO BANK SHARES

Trading Corporation Acquires Large Block of Foreman National Stock.

A large block of shares of the Foreman National Bank of Chicago has been acquired by the Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation, it was announced yesterday.

Coming on top of the announcement last month of the acquisition of a large interest in the Colonial Trust Company of Philadelphia, the entry of the Goldman Sachs interests into the Chicago banking field gave rise to the conjecture in Wall Street that the trading corporation might be planning ultimately to acquire an interest in a chain of banks throughout the country.

Through its merger with the Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation earlier in the year, the Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation obtained a large share, believed to represent a controlling interest, in the Manufacturers Trust Company, headed by Nathan Jonas, brother of Ralph Jonas, who was president of the Financial and Industrial Corporation.

The purchase of shares in the Foreman bank was made possible, according to yesterday's announcement, by the Chicago bank's recent issuance of rights to subscribe to additional stock.

The Foreman family, it was announced, will retain its present holdings in the bank.

Waddill Catchings, president of the Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation and a partner in the banking firm of Goldman Sachs & Co., is to become a member of the board of directors of the Foreman bank.

RICHMOND, Va., June 26.—An order instructing the State Commissioner of Banking and Insurance to apply for a receiver for the Guaranty Title and Trust Company of Norfolk was entered today by the State Corporation Commission.

The company, a $1,000,000 corporation, is reported to have conducted its business at a loss since the first of the year because of a depreciation of real estate values at Norfolk.

The directors requested the State Commissioner to take over the affairs of the company and wind up its business.

NEW CROP COTTON OFF 8 TO 12 POINTS

TRADING IS PROFESSIONAL

Commission House Business Light —Private Reports of Conditions in South Expected Soon.

Completion of July liquidation left an extremely quiet cotton market yesterday and trading on the Cotton Exchange closed with a gain of 11 points on July to a loss of 8 to 12 points on new crop deliveries. After going to a discount of virtually 60 points under October while notices were being circulated on the previous day, July stiffened a quarter of a cent and changed hands in the closing trading less than 32 points under October. With the weekly weather report reflecting favorable progress in most sections of the South, the recovery in December and January around the 19 cent level brought out contracts, although trading was mainly professional and commission house business fell off materially.

December sold within a point of 19 cents at one time when the rise in the May delivery above 19¼ cents attracted realising from several directions.

WHEAT PRICES DROP AFTER EARLY RISE

FOREIGN DEMAND IS SLOW

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Light showers to rains exceeding one-half inch fell over parts of the dry area in the Canadian Northwest and caused a sharp decline in values early today, but the break brought in aggressive buying, headed by houses that were free sellers on Monday's bulge, and the surplus was taken out of the pit. Many of the pit element were caught short on an unconfirmed rumor that the Argentine Government had taken over the remainder of the exportable surplus due to the unfavorable outlook for the new crop.

A wave of short covering swept values up over 3 cents from the early low, with Winnipeg, which had led the decline early, showing more strength than the local market. Profit-taking in volume developed and the finish here was ¾ to ⅞ cent lower, while Winnipeg was ¼ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher.

Local houses with Argentine connections were unable to confirm the Argentine reports, and the Buenos Aires market failed to show any excitement, closing ⅞ to 1 cent higher.

Private crop reports continue to tell of unfavorable conditions in the American Northwest. There were intimations of export business having been done under cover at the Gulf in the past few days, but the seaboard reported foreign demand as slow. Liverpool was 2¼ to 2⅝ pence lower.

Primary arrivals today aggregated 1,150,000 bushels, week ago 1,005,000 bushels, last year 1,090,000 bushels. Shipments 896,000 bushels, week ago 888,000 bushels, last year 707,000 bushels.

Outside interest in corn is increasing, with local buying of December, which sold at a new high on the crop. The best prices were not maintained, due to the reaction in wheat, but the close was ¼ to ⅝ cent higher, with July finishing only ¾ cent over December, as against 7 cents over earlier in the month.

The cash demand was fairly brisk, with the spot basis steady to ⅛ cent higher. Shipping sales aggregated 152,000 bushels.

Primary arrivals today 1,000,000 bushels, week ago 1,171,000 bushels, last year 604,000 bushels. Shipments 619,000 bushels, week ago 601,000 bushels, last year 520,000 bushels.

Oats closed unchanged to ⅝ cent lower, with cash houses selling July and the Northwest the September and December. July went to a discount of ⅞ cent under September at the last. Rye closed unchanged to ¾ cent lower, with a light trade.

Prices for the principal grains were as follows:

WHEAT PROGRESSES IN THE OHIO VALLEY

"Temperatures averaged near normal quite generally with rainfall light to moderate in most sections. There was too much moisture in local areas of Atlantic states, especially in northern North Carolina, while showers would benefit crops on some uplands of Gulf sections. However, temperatures were generally favorable and cotton, as a general rule, made good to excellent progress east of the Mississippi, at the same time much cultivation was accomplished. There are still many complaints of irregular stands and spotted conditions as to growth, as well as favorable weather for weevil activity in South.

"In Louisiana growth was good, but weevil activity was favored. In Arkansas progress was good to excellent except in west central portions where it is still too wet. Fields are clean in most parts and the plants grew rapidly, but are very irregular in size with some squares forming in central districts. In Oklahoma week was mostly fair and warm, with showers in all sections. Progress of cotton was very good with condition very good in West, but spotted and generally rather poor in East.

"In Texas, while cotton is still spotted it averages fairly good and the weekly progress under favorable temperatures was very good. Cultivation advanced satisfactorily. Plants are fruiting fairly well in South, while picking has extended to extreme South.

"Excellent growing weather prevailed in nearly all corn sections east of the Mississippi River and progress of the crop was generally good to excellent.

"In Iowa progress was fair to very good with general condition ranging from very good in central and northwestern portion to poor in south central and southwestern. Fields are generally clean except in southwest. Corn needs more warmth and sunshine in Central Great Plains, but in southern plains, including Oklahoma, growth was very good. Plants are very irregular in some areas, especially in Illinois, where some corn is still being seeded in the south.

"Winter wheat made generally very good to excellent progress in Ohio Valley, and in the northern part some cutting was done, while harvest advanced rapidly in lower valley districts. Condition and progress was fair to very good in upper Missouri Valley, but only poor to fair condition was reported in Missouri.

"Wheat was heading well in Nebraska with soil moisture mostly sufficient. In eastern Kansas harvest had begun north to Kansas River Basin and was expected to begin in a week or ten days generally over the state. Unfavorable weather prevailed. In Southwest mostly excellent weather for harvesting was reported and rapid advance was made in this area with gathering nearly finished in southern and central Oklahoma, and well advanced in Texas. In East harvest was well under way to Maryland. Rapid ripening was reported from Oregon. Continued dryness in northeastern South Dakota caused much suffering to Spring wheat and the crop was heading short. Progress was better in North Dakota, ranging from very good to excellent. Spring wheat was mostly fair elsewhere.

"Winter wheat harvest extended during week as far north as Kansas River Basin in Kansas to central Illinois and in the East was well along as far north as Maryland. East of the Mississippi River conditions were favorable for harvest, but were unfavorable in Missouri and eastern Kansas. In far western area there was some frost damage in interior of North."

LOWDEN SUGGESTS EASING FARM TAXES

TAXATION CHANGE URGED

Bounty for Unused Land Asked to Save Soil—H. W. McDavid Slated for Kiwanis Head.

MILWAUKEE, June 26 (AP).—A new public attitude toward agriculture and the frank recognition of the facts regarding the agricultural situation is needed more than any one piece of legislation to bring economic justice to the farmer, former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois told the thirteenth annual convention of the Kiwanis International today.

With the attainment of these ends, he held, ways to restore the proper balance between agriculture and industry will present themselves.

One way in which the ills of agriculture may be remedied, Mr. Lowden said, is to change the present method of taxation. The farmer is being done a great injustice, he contended, by the existing methods, inasmuch as intangible property escapes direct taxation, while farm land, always tangible property, is made to bear the greatest burden of the cost of government.

Warns of Soil Depletion.

"Depletion of soils is going on at a dangerous rate and when farm surpluses are often driving the price of farm products below the cost of production, we are adding to those surpluses by robbing the soil," said Mr. Lowden. He suggested that State and Federal governments exempt all lands from taxation which are devoted to some legume or pay a reasonable bounty to the owners of the lands while they kept them out of cultivation.

While the country school has rapidly lost its old vitality and its importance in the life of the people, the city school has constantly improved, the former Governor said. Due largely to improved machinery, the population of the rural school district has declined so rapidly that in Iowa alone 500 schools were closed. The speaker declared this in substance was an integral part of the farm problem.

Mr. Lowden urged that an "inventory" be made of the nation's agricultural resources.

United Kiwanis support to President Hoover's program of law enforcement was urged by Wilby G. Hyde, Chillicothe, Ohio, chairman of the organization's public affairs committee.

Mr. Hyde's plea was made before the thirteenth annual convention in the committee's annual report.

At the same time Harold M. Digby, Victoria, B. C., chairman of a similar committee for Canada, presented a report recommending that Canadian Kiwanians associate themselves with the League of Nations in carrying out a program of international good will.

The Canadian committee declared against promiscuous talk about "the next great war." It also urged an organized educational campaign against the drug evil.

Horace W. McDavid, a Decatur, Ill., attorney, will be recommended tomorrow for the presidency of Kiwanis International, it was learned today.

Has Held Many Offices.

Mr. McDavid, an international trustee of Kiwanis, has held numerous offices in Kiwanis and has been prominent in civic affairs as well as in Illinois politics.

Other nominations made at the caucus were Dr. C. C. Patham, Edmonton, Alberta, and William C. Green, St. Paul, Minn., for vice president, and Raymond M. Crossman, Omaha, Neb., for re-election as treasurer, as well as nine candidates for trustees, seven to be elected. The office of secretary will be filled by the trustees.

MUKDEN TO GET NEW NOTES.

Banks Will Supplant Depreciated Local Paper Currency.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Mukden's local paper currency which has depreciated greatly in China, will be supplanted by silver dollar notes, according to a report from Consul M. S. Myers at Mukden, made public by the Department of Commerce.

The new plan has been devised by the Bank of China, the Bank of Communications, the Government Bank of the three Eastern provinces and the Frontier Bank. The exact amount of the notes to be issued under this plan has not been decided, but it is agreed that each bank will be responsible for its own notes and may issue notes up to the full amount of its reserve.

MANUFACTURER ENDS LIFE.

Egmont N. Hiller, 65 years old, president of the Hiller Manufacturing Company, maker of shoe ornaments, committed suicide yesterday morning in his office on the fourth floor of 10 East Twenty-third Street by hanging. Ernest Sheridan, the building superintendent, found the body suspended by a belt from one of the office partitions.

Dr. Charles S. B. Cassassa, assistant medical examiner, said that Hiller had been dead only a short time when found. It was said that a prolonged illness had preyed on his mind. Hiller leaves a wife and a stepson. They live at 302 West Seventy-ninth Street.

TRANSIT BOARD ORDERS 'KEYING BY' HEARING

Sets July 9 for Public Inquiry on Running of Trains Past Stop Signals.

The practice of "keying by" or sending trains past automatic stop signals to speed up service on rapid transit lines will be the subject of a public hearing on July 9, the Transit Commission announced yesterday. Railroad and technical experts, civic organizations, signal engineers, newspapers and others interested have been invited to attend and express their views.

The public hearing was set after engineers of the commission, the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and the Brooklyn Manhattan Company had conferred several times in an effort to reach a compromise between the commission's ban on "keying by," issued after a fatal collision on the Jerome Avenue subway line in April, and the desire of the companies to expedite service. The I. R. T. and B. M. T protested that compliance with the order against "keying by" would impair service throughout the city.

Civic organizations, however, have urged the commission to enforce the restrictions in the interests of safe operation. The hearing is an attempt to arrive at practical methods of operation by which maximum service can be given within the limits of maximum protection.

Among those invited to attend are representatives of the I. R. T., the B. M. T., Board of Transportation, New York Central Railroad, Hudson & Manhattan Railroad, Long Island Railroad, New York, New Haven & Hartford, Staten Island Rapid Transit Company, Boston & Westchester, the Merchants' Association and New York State Chamber of Commerce

FACTORY OUTPUT INCREASED IN MAY

IRON ORE MADE NEW RECORD

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Industrial production and distribution of commodities continued at a high rate in May, the Federal Reserve Board announced today in its summary of business and financial conditions based upon statistics for May and June received from the Reserve districts. The board found that wholesale commodity prices declined further during the month, but more recently showed some advance. Loans and investments of member banks in leading cities have increased since the latter part of May.

"Industrial production continued large in May," the board said, "and was accompanied by a further increase in the volume of factory employment and payrolls."

The output of the iron and steel industry increased further, and shipments of iron ore during May were the largest for that month of any recent year.

Production of pig iron, steel ingots and coke was at record levels and semi-finished and finished steel was produced in large volume. During the first half of June steel operations remained close to capacity, although some decline from the high rate of May was reported. The output of automobiles, which has been in unusually large volume since the beginning of the year, showed a slight reduction in May. Copper production at mines, smelters and refineries decreased, but continued large. The combined stocks of refined and blister copper at the end of May were the largest since 1927. Zinc, lead, petroleum and bituminous coal were produced in larger volume than in April, while the output of anthracite coal declined. The output in the textile industries continued large in May although there was a decline in activity in silk mills. Meat production, while larger than in April, increased less than usual at this season.

Wheat Production Increased.

The value of building contracts awarded in May declined below last year's level, chiefly in residential building. During the first two weeks in June contracts averaged 15 per cent less than in the same period of 1928.

The board pointed out that the June 1 crop summary of the Department of Agriculture indicated an increase of 43,000,000 bushels, or more than 7 per cent in the crop of Winter wheat. The condition of Spring wheat, barley and hay was reported to be better than a year ago.

"The decline of the general level," the board said, "was chiefly the result of price declines in agricultural products and their manufactures, although prices of other products also declined slightly."

Prices of cotton and grains continued sharply downward in May and there were marked declines in the prices of hogs, wool and lambs. Prices of mineral and forest products and their manufactures averaged lower than in April, particularly those of copper, lead and tin. Petroleum and gasoline and iron and steel advanced in price, while in lumber there was a slight decline.

Prices of Cattle and Hides Advance.

Since the latter part of May, the board declared, prices of cattle and hides have advanced sharply and there have been increases in the prices of grains, hogs and cotton.

With respect to bank credit the board said:

"Loans and investments of member banks in leading cities, which were at a low point for the year in the latter part of May, increased considerably during the subsequent three weeks, and on June 19 were about $250,000,000 larger than a year ago. The recent increase reflected a large growth in the volume of loans on securities, which had declined during the preceding two months, and a further growth in loans chiefly for commercial and agricultural purposes. Investments declined during most of the period and on June 10 were at a level about $450,000,000 below that of the middle of the year.

"The volume of Reserve Bank credit outstanding, after increasing in the latter part of May, declined in June and, following the Treasury financial operations around the middle of the month, showed a small increase for the four weeks ended June 19. Discounts for member banks increased, while holdings of acceptances and United States securities showed a decline. There were some further additions to the country's stock of monetary gold.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—6 per cent for the best names. Tuesday—6 per cent for the best names. The quotations are for 4 to 6 months' paper.

Group Reduction to Aid Markup.

Purchase of Fall ready-to-wear at $25, instead of the former $26 level, by group buying organizations is aimed at giving store buyers a better markup on the merchandise and eliminating dissatisfaction on this score, it was said yesterday. The markup on the $25 figure will be 37 per cent at the retail level of $39.80, a gain of 3 per cent that is considered attractive by buyers. Discussing the change from the manufacturers' standpoint, one group head said that manufacturers today can produce as good a garment at $25 as they could at the higher figure a year or so ago.

Fifty-eight Stores in Wry Chain.

A total of fifty-eight stores located as far West as Denver have been signed up for the Wry chain of men's clothing and furnishings stores, it was said yesterday by Joseph L. Pinto, who is associated with Charles E. Wry in the project. The annual volume of the group is $10,000,000. Audits of the stores are under way, Mr. Pinto added, and will be completed about the middle of July, with actual operation by the Wry interests scheduled for early September. The stores will retain their own names and individuality, but will have the advantages of central purchasing, management and control.

Bathing Suit Scarcity Acute.

Unusually active buying of new lines of bathing suits after their introduction to the jobbing trade about Aug. 1 is presaged by the marked shortage of this merchandise that now exists. The paucity of all lines of goods is greater now than at any other time since June, 1925. Manufacturers will go into the new season with stocks the lightest in their history. The sustained hot weather is the reason. Not only are jobbers buyers willing to take anything they can get shipped, but some of them are placing orders for deliveries running beyond July 4. One such order, calling for 200 dozen suits, was received yesterday for July 15 delivery. Eastern jobbers, in particular, are clamoring for goods.

Joins Southern Research Group.

The D. H. Holmes Company Ltd. of New Orleans, La., the largest store in the South, credited with doing an annual volume of $7,500,000, has joined the Southern Research Association, and, effective July 1, will be represented by Kirby, Block & Fischer, it was announced yesterday. The store was elected to membership at the meeting early this week of the association, which comprises Thalheimer Brothers, Richmond; J. B. Ivey & Co., Charlotte, N. C.; Burdines's, Miami, and Goldsmith & Sons, Memphis. The Holmes' local office at 15 East Twenty-sixth Street will be discontinued.

Discuss Color Problem in Shirts.

Charging that the wholesaling of shirts and neckwear in color sets causes heavy markdowns, retailers yesterday urged shirt manufacturers and converters to abandon this practice in favor of unrestricted color choice. The retailers' views were expressed at a meeting at the Hotel Biltmore under the auspices of the Retail Clothiers and Furnishers Association of New York. Shirt manufacturers and retailers united in saying the solution of the problem of demanded advance orders from retailers, because of manufacturing requirements. A joint committee to go into the problem fully will come up before another meeting. Joseph Danerhirsch, president, presided.

See Crystal Trend as Helpful.

Producers of table and novelty glassware see in the increasing favor for crystal merchandise some easing of the marked price competition which has featured the trade for some time. While colored glassware still is in demand, its price levels have been steadily toward cheaper levels. Crystal stemware, particularly, is forging ahead, both in plain and colored stems. Interest in beverage glasses continues notable. One firm that is putting out a black and white color combination in stemware to retail at 39 cents per item. Cut glass continues quiet.

To Standardize Textile Terms.

Plans to standardize selling terms for cotton textiles were discussed informally yesterday at a meeting held at the Arkwright Club under the auspices of the Cotton Textile Institute and attended by representatives of that organization, the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York, the Converters' Association, the Shirting Fabrics Association and the Downtown Textile Credit Group. Walker D. Hines, president of the Institute, presided. The meeting was called as a result of the present irregularity of sales terms, for which high money rates are held largely responsible. Committees are to be appointed to study the matter and report their findings at a later date.

Late Inventory Move Gains.

Substantial progress in the movement to get wash goods converters to end their Spring season on July 31 instead of June 30, the practice for many years, was reported here yesterday. Just how many have changed their inventory dates is not definitely known, but it is understood that a survey of the trade is soon to be made by the Converters' Association to determine this. Progress in the move to curtail preseasonal production was also reported. The purpose of this movement is to reduce market accumulations by ending general production about four to six weeks earlier than at present. Both are aimed against season-and-price cutting, which frequently destroys the profits of most of the season.

Burlap Prices Well Sustained.

Prices for burlaps were well sustained in this market during the past week, despite the continued refusal of buyers to trade in an important way. Some spot business was done, but buyers seemed most concerned with trying to purchase afloats at the spot levels. In this they were unsuccessful. Calcutta yesterday was unchanged to 8 points under the market of the previous day. These were the prices quoted locally on standard 40-inch burlaps by C. E. Rockstroh & Co., Inc.:

	8-ounce.	10½-ounce.
June shipment	6.30c	8.40c
July-Sept. shipment	6.30c	8.40c

Gray Goods Prices Steady.

Refusal of mills to accept substantial orders for August-September deliveries of 39½-inch 60-48 print cloths at 6¼ cents was the outstanding feature of trading in gray goods here yesterday. The same mills, however, let the goods out for nearby shipment at the figure given. For July delivery, business was put through in 39-inch 68-72s at 6¼ cents. Practically all of the other business done in the market was in spot goods. Sales included 37-inch 48-square, four-yard sheetings at 7¾ cents, 36-inch 6.35s at 6¼ cents and 36-inch 5.50s at 6 cents. Thirteen cents was paid for 37-inch 2.35-yard drills and 10½ cents for 100-60 carded broadcloths. For spot 39½-inch 4.70-yard sateens 9¾ cents was accepted by mills.

STORE GROUP HAS NEW PLAN

American Chain to Cut Wholesale Stocks—Apparel Buyer Named.

Following a study of the trends in modern retailing, the American Department Stores Corporation has adopted a program of expansion which includes the liquidating of all but the most staple items of merchandise in the inventory of its subsidiary, the American Dry Goods Company, L. L. Jay, president of the parent organization, announced yesterday. Rapid changes in fashion, the high cost of style obsolescence and the ability of manufacturers to make direct shipments to the ultimate distributing point, he added, no longer make it an advantage to carry large warehouse stocks of merchandise here.

Activities of the American Dry Goods Company will be greatly intensified, Mr. Jay said. In general the organization will function as a compact unit for buying and distributing merchandise for the seventeen stores now controlled by the American Department Stores Corporation and will serve 90 to 100 additional department stores.

The operations of resident buyer of style goods at present carried on by the American Dry Goods Company in conjunction with Jay & Co. will be taken over by Joseph K. Rosenberg on July 1.

BUILDING ARBITERS THREATEN TO QUIT

RENEWAL OF FIGHT LOOMS

Justice Offers to Withdraw So Case May Be Conducted Under State Law, as Employers Demand.

Abandonment of the arbitration proceedings in the building industry, threatening a renewal of the warfare between the Building Trades Council and the Building Trades Employers Association and a restoration of the employers' lockout order against 75,000 mechanics, loomed as a possibility yesterday as a result of proceedings before the arbitration committee.

Justice Thomas C. T. Crain announced at the second session of the arbitrators held in his chambers that unless the employers appear at a session on July 8 at 10:30 A. M., the dispute will revert to the status of May 30. On that day the employers withdrew the lockout order, the cement union abandoned its injunction proceedings to halt the lockout, the electrical union returned men to the jobs in dispute and an agreement was reached to arbitrate the question as to whether union men should hang fixtures made by non-union men, "and other matters in dispute." The employers refused to appear at the arbitration hearing last week after they had failed to receive an assurance that the arbitration would be conducted according to the State arbitration law.

The arbitrators, Judge Crain, Robert D. Kohn and Henry C. Meyer, were asked by H. H. Broach, vice president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, to rule that the union need not furnish mechanics to the ten electrical fixture employers who manufacture with non-union help and who insist that local union men hang such fixtures. He said his union was willing to hang the non-union-made fixtures for electrical contractors or general contractors, but not for the ten fixture concerns involved in the dispute. Mr. Kohn suggested that this would throw the entire controversy "back into the fight stage."

Settlement Appears Remote.

When the hearing ended, with the abandonment of the entire arbitration proceeding in prospect, a settlement of the controversy appeared remote. In some well-informed trade quarters it was feared that open warfare between the Building Trades Employers Association and the Building Trades Council would be renewed. Neither side could make any prediction as to the immediate future.

When the hearing opened yesterday and the employers again failed to appear, Justice Crain offered to withdraw if that would facilitate matters. As the employers wished the proceeding to be under the State arbitration law, Justice Crain might be ineligible to act, because the law forbids a judge to hold two State positions at the same time. No action was taken on the offer and the proceedings continued.

Mr. Broach charged that Walter Gordon Merritt, attorney for the employers, was head of the League for Industrial Rights, successor of the old Anti-Boycott Association, whose purpose it was to fight unions. He declared that he did not wish to allow Mr. Merritt to use the arbitration proceedings to further his aims, as "for over a year he has been on a fishing expedition trying to examine Local 3 of the electrical union."

Broach Assails Employers.

"The employers, by withdrawing, have tried to wreck the proceedings," asserted Broach, "because they have no case and they know it. If these proceedings are to be prolonged to seek their return we would like to withdraw. We do not want a fight that will tie up the building industry in this city, but that won't be necessary, I believe."

Mr. Broach then introduced four fixture manufacturers who testified to the advantages of union labor, characterized the union as "a great constructive force" and said that the union label on fixtures guaranteed the "best craftsmanship."

SAYS HEALTH OFFICERS MUST PROTECT WATER

Dr. Slee at Saratoga Convention Holds Them Responsible for Epidemics.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., June 26.—The responsibility for epidemics arising from contaminated water supplies was laid squarely at the door of the health officer this afternoon by Dr. Richard Slee, district State health officer, in an address before the second day's meeting of the annual conference of health officers.

"It is a duty of every health officer, and a duty he must not shirk, to be familiar with the process through which his domestic water supply is passing," he said, "and to know for himself and without question that the necessary safeguards are unfailingly enforced."

Dr. William Alfred Sawyer, director of the medical department of the Eastman Kodak Company of Rochester, opened the joint morning session of health officers and public health nurses with an address on the advantage of the thirteen-month calendar.

Mechanics Receive Awards.

FUND TO GIVE $25,000 FOR STUDY OF WAGES

Twentieth Century Body Will Aid League of Nations Survey of World Economics.

The trustees of the Twentieth Century Fund have voted to donate up to $25,000 to the International Labor Office of the League of Nations to help finance the international investigation of the cost of living and wages, suggested by a request of the Ford Motor Company for data on which to equalize real wages in their plants in all countries, it was announced yesterday by Edward A. Filene of Boston.

The action of the trustees was taken as the result of an offer made by Mr. Filene, who is president of the fund, to raise this sum for the study.

Newton D. Baker	Edward A. Filene
Bruce Bliven	Max Lowenthal
William H. Dunbar	Roscoe Pound
John H. Fahey

The following statement was issued yesterday explaining the purpose of the donation and answering certain criticisms of the project which have recently been made in Europe:

"The Twentieth Century Fund has offered to aid this study first because its trustees are convinced that any increase in the purchasing power of the masses of people in any nation will be of inestimable benefit, not only to that nation, but also to the world at large; and second, because the facts about comparative living costs and wages in the various nations of the world are necessary for intelligent action along these lines.

"The experience of industrial leaders in the United States, and also to an increasing extent in Europe, has proved that with the economies of scientific large-scale operations wages not only can, but must be increased and prices lowered to produce the greatest total net profit to business. America's prosperity is largely due to the unprecedented increase in the purchasing power of the people.

"Economic laws like those of mathematics are not affected by nationality. The same policies that produce prosperity in the United States will produce prosperity in France or Germany or England or any other nation. The Twentieth Century Fund's offer is made in the belief that prosperous neighbors fill each other's pocketbooks."

On May 29 Mr. Filene informed Sir Eric Drummond of the league that he would guarantee to raise $25,000 and would suggest to the fund an appropriation of this amount in the interests of world prosperity and peace.

TAKE DIPHTHERIA TEST.

Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, Commissioner of Health, and forty members of the staff of the Diphtheria Prevention Commission took the Schick test yesterday to determine their susceptibility to diphtheria after one of their number had contracted the disease last week. The test was made at the Department of Health by Dr. Julius Blum of the Bureau of Laboratories.

The test, originated by Dr. Bela Schick of Vienna, determines not only the susceptibility of a person but the number of toxin-antitoxin treatments required to produce immunity. Although most adults are considered immune from diphtheria, Dr. Wynne declared that parents should insist on the treatment for children six months after taking the toxin-antitoxin treatment in order to insure their protection.

OPINION IS AWAITED ON ELEVATED FARE

Board Sends Plea to Counsel for Study—Report Expected in Two Weeks.

The Transit Commission referred yesterday to its counsel for study and opinion the recent petition of the I. R. T. for a ten-cent fare on its elevated lines. The opinion, which will probably be handed down a week from next Wednesday, is expected to advise rejection of the application on the ground that the fare is fixed at 5 cents by a contract with the city and cannot be altered by the commission.

This view was taken by the commission throughout the seven-cent fare litigation in the Federal courts. It contended that the elevated extension certificates of March 19, 1913, executed at the same time as the contract fixing a five-cent fare on the subway lines of the I. R. T., created an "inflexible" nickel fare for the elevated lines also.

The stockholders' protective committee of the Manhattan Railway Company, lessor of the elevated lines, is now studying the I. R. T.'s application for a ten-cent fare. The committee, headed by Nathan L. Amster, and claiming to represent a "substantial" percentage of the company's stock, was formed this Spring to aid in the rapid transit unification program launched by the Transit Commission, as well as conserving the interests of the company's shareholders.

Although it is known that those responsible for the formation of the protective committee favor a higher fare on the elevated lines, the committee has not yet taken a stand on the I. R. T. petition, but has merely submitted it to counsel for study and report. In transit circles the belief has been expressed that the committee may seek to intervene in any litigation which may result from the filing of the ten-cent fare plea.

AUTHORIZE HOTEL SALE.

Court Approves Grant for Leverich Towers Foreclosure.

The sale of the Leverich Towers Hotel, at Clark and Willow Streets, Brooklyn, was authorized yesterday by Judge Robert A. Inch in Brooklyn Federal Court by a grant to holders of a $500,000 second mortgage on the building to enter foreclosure proceedings in the Supreme Court.

The American Bond and Mortgage Company, which owns about 60 per cent of the bonds into which the mortgage was divided, is now at liberty t ofix a date for the sale of the hotel at public auction.

The hotel has an assessed valuation of $5,250,000. Three mortgages are held against it. The first mortgage of $2,500,000 is held by the American Bond and Mortgage Company and the second mortgage of $500,000 is said to be under its control. A third mortgage of $500,000, which would be nullified by foreclosure of the second mortgage, is held by a group of bondholders.

During the past year the hotel has been under the management of Milton Hertz, receiver in equity, and has made $200,000 above operating costs in that period, Mr. Hertz said yesterday. A year ago only about one-third of the rooms in the hotel were rented, according to Mr. Hertz, but in the year the percentage of rented rooms has at times been as high as 80 per cent.

DAMAGES REFUSED FOR ERROR IN AUDIT

CREDITOR SOUGHT $500,000

Defendant Certified Corporation Had More Than $1,000,000 After It Was Insolvent.

A test case on the novel question of whether a creditor of the bankrupt concern may recover damages from the auditors of that company's books for negligence in showing large assets when the company was insolvent was decided yesterday when Supreme Court Justice Walsh set aside a verdict for $187,576 obtained by the Ultramares Corporation again Touche, Nevin & Co., an accounting concern, with branches throughout the world. The court also dismissed the complaint asking for $500,000.

The suit was based on the failure of Fred Stern & Co., Inc., a rubber company, which in March, 1924, submitted to the plaintiff a balance sheet prepared by the defendants showing that the company had a net worth of $1,000,000 and a surplus of $500,000. The Stern company became insolvent later in the year after getting $500,000 credit from the plaintiff, and was adjudged insolvent Jan. 21, 1925. The plaintiff, together with other creditors of the Stern company, subsequently brought actions to hold the auditors responsible for losses on the ground of negligence in making the examination.

The complaint alleged that the examination was made "carelessly and unskilfully," and that the defendants would have known that the Stern company was "grossly insolvent," or should have known it if the examination of the books "had been conducted with reasonable care and skill."

Justice Walsh agreed that the defendants "negligently performed their work," that the balance sheet prepared by them was incorrect and showed the Stern company to be a going concern with assets greatly in excess of liabilities, whereas had the audit been carefully made, the balance sheet would have shown the Stern company to be insolvent.

The court said that the defendants were not informed as to the particular persons to whom the Stern company intended to show the balance sheet, but knew generally that they would be used by that company to evidence its financial condition, and that the balance sheets prepared by the auditors would be used for the purpose of securing credit. However he held:

"Negligence is not actionable unless there is a breach of duty owing by defendants to the plaintiff. To hold that the defendants' duty extended not only to Stern but to all persons to whom Stern might exhibit the balance sheet, and who would act in reliance thereon, would compel the defendants to assume a potential liability to practically the entire world. The law does not go that far, but limits the liability to those on whose direct benefit, to defendants' knowledge, the work for Stern was performed."

Justice Walsh accordingly decided that since the defendants owed no duty to the plaintiffs, no cause of action was established against the defendants, and for that reason the complaint must be dismissed. The court, however, denied an application by Guggenheimer, Untermyer & Marshall, attorneys for the defendants, for an extra allowance of $2,000 on account of the difficult nature of the case.

The decision, if upheld, will result in the dismissal of two other actions brought against the auditors on similar grounds, one by the Federal International Banking Company for $242,613 and the other by the American Exchange-Pacific National Bank for $100,000. Sir George Alexander Touche, head of the firm, was Sheriff of London in 1915 and 1916, and has been chairman of the Industrial and General Trust, Ltd. He was knighted in 1917 and created a baronet in 1920.

Marine Corps Orders.

Special to The New York Times.

MOTORSHIP'S SPEED 14.3 KNOTS IN TEST

TO GO TO ROOSEVELT LINE

The Oldham, Third of Government's Vessels to Be Converted, Will Be Tried Out in July.

The newly converted motorship New Orleans, which is now propelled by Diesel engines, was taken yesterday on her trial trip to Fire Island with about 125 shipping men and marine engineers aboard and completed her test with success. She maintained an average speed of about 14.3 knots for the 32-mile trip, thus exceeding even the demands of the engineers who directed her conversion.

Captain R. D. Gatewood, head of the Shipping Board's Department of Maintenance and Repair, under whose supervision the work was done, was in charge of the trip and expressed his satisfaction with her performance. The ship left Hoboken about 8:30 A. M. and proceeded to Ambrose Light, then sixteen miles down the bay, her steering apparatus being operated en route to test their seaworthiness.

The ship will be turned over immediately to the Roosevelt Steamship Company, which is under contract with the Shipping Board to operate the ships that are being converted by the government. One of the most important of the tasks being carried out by the board is the development of new and improved methods of ship propulsion, including pulverized coal and the Diesel engines. The New Orleans is the second ship within a week to be taken on her trial trip and proven successful after conversion by engineers of the Shipping Board, the West Alsek having come through her test as a burner of pulverized coal last Wednesday.

C. A. Greaser, assistant to Captain Gatewood, announced yesterday that a third ship, the Oldham, which has been converted to Diesel drive, will be taken from Baltimore July 9 on her trial trip.

JOSEPH F. HENNESSEY, Commissioner of Bronx Park.
Representative Anthony J. Griffin.

JOHN P. MAGILL, Maritime Association of New York.
WILLIAM T. DONNELLEY of the New York Board of Trade.

Vauban, Here From South America, Sent Stowaways Back.

When the Lamport & Holt liner Vauban arrived yesterday from Buenos Aires and Rio de Janeiro the officers reported that six negro stowaways had been found when the ship was 150 miles east of Barbados. The men were transferred at sea last Monday to the Voltaire, 590 miles southeast of the Scotland Lightship, to be returned to Barbados. The Vauban brought 180 passengers.

The Northern Prince, which also arrived from South America, brought fifty-nine passengers, completing her first round trip from New York to Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires and Montevideo. She is the second of four Furniss Prince ships to be placed in the service. The first was the Eastern Prince.

THE WEATHER.

Pressure is low and falling from the Northern Plains southward over the Middle and Southern Rocky Mountain region, remains high in the vicinity of Bermuda and is relatively high on the Washington coast and over the upper lake region.

During the last twenty-four hours there have been general rains along the North Atlantic and Middle Atlantic Coast and over the Southeastern States and showers over portions of the Missouri Valley and the Northern Plains and in scattered areas over the lake region. Temperature changes have been unimportant.

The indications are for a continuation of showers in the Southeastern States Thursday and possibly Friday, while showers will overspread the Ohio Valley and lake region on Friday. Elsewhere in the Washington forecast district the weather will be mostly fair. The temperature will rise somewhat Thursday in portions of the Middle Atlantic and South Atlantic States and in the lower lake region.

MORE CANNON DATA TO BE ASKED TODAY

PARTNERS TO TESTIFY AGAIN

Two More Clergymen Listed Among Those Brokers Are Alleged to Have Defrauded.

A final attempt to determine whether Bishop James Cannon Jr. of Virginia had any preferred standing with Kable & Co., dealers in securities, or enjoyed any financial connection besides that of a customer will be made at the resumption this afternoon of the bankruptcy hearing into the affairs of the company which is being conducted by Referee Robert P. Stephenson.

Harry L. Goldhurst and Charles W. Kable, partners in the firm, who are under indictment in the Federal court for using the mails to defraud, will be called to the witness stand again by C. Edward Benoit, attorney for Miss Anna Faians, trustee for the assets.

If their testimony develops a new angle in their relationship with the clergyman, Bishop Cannon may be called to testify in the proceedings, Mr. Benoit indicated. On the basis of the present evidence, however, there would be no reason for requiring his presence, the lawyer said.

The possibility was also suggested that the Bishop might be called as a witness in the Federal trial, but no discussion of the case was forthcoming in the office of the United States Attorney. The suggestion was based on the assumption that the Bishop might be able to throw light on the methods of the firm.

Miss Ellamarye Fallor, assistant in charge of the case, said that an order of Charles H. Tuttle, United States Attorney, prevented her from discussing the case. She said she would be prepared to prosecute the trial next month.

Two more clergymen, it was learned yesterday, are listed among the persons alleged to have been defrauded by Kable & Co. They are the Rev. Gregory Kulczycki and the Rev. John Marsalek, both said to be of the Greek Catholic Church. Both are named in the indictment against Goldhurst and Kable as victims of fraud. Mr. Marsalek, whose address is given as Ford City, Pa., is mentioned as having been defrauded through the mails on April 30, 1928. Mr. Benoit indicated that he would seek from Goldhurst today more information about his clergyman customers.

Other witnesses will be representatives of Alson & Brown, the accountants who examined the firm before it went into bankruptcy, and Robert Gompers, bookkeeper of Kable & Co. In addition to being re-examined about his relations with Bishop Cannon, Mr. Goldhurst will be questioned about the transfer of his suburban house to other ownership. So far, according to Mr. Benoit, only $3,000 in assets of the bankrupt firm have been traced and creditors claim a part of this sum.

WATER COMPANY TO BE SEIZED BY CITY

Mayor Orders Condemnation of Long Island Property When Offer by Berry Is Refused.

Following an extended executive session of the Board of Estimate, Mayor Walker announced last night that the board would direct the Controller at its meeting today to institute condemnation proceedings to acquire the holdings of the Long Island Water Company in the Rockaways because the company is unwilling to sell its property at a price that the city considers fair.

Negotiations for the acquisition of the property have been carried on for months by Controller Charles W. Berry. They began with two surveys of the company's property, one by the Controller to determine the value of real estate and the second by engineers of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity to ascertain the value of pipe lines and similar equipment. The combined estimates reached $1,600,000 and the city offered that amount for the plant. The company has held consistently to its original valuation of $2,000,000 and will not compromise, it is said. The city authorities have refused to raise their offer.

After the city acquires the water company's property it probably will replace some of the older pipe lines with new pipe, and the residents of the districts affected will in all likelihood be assessed for these improvements.

KEEP UP ENDURANCE FLIGHT

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 26 (AP).—Swinging monotonously over an eighty-mile course, Thorwald Johnson and Owen Haughland, endurance fliers, completed eighty-four hours of continuous flying at 5 o'clock this afternoon. They dropped a message saying they were in good condition.

They now claim a world's record for continuous miles of flight by an airplane over a set course, having flown more than 5,000 miles. They are flying over an eighty-mile course between Minneapolis, Northfield and Hastings, Minn.

Stanley Partridge of Minneapolis, president of the local chapter of the National Aeronautic Association, says he has received a telegram from national headquarters of the association at Washington saying the present officially posted record is 4,200 miles.

CITY BREVITIES.

A scheduled meeting yesterday between Deputy Police Commissioner Nelson Ruttenberg and officials of the Civil Liberties Union for discussion of the manner of conducting the proposed strike of garment workers was postponed.

Chairman representing camp committees of the Jewish Protestant and Catholic faiths and of the negro and Italian races have been invited by Sheriff Charles W. Culkin to call at his office on 1 o'clock Friday afternoon, when he will distribute $30,000 to be used in sending needy children to the country.

The Police Department Training School graduation exercises will be held in the Seventh Regiment Armory, Park Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street, Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock.
